ORDER MARRIED MEN DEFERRED IN DRAFT CALLS

Set Up 7 Classes; Bachelors First.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Local draft boards were directed by selective service headquarters tonight to postpone induction of married men until all other sources of man power for the armed forces have been exhausted.

Maj. Gen. L. B. Hershey.

A statement of policy, issued by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, established the order in which seven classifications were to be utilized for draft calls, and also contained a list of 34 essential activities compiled by the war man power commission.

Based on recent amendments to the selective service act, the statement was designed to guide local boards, Hershey said, but in no way altered the statutory ban on group deferments. Its purpose, he said, was to protect bona fide family relationships as long as possible.

Set Up Seven Classes.

The order in which local boards were instructed to consider registrants for induction was:

1. Single men with no dependents;
2. Single men with dependents, but not contributing to the war effort;
3. Single men with dependents, and who contribute to the war effort;
4. Married men, not engaged in the war effort, but living with their wives;
5. Married men, engaged in the war effort, and living with their wives;
6. Married men, not engaged in the war effort, living with wife and children, or children only;
7. Married men, engaged in the war effort, and living with wife and children, or children only.

In all cases, said the statement, the dependency must date from before Dec. 8, 1941.

Coördinate Order in States.

Provision was made for local boards to coördinate their reclassification orders thru the state director, to prevent any community from inducting men from one group before neighboring localities have reclassified that same group.

When deferring a registrant for occupational reasons, the local board must decide that the business in which the man is employed is one of those classed as essential, and then determine that his particular job makes him a "necessary man."

In addition, his work must be in fulfillment of a contract for a government agency engaged directly in war activity; concerned with promoting or facilitating war production, or furnishing materials for war production; or concerned with providing food, clothing, or "other requisites of the civilian daily life in support of the war effort."

List Essential Jobs.

The list of essential activities:

Production of aircraft and parts; ships, boats, and parts; ordnance and accessories; ammunition; agriculture; food processing; forestry, logging, and lumbering; construction; coal mining; metal mining; nonmetallic mining and processing and quarrying; smelting, refining, and rolling metals; production of metal shapes and forgings; finishing of metal products; production of industrial and agricultural equipment; machinery; chemicals and allied products; rubber products; leather products; textiles; apparel; stone, clay, and glass products; petroleum, natural gas and petroleum and coal products; transportation equipment; transportation services; materials for packing and shipping products; communications equipment; communications services; heating, power, and illuminating services; repair and handtrade services, blacksmithing, armature rewinding, electrical and bicycle repair, automobile repair, harness and leather repair, clock repair, tool repair and sharpening; health and welfare services; educational services; governmental services.

(Marcia Winn, Tribune reporter who recently made a survey of the war effort in the small towns and hamlets of the central west from Kentucky to Iowa, is now making a study of New York's attitude toward the war. The first of her series of four articles follows.)

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—There must be many serious manifestations of America's desire for victory here in New York, but they are not obvious to the visitor. Nor are they reflected in New York's participation in the war indices of the nation: Money, men and personal sacrifice.

To contrast New York's war effort with that in the heart of America, one might do well to put its war indices alongside those of the hamlet of Brook, Ind. [Population 888].

Brook exceeded its May war bond quota by 50 per cent. New York was 14.7 per cent short of its May quota. It was 33 per cent short of its June quota.

10,000 "Examined" for Navy.

Brook, with its 888 people, has 102 boys in the services now and none on its streets. New York, with a population of 7½ million, has streets and cafés thronged with young civilians, but it is so hard pressed for volunteers that neither the army, navy, nor selective services will give out figures. All the navy will say is, "We examined," with emphasis on the verb, "more than 10,000 in June."

The little town of Vandalia, Ill., with a population of 5,000, collected 143 tons of rubber in the national salvage drive. New York, with 1,500 times more people, raised 4,700 tons, the lowest proportionate amount in the nation. Had it followed Vandalia's example, it would have raised 214,500 tons.

Medley of Uniforms.

New York is much nearer the war than Brook, Ind., or Vandalia, Ill. Broadway is a phantasmagoria of the uniforms of the allied nations. Men from the British, Netherland, South African, Canadian, Australian, Free French, and American forces blend on the sidewalks, in the bars, thru the parks. The city's underground utility systems are under strict guard.

That strip of the Hudson where the Normandie now lies on its side, a stricken, weary whale, is a shoot-if-they-advance war zone. Not too far out in the Atlantic to have been called part of New York in happier days, a ship a day sinks. The sands of the beaches are deeply encrusted with oil from freighters sunk in America's struggle to keep its shipping lanes open. Occasionally a body floats up and in.

Yet New York is far more aloof from the war than Brook, Ind., or Vandalia, Ill.

Business Is Booming.

Certainly the war has yet to make a dent in Broadway's frivolity. The enormous signs now must be extinguished at 8 p. m., but the theaters are illuminated with red and blue lights, every other street light is on, and the nocturnal crowds are as thick as ever.

Business is booming, on Broadway and off it. Cinemas now have midnight shows to packed houses. Res-

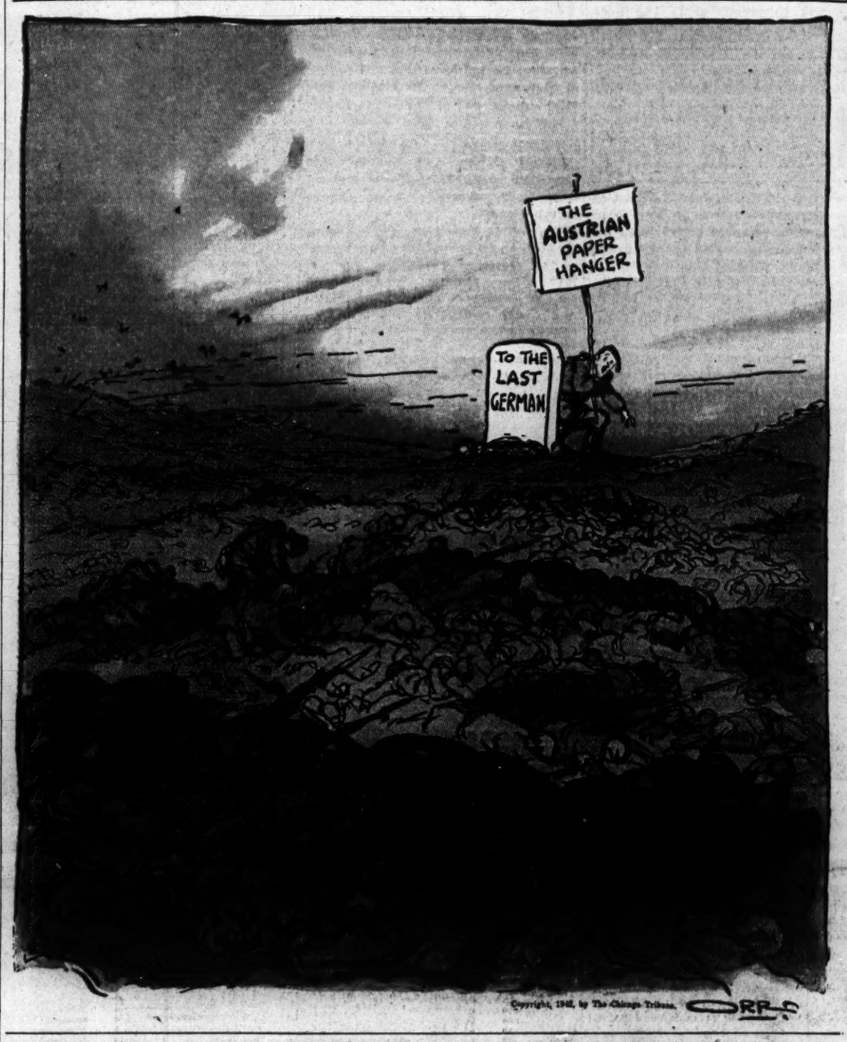
CHICAGO GIVES 21,000 TONS IN RUBBER DRIVE, TWICE WPB ESTIMATE

The Chicago metropolitan area contributed more than 21,000 tons of scrap rubber, more than twice the total expected by the War Production board, during the salvage drive conducted nationally from June 15 to July 10, William L. McFetridge, director of salvage of the Office of Civilian Defense, announced yesterday.

In his report, forwarded to Nathaniel Leverone, Illinois state salvage director, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly, OCD coördinator, McFetridge said filling stations turned in 15,000 tons and scrap dealers 6,000 tons.

"This total astounded WPB officials," McFetridge said. "Chicago's giant contribution will help Illinois gain a rating of second or third place thruout the nation. California and Texas might finish ahead of Illinois, but this was expected since both states had 20 year accumulations of scrap rubber stored because of high shipping costs to reclamation centers in the east. Illinois, however, started from scratch."

WE MUST EXPECT HIM TO FIGHT TO THE BITTER END



Girl Wife Held in Moonshine Feud Slaying

Jasper, Tenn., July 13 [Special].—In barefoot comfort, pretty Lillian McNabb Parsons, 15 year old child bride, sat in the county jail today sipping buttermilk and nibbling a pork chop while she awaited a hearing on a charge of murder in the slaying of a mountain neighbor in a whisky feud.

Where Mountaineers Battled.

The hill girl is accused of killing Sollie Redmond, 23, with a charge from her 20 gauge shotgun Saturday during a pitched battle in which two clans fought from opposing sides of a creek. Women as well as men wielded rifles and shotguns in the battle which was viewed by about 75 mountain folk.

Husband, 15, Also Held.

Arrested with the straight shooting Lillian were her husband, Walter Parsons, also 15; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Parsons, and Gladys and Ben Pickett. Lillian's father was not present; he is serving a long term in Atlanta prison for killing a revenue agent.

The immediate cause of the shooting was the Parsonses' charge that Redmond had hijacked moonshine from the young couple, but there had been bad blood between the families for some time.

Redmond had been charged with shooting and wounding the young husband, Parsons, and his wife's father, Crawford McNabb, about a year ago, and the Parsons family had testified against Redmond, his brother and his father in whisky cases in federal court. The bride also had accused Redmond of tipping off revenue agents that she and her family were "stilling" whisky.

Meet by Arrangement.

By mutual agreement, apparently, the feuders, their friends and mountaineer sportsmen gathered soon after sundown Saturday at a crossroads store at the foot of Sugar Creek mountain.

With virtually every one armed and ready for trouble, the opening of the battle awaited only the spark. That was promptly furnished when Redmond was alleged to have slapped the child bride's face after she had accused him of hijacking 50 gallons of whisky from her and her husband a week ago.

Relatives Square Off.

The two factions, comprised mainly of relatives of each family, quickly arrayed themselves against each other across the bridge over Sugar creek. Each side fired at random with squirrel rifles and shotguns. Police said about 20 shots were fired but, strangely, none but the girl's took effect.

The fatal shot fired by Lillian was said to have been the only blast she fired. Her apparent superior marksmanship over the other mountaineers puzzled officers, but it was suggested the others might not have been trying for accuracy.

When county officers from here arrived on the scene, all of the women participants threw down their guns and entered into a free for all hair pulling match. The battle was still in full swing when the first police cars arrived and it was a quarter of an hour before the officers could restore order.

SENATORS GET BILL TO SEIZE OR BUY AUTOS

5 Billion Fund Asked in F. D. R. Measure.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Government purchase of automobiles from private owners, voluntarily and by requisition, would be authorized under a bill introduced today by Sen. Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.].

He said the bill is an administration measure suggested by Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation.

As a further implication that this means business — the "business" feared by motorists for the last few months—Reynolds announced that the senate military affairs committee, of which he is chairman, will give prompt consideration to the bill at hearings beginning tomorrow morning. The session, as usual with this committee, will be behind closed doors.

5 Billion Fund Sought.

The bill would authorize an appropriation of 5 billion dollars to finance federal purchase of used motor cars, supplies, and equipment. At a rate of $500 for each automobile, 5 billion dollars would buy 10 million vehicles—more than a third of the total in the country. All of the spare tires in the country could be requisitioned for about a quarter of a billion dollars.

Sen. Sheridan Downey [D., Cal.] introduced a similar bill April 16. Lacking the support of the White House, the measure has been buried in the military affairs committee.

It did, however, promote discussion indicating that the administration has been apprehensive of political repercussions were it to take an automobile or a tire from John Doe and give it to Richard Roe.

Election Delay Suggested.

This precedent gave rise to predictions today that the Reynolds bill will encounter opposition before the November elections, and that, if it is passed before then, the requisition provisions would not be exercised until after the voting this fall.

The purposes, as described in the bill, are to conserve existing motor vehicles, equipment and supplies, to provide these facilities for essential services, and to assure their utilization in purposes essential to the prosecution of the war.

F. D. R. Would Determine Need.

The bill would give the President the following powers:

1. To accept motor vehicles, equipment and supplies as a gift, or by purchase, or voluntary transfer.
2. To requisition these transportation facilities as he determines there is an immediate or impending need not admitting delay.
3. To direct the manufacture, remodeling, or conversion of the vehicles.
4. To dispose of the equipment by temporary or permanent transfer.
5. To cause vehicles from this pool to be operated by government agencies.

The bill provides that motorists who sell their cars to the government voluntarily would be paid half in cash and half in war bonds. They also would receive priority purchase certificates so they would be among the first who could buy new cars when the war is over.

Would Offer "Fair Price."

Where cars are requisitioned the government would offer what it considered to be a "fair and just" price. If the owner were not satisfied with this offer, he would receive 50 per cent in cash and could sue for the balance of what he considered a fair price.

In an article for the Brookings Institution, where he is senior staff member, Charles L. Dearing, a consultant for Eastman, concluded that America has plenty of automobiles for five years of efficient transportation.

He said one difficulty, however, is that those whose needs for cars are most essential do not own the vehicles which will last the longest. He said the average car of an office worker, who uses it mainly for pleasure, is newer and in better condition than the average car of a farmer or an industrial worker.

The authority to convert vehicles, written into the present bill, refers to plans for remodeling automobiles into small buses to transport war workers.

7 Ships Sunk; 3 in Gulf of St. Lawrence

The torpedo sinking of seven more ships, three of them in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and one in the Gulf of Mexico, was announced yesterday. The attacks brought to 368 the number sunk in American and adjacent waters since Pearl Harbor, according to an unofficial tabulation by the Associated Press. Since then 316 vessels have been sunk near the shores of the United States, with 1,952 known dead, 1,816 missing, and 10,243 rescued. Details of the new sinkings follow:

TOLL IN GULF REACHES FIVE

OTTAWA, Ont., July 13 (AP).—Submarines which slipped into the Gulf of St. Lawrence have sunk three more ships, bringing to five the number sent to the bottom in that area, Angus MacDonald, Canadian navy minister, announced today in the house of commons.

"Three ships belonging to the united nations were torpedoed and sunk in the Gulf of St. Lawrence about a week ago," he said. "Four crew members are known to be killed, four are reported missing, and 99 have been landed safely."

Two other ships were announced sunk May 13 with 87 or 88 survivors reaching shore, but those sinkings occurred in the St. Lawrence river itself. At the time 14 crewmen were reported killed, but the exact number of casualties never was made known officially.

Questioned Twice in House.

MacDonald made his statement after being questioned twice in the house, last Friday by J. S. Roy, Independent of Gaspe, Que., and today by R. B. Hanson, Conservative leader, who said the new sinkings were common knowledge along the river.

Roy said he had been informed by people in Gaspe that three ships of 14 in a convoy were sunk the night of July 5.

Gaspe is on the peninsula of that name on the gulf southwest of Anticosti Island. Anticosti generally is considered the division point between the gulf and the river, which is navigable to ocean vessels as far as Quebec, 500 miles inland.

SUNK OFF EAST COAST

An East Coast Port, July 13.—A medium size American merchant ship was torpedoed and sunk Wednesday 90 miles off the Atlantic coast with the loss of one life, the navy announced today.

Flames from the burning freighter brought vacationers to the rescue, and two pleasure boats from a fishing lodge picked up 41 survivors. Patrick S. Mahoney of Staten Island, N. Y., skipper of the freighter, was caught in the davits while trying to lower a lifeboat and went down with the ship.

A navy gunner was picked up after swimming so close to the submarine that he could hear the crew talking in German.

ENEMY STRIKES 130 MILES FROM SOVIET CAPITAL

MOSCOW, July 14 (Tuesday)—(AP).—The Germans have launched a smashing offensive from their stronghold at Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and after a 12 day battle the Russians have withdrawn toward the capital, a special soviet communique announced today.

This news came shortly after the regular midnight communique had acknowledged a German break-thru at Voronezh, 300 miles south of Moscow, and admitted German advances at two other Don river valley points in their great drive toward the Caucasus.

Big Losses on Both Sides.

The fierceness of the fighting in the Rzhev sector, where the Germans had held out all winter despite heavy Russians attacks, was indicated by the heavy losses on both sides.

The soviet communique admitted 7,000 Russian soldiers were killed and wounded and another 5,000 were missing, but said the Germans had lost 10,000 killed during the battle, which lasted from July 2 thru July 13.

[The German high command earlier had announced that 30,000 Russian soldiers had been captured in an encircling movement southwest of Rzhev and that several infantry and cavalry divisions were "under annihilation."]

The regular midnight soviet communique, which described the situation on the 200 mile Don front as "grave," made no mention of the drive which might become the northern claw of a pincers move to encircle Moscow.

Text of Communique.

The special communique said:

"Southwest of Rzhev German forces launched an offensive attempting to encircle our troops by flank attacks and cut their communications in the rear.

"As a result of fighting between July 2 and July 13 against numerically superior enemy forces, who had a great number of tanks, our units inflicted heavy losses on the Germans in men and equipment, and themselves sustaining considerable losses were forced to withdraw and leave the defense area occupied by them."

Nazis Snap Red Line.

The Germans not only snapped the Red lines and apparently broke thru in great force at Voronezh, the upper end of the Don river front where the Russians had held out gamely for more than a week, but also continued to roll on eastward in the Boguchar and Lisichansk areas to the south.

Voronezh is a key railway city on the Moscow-Rostov line. The Germans claimed its capture July 7. Boguchar is 140 miles southeast of Voronezh, and Lisichansk is 200 miles due south.

In all three areas the Red army, pitted against overwhelmingly superior forces, fell back steadily.

The midnight communique had this to say of these sectors:

BOGUCHAR—"Fierce battles continue against enemy tanks and motorized infantry. . . . South of Boguchar fierce fighting is taking place against numerically superior enemy forces. . . . After stubborn defensive battles our defenders retreated to new positions."

LISICHANSK—"In the district east of Lisichansk our troops retreated to previously prepared defense positions. Mobile groups and aircraft covering the withdrawal are pinning the enemy down and inflicting heavy losses on him."

Could Turn Toward Moscow.

The Nazis fast were getting into position to wheel both to the north and south from their long wedge which is the greatest penetration yet of soviet soil.

From Voronezh they could turn northwest toward Moscow. From Boguchar they could turn southwest toward Stalingrad, great Volga industrial city 200 miles away, and from Lisichansk they could curve southward to outflank the Russian defenses at Rostov on the sea of Azov and thus gain entry to the Caucasian oil fields.

Amid calls for the allies to open a second front in Europe against the axis, the great German drive to the east with its gathering momentum threatened to do these things:

Split the central and southern Red armies entirely; gain the Volga at Stalingrad; seal that waterway route and other supply lines from the united nations to the Russians, and conquer the oil riches of the Caucasus itself.

The conquest of the Caucasus might preclude any major organized soviet resistance to the Nazis in this area for some time.

'Red Catastrophe'—Berlin.

BERLIN, July 13 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—"Catastrophe has broken on the armies of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko," the German radio said tonight, "and the pursuit of beaten soviet troops is continuing on a broad front."

"The pursuit of the enemy is being carried out partly by out-flanking movements by airplanes and also by creating new breaks in the Russians' lines]," the German radio said.

In an earlier announcement the Germans said 30,000 Russian soldiers had been captured in an 11 day battle southwest of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

Strong soviet resistance north and northwest of Voronezh, the left flank of the German thrust in the Don basin, was indicated in the assertion that a Red army "diversion attack" in those directions had been repulsed.

This attack, it was indicated, was against German bridgeheads thrown across the Don.

Tell of Air Exploits.

Strong German air formations were reported joining in the pursuit in the southern sector, where they were said to have destroyed several Don and Donetz river crossings which would be of value to the Russians in maneuvering their forces.

On the Caucasus coast, the regular communique said, bombers hit two floating docks at Novorossisk, a possible soviet naval base now that the Red fleet has been driven from Sevastopol.

Dive bombers attacked harbor installations at Rosta, near Murmansk, in the far north, the communique said.

On the Volkhov front south of Leningrad, the Germans said they had repulsed strong Russian attacks against a Nazi bridgehead and wiped out a Russian bridgehead which had been gained on the west bank of the Volkhov river.

U. S. FERRY PILOTS DODGE AFRICAN WILD ANIMALS

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—American pilots ferrying planes across Africa have to watch out for elephant.., lions, crocodiles and hippopotamuses, a returned officer reported today.

Maj. Thomas L. Dawson of Kansas City, Mo., back from eight months in Africa, told of one jungle airport where herds of elephants had to be chased away before planes could land. He said he had set other aircraft down in rivers amid crocodiles and hippos.

At a field in Sudan he was greeted by a playful lion which slapped his back with a paw and took his arm in its mouth before it let him edge away.

4 Axis Planes Destroyed Attacking Malta Airfields

VALETTA, Malta, July 13 (AP).—British headquarters reported "one of our airdromes was attacked twice this morning and another this afternoon. In the morning attacks enemy air losses were two German bombers, one fighter, and one Italian fighter destroyed and several more damaged."

AUSSIES RETAKE EGYPTIAN RIDGE AFTER NAZI PUSH

Beat Back Strong Attack Along Coast Road.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH BRITISH FORCES ON EGYPTIAN DESERT FRONT, July 13.—Australian battle groups have beaten off a powerful axis counterattack along the coastal road west of El Alamein, it was disclosed tonight.

The enemy attacked late yesterday afternoon. Truck borne infantry came up by road while other infantry units pushed in on the left flank. Heavily supported by artillery fire and with the aid of a few tanks the enemy took one point at the eastern end of the Tel el Eisa ridge 10 miles west of El Alamein, which the Australians captured two days before.

Retake All Lost Ground.

Aided by artillery, the Australians halted the attack, then counterattacked and retook the ridge. The fighting continued after dark, but before midnight the Aussies had won back all lost ground. A lull followed today when sandstorms hampered both sides.

The area where the Aussies are making their stand is protected on the coast by a strip of salt marshes. Inland is a narrow strip of loose sand dunes and then a road, dipping up and down along the crest of a little ridge with the railroad just inland from it.

The land falls away slightly inland from the road and then rises in a series of little ridges and knolls that culminate in an escarpment 8 or 10 miles south of the road.

Bulge to Southwest.

The enemy attacked from two directions—along the coast road which is asphalt surfaced, tho badly battered by two years of war traffic, and across country from inland.

Meanwhile South African troops were spreading out in a bulge southwest of El Alamein, taking over positions previously cleared by the Aussies. The South Africans extended the bulge southward after heavy shelling and the enemy withdrew to the west, losing at least five tanks and seven .75 mm guns to an attack by British armore units.

Artillery and planes continued attacks on the enemy's rear. It was disclosed that the 500th enemy plane had been shot down since last winter's campaign opened on Nov. 18.

Claim Attacks Repulsed.

ROME, July 13 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Italian high command said today that axis troops in the El Alamein area had repulsed renewed British attacks in lively fighting. Large numbers of motor vehicles were reported put out of action by Italian air attacks in the desert.

SEEK TO SETTLE RUMANIA'S ROW WITH HUNGARY

BERNE, Switzerland, July 13 (AP).—A German-Italian commission arrived in Transylvania today to arbitrate the break between Rumania and Hungary created by Rumanian efforts to force the exodus of the Hungarian minority from Rumania.

Neutral dispatches also reported that Rumania had suddenly discontinued her propaganda for the return of sections of Transylvania now held by Hungary, mainly because of Nazi pressure for a united front.

The seizure of food supplies of Hungarians in Rumanian territory started the latest phase of the dispute. Hungary protested, and Hungarian sources attributed the cessation of Rumanian revisionist propaganda to this protest. The arrival of the German-Italian commission indicated the question still was unsettled.

German Jews Reported Sent to Russia 'Colonies'

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 13.—Even German Jews are being sent to do "colonization work", in the occupied areas of Russia, reports from Berlin said tonight. These German Jews are recruited in a military way and more than 330,000 have already reached their destinations.

YANKS PERFORM LIKE VETERANS IN LIBYA: SEN. LODGE

Reports Tanks Stand Test of Battle.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The American aptitude for mechanics, and stamina and training received in maneuvers helped a United States token force make a first-class showing in the June 11 and 12 tank battle of the Libyan desert, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. [R., Mass.] said today.

Sen. H. C. Lodge Jr.

Lodge was there as a major in the United States army and today gave the senate, to which he returned recently, a first hand account of the engagement.

Volunteer for Action.

The detachment of American soldiers with their own tanks, volunteered for service in the action to gain actual experience, Lodge said.

Discussing the men who manned the tanks, Lodge said "they had the natural aptitude for motor mechanics, the flair for radio work and the ability to drive a vehicle with skill which is typical of our country's youth."

"They were not cannon fodder. They were not robots," Lodge asserted, explaining that the detachment registered direct hits and stopped German tanks, withstood heavy fire from enemy guns and brought themselves and their tanks out without damage.

Praises Tanks' Armor.

Of the American equipment, he said:

"The severe test which our equipment received on maneuvers was intensified in battle. Our trucks, our light tanks and—above all—our medium tank M-3—the so-called 'General Grant'—gave good account of themselves. That they are susceptible of improvement is, of course, natural and true. In the newer models these improvements have been made. . . . We have in the General Grant a vehicle with stout armor. It has a gun which is not outranged by the enemy and with which the enemy can be given a hard, stiff, destructive blow."

Lodge said, in answer to a question, that the General Grant tanks had not been subjected to the fire of the 88 millimeter anti-tank guns used by the Germans in trapping and battering the bulk of the British armored force.

HINDU LEADERS FAIL TO AGREE ON FREEDOM PLANS

WARDHA, India, July 12 [Delayed]—(AP).—A full week of conferences has failed to bring agreement in the working committee of the All-India Congress party, which has been meeting here with Mohandas K. Gandhi to discuss a new move designed to bring Indian independence, but there were indications tonight that a decision might come within 48 hours.

Gandhi, who ordinarily observes his weekly "day of silence" Monday, agreed to continue the conferences Monday afternoon.

REPORT GERMANS SEND RESERVES FROM CRETE TO EGYPTIAN FRONT

ANKARA, Turkey, July 13 (AP).—German occupation troops in Greece together with reserves called from the eastern front are being rushed to the aid of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces in Egypt, it was reported here today.

The troops were said to be going by way of Crete to Tobruk, a route of more than 500 miles from Greek ports. Convoys of mechanized equipmen also were reported enroute to the desert battle.

[The British announced that RAF planes on Saturday and Sunday had shot down 15 big German troop transport aircraft over the Mediterranean, indicating reenforcements were being sent to Rommel by air.]

7 U. S. AMBULANCE DRIVERS MISSING ON EGYPT FRONT

CAIRO, Egypt, July 13 (AP).—Seven American ambulance drivers of the American field service are missing as a result of operations in the present desert campaign, the organization announced tonight. They are Stanley B. Kulak of Salem, Mass.; Alexander McElwain of Boston; Alan Stuyvesant of New York; Peter Glenn of Clarksdale, Miss.; William W. Mitchell of San Francisco; Mortimer W. Belshaw of Martinez, Cal., and Lawrence Sanders of Corinth, Miss.

The field service announced that "25 per cent of all American field service ambulances operating in the western desert during this period have been hit, captured or destroyed by enemy action but many of those hit have been put back on the road. "Six per cent of the personnal have been wounded, killed or captured."

The field service is endeavoring to learn the fate of the missing seven, several of whom are believed captives. As protected personnel, they are eligible under the Geneva conventions for exchange for prisoners held by the allies.

WICKARD O. K.'S USE OF WORKERS FROM MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, July 13 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said today he approved, in principle, the supervised migration of Mexican workers to the United States to meet the shortage of harvest hands there, particularly in California, and added that the matter was under negotiation with the Mexican government.

Wickard, who is heading the United States delegation to the second Inter-American agricultural conference, said he had answered to that general effect a telegram from California Gov. Cuthbert L. Olson urging immediate arrangements be made for Mexicans to enter the United States to prevent loss of fruit and vegetable crops due to the wartime lack of pickers.

BRITISH FLEET'S GUNS AND PLANES POUND AXIS BASE

Tobruk Battered

CAIRO, Egypt, July 13 (AP).—Heavy four motor bombers of the royal air force made a "bomb a minute" raid on axis held Tobruk last night in a savage attack which lasted for three hours, RAF headquarters announced tonight. Direct hits on ships in the harbor and dock installations in the German supply base were scored during the raid, it was reported.

BY LARRY ALLEN.

WITH THE BRITISH NAVY AIR FORCE IN THE EGYPTIAN DESERT, July 12 [Delayed]—(AP).—British warships hurled more than 700 rounds of high explosive shells into the axis vital supply base at Matruh in nearly a half hour before dawn today, causing great destruction in the enemy's material dumps close behind the Egyptian battlefields. Naval aircraft bombed the western Egypt seaport installations.

Projectiles from the great sea guns silenced shore batteries and beat much of the sector into smoking, ravaged pulp. The surprise bombardment caught a mass of small supply ships and swift motor torpedo boats at anchor in the harbor. A number were set afire.

The great shells from the fleet set huge blazes ashore. The first round fell squarely on the target area and blasted the heavy Nazi antiaircraft guns into twisted steel.

Ammunition Ship Blown Up.

Naval planes roared out swiftly shortly after Saturday midnight and flew over the target area at Matruh while bursts of flames streaked from the naval guns in the desert darkness.

Meanwhile, off Matruh, a medium sized enemy ship laden with ammunition was spotted by naval aircraft, which scored bomb hits on her. A navy flyer told me he dive bombed the vessel and left her listing to port as the surface ships loosed their first broadside.

"The ship was caught full in a searchlight beam," the flyer said. "After a few minutes of firing, shells set her afire. Suddenly she blew up with a colossal explosion. It was a magnificent sight."

A Merchantman Smashed.

An E-boat [motor torpedo boat] escorting a merchantman drew heavy fire from the ships and it probably was sunk. The merchantman's guns replied briefly but soon a broadside blew her to pieces, too.

Just before the thunderous bombardment started, word was flashed from a scouting plane that two enemy schooners, three motor barges and a motor torpedo boat had been sighted off Matruh.

Naval planes attacked swiftly. They signaled back to the naval base that the speeds of all the enemy vessels were reduced by the air attack. One barge and one schooner probably were damaged badly.

Ships "Thoroly Beaten Up."

Naval airmen said one enemy ship was afire in Matruh harbor when the warships opened up with their broadsides. They said that shipping in the port had been thoroly "beaten up" and that the enemy would not get much help from Matruh for a long, long while.

While the bombardment was in progress, another squadron of naval planes swept into the desert near the front lines at El Alamein and shot up and bombed a concentration of hundreds of armored cars, trucks, and tanks.

"We left behind great fires accompanied by a series of explosions which indicated we must have hit some ammunition dumps also," a flyer said.

Still another navy squadron dive bombed an axis convoy apparently headed for Tobruk and scored two direct hits on a supply ship.

[An Italian communique said the air escort of an axis Mediterranean convoy beat off a British plane attack and shot down a bomber and two torpedo planes.]

De Gaullists Take New Name; They're 'Fighting French' Now

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Simultaneously with the announcement today that "Free France" in the future will be known as "Fighting France," came news that the French National committee here has formed its own commando unit in Britain. A detachment drawn from French marines will parade thru London tomorrow to celebrate Bastille day, France's independence day.

Adm. Harold R. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in European waters, and Brig. Gen. Charles L. Bolte, chief of staff to Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in chief of United States army forces in the European theater, will attend the London celebration.

Ask All to Celebrate.

The "Fighting France" committee, in agreement with the British government, has complete charge of organizing all French nationals and territories that have not capitulated, to aid the united nations.

Meanwhile the "Fighting France" radio has been exhorting all parts of the world, including Vichy territory, to celebrate July 14 by a demonstration of sympathy for "Fighting France" and the united nations.

Laval Gets Warning.

VICHY, France, July 13 (AP).—All France was tense on the eve of Bastille day as Nazi Gestapo authorities decided to shoot all adult male relatives of hunted saboteurs.

Even Chief of Government Pierre Laval was warned by a proaxis friend to "watch out" for anti-Nazi elements in France. Marcel Deat, a leading collaborationist, said in a Paris speech:

"Laval, you are attacked everywhere; your government is threatened. Pierre Laval, you are terribly alone."

The Gestapo announced in Paris that it would execute all male relatives over 18 years old of any French saboteur or assailant who does not surrender himself within 10 days. Women relatives will be put to hard labor, and the children will be sent to reform schools.

Reports reaching here proved the anti-German struggle continued. A freight train was derailed on the Amiens-Sotteville line. French and German police stormed a house at Houdin where grenade tossing Frenchmen had barricaded themselves. One Frenchman, described as a "Communist," was killed. The Germans said they found firearms and explosives in the house.

German authorities in occupied France forbade any celebration of Bastille day. The orders covered even the display of flags.

RAF DOWNS NAZI STAFF SCOUTING PLANE IN EGYPT

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—A Reuters [British] news agency dispatch from the Egyptian warfront said today that two royal air force planes bombed and machine gunned a Fieseler Storch type plane such as those used only by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and other senior staff officers in the desert and that all occupants of the craft were believed killed.

Reuters' account said the plane was attacked in the northern sector of the El Alamein front and that one British bomb landed on the axis machine when it was only 15 feet from the ground. A second British plane, it added, followed with a machine gun burst.

[The Storch is a type plane which German staff officers use to observe battle action and move from place to place in a battle zone. It is a weird appearing, high wing monoplane, something like a powered glider. It can take off from a small space, climb almost vertically, and its landing speed is so slow that it can come to a dead halt without rolling more than its own length. It is light and frail and slow moving in the air.]

LONDON PAPERS AGAIN CALL FOR OPENING OF 2D FRONT IN EUROPE

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—The press of London tonight called anew for the opening of a second front in Europe after the German advances in southern Russia.

"If we fail to open a second front soon enough, because of underorganization and indecision or sheer low spirits, the price of our ineptitude may be no more freedom—anywhere—forever," the London Daily Herald said.

Other papers took a similar stand.

SENATORS PLAN TO INSPECT WAR ZONE IN ALASKA

Reynolds Asks $50,000 for Travel Expenses.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Plans for a special senate subcommittee to make an inspection tour of the Alaskan war theater, including the Aleutian islands where Japanese landing operations have been in progress for the last six weeks, were disclosed today by Sen. Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], chairman of the senate military affairs committee.

Sen. Robert R. Reynolds.

The determination of members of congress to undertake such a trip at this time was regarded as a reflection of the growing impatience thruout the nation over the veil of secrecy clamped on a vital war zone by the army and navy. Altho the defense of Alaska is of recognized strategic importance to the United States, less news has been forthcoming from this sector than from any of the others, records show.

Asks $50,000 Travel Expenses.

Introducing a resolution asking $50,000 traveling expenses, Reynolds explained that small groups of senators intend to visit numerous military establishments and encampments at home and in United States territories and possessions. He dwelt at length upon the anxiety of the members to observe first hand the progress of the Alaskan defenses.

The senator told his colleagues that had funds been available in the past to finance visits to important outposts precautions could have been taken to prevent an enemy from gaining a foothold on the North American continent as is presently the case in the Aleutians. Recalling that he visited Alaska in 1938, he said he had predicted the Japanese attempts to occupy Alaska as a step toward invasion of the west coast. He added:

"If at that time members of the military affairs committee had had the opportunity to visit Alaska and the Aleutian Islands, instead of having been caught with our pants down, instead of experiencing the excruciating embarassment of having the Japanese today fortified and intrenched in our western hemisphere, that never would have come about.

Interested in Highways.

"At this particular time we are desirous of appointing a subcommittee to visit Alaska and that portion of the Aleutian Islands that it is possible for one of our subcommittees to visit at this hour in order to see what is going on there in a section of the country toward which the American eyes are turned at the present time.

"All of us are interested in ascertaining what progress is being made toward the construction of a military highway from America's northern border to Fairbanks, which is located in the center of that vast territory. Likewise, we are interested in knowing what is going on in the development of fortifications that have recently been increased at Sitka and Kodiak and Dutch Harbor in the Unalaska section."

Reynolds said that the enemy attacks on Attu and Kiska in the Aleutian chain were made to deprive our forces of "spring boards" for assaults on Japan. He noted that Attu is only 720 miles from Japanese territory and 2,200 miles from Tokio.

Army and Navy Silent.

"They have done what we should have done," he asserted. "They have fortified those islands; they are preparing to keep us out of them so that we cannot use the Aleutian group and particularly Attu as a spring board. So long as we permit the Japanese to retain control, which they now have, in the Aleutians, then so much longer do they keep us from making an attack upon the Japanese Islands when the time comes."

Reynolds said the proposed trip to Alaska would be made by Senators Harley M. Kilgore [D., W. Va.], M. C. Wallgren [D., Wash.], and Rufus C. Holman [R., Ore.] of his committee. He said Senators Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.] and Clyde L. Herring [D., Ia.], both members of the special committee investigating defense, and Sen. Harold H. Burton [R., O.] would be on the west coast soon and would be invited to join the subcommittee there for the trip.

Alaska civilian leaders, aroused by the Japanese activity against our westerly outposts, have gone directly to President Roosevelt in an effort to secure a unified command for the territorial defense forces, it became known. The army and navy contingents there are still operating under their own separate heads whereas unified commands were established in Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Canal Zone shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Delegate Makes Statement.

The move has the support of Anthony J. Diamond [D.], the Alaskan delegate in congress, who said:

"Alaska is a theater of war and I cannot understand how we can wage a combination land, air and sea warfare without unification of the command of operations. It is as vital to Alaska today as it was to Hawaii in December, 1941."

Diamond's words recalled that the President's special investigating committee found that lack of coöperation between independent heads of the army and navy in Hawaii was responsible for much of the success of the Japanese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

Killed in Gun Accident

KAY VELMA MEDNANSKY.

Kay Velma Mednansky, 8 years old, underwent a tonsil operation a week ago and yesterday her parents took her to the farm of Emil Medesi, four miles southwest of North Judson, Ind., for a vacation.

With three other youngsters she set out for a hike thru the woods. One, a boy 18 years old, whose last name Sheriff Elmer Anderson of Starke county did not learn, carried a .22 califer rifle. As they came to a fence, the boy put down the rifle and lifted Kay Velma over. One of the other youngsters picked up the gun to hand it to the youth.

The gun discharged and the bullet tore thru the abdomen of the girl. She was taken to the Holy Family hospital at La Porte, where she died. Her body later was taken to a chapel at 659 West 18th street, Chicago. Russell L. Beck of the coroner's office at La Porte said the shooting was an accident. The other youngsters, known only as Lorraine, Mary, and Stephen, were not held.

ASKS WHY BIDDLE BALKED QUIZ IN ANTI-TRUST CASE

Hoffman Demands Inquiry on Attorney General.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The possibility of a congressional investigation of charges that Attorney General Francis Biddle interfered with a federal grand jury's intention to act in an important antitrust case in San Francisco, Cal., loomed tonight.

Rep. Clare Hoffman [R., Mich.] plans to demand that congress investigate the charges made against Biddle by the grand jury foreman, Dean David E. Snodgrass of Hastings Law school, San Francisco, it was learned tonight, and will introduce a resolution for the house judiciary committee to conduct an inquiry.

Snodgrass accused Biddle of prolonging the grand jury's inquiry after they were prepared to act, and with other jurors demanded that Biddle resign as attorney general. The grand jury had requested Federal District Judge Michael J. Roche to dismiss it on the grounds that further deliberations appeared useless.

Jurors Forced to Give Up.

"For many weeks," said the jury's report to the federal court, "the time of this grand jury has been devoted to a minute investigation of an important case involving a large group of persons. We were advised on June 24 that the hearings were concluded and that the matter had reached a point for the jury to determine whether a true bill should be voted. Since that time there have been certain developments which this jury regards as wholly inconsistent with the idea that any further action is to be taken in the case."

Snodgrass issued a statement declaring that "in my opinion until such time as Mr. Biddle resigns from the office of attorney general of the United States we cannot be sure justice will be administered."

The grand jury protested against a government request to extend the term of the grand jury because it wished to present additional evidence. Reliable information received here was that the case involved some persons considered influential and close to the Roosevelt administration and this accounted for the delay in closing the case.

[A new grand jury was sworn in yesterday by Federal Judge Michael J. Roche, who questioned the 23 members of the new grand jury on their prejudices for or against the Sherman anti-trust law, specifically mentioning four industries—tobacco, wine, pineapple, and banana—that might be involved in future deliberations, to pursue the investigation, dispatches from San Francisco revealed.]

Await Full Statement.

Rep. Hoffman said Snodgrass' charges against Biddle constituted a "starting statement for the foreman of a federal grand jury to make. However, they are not so unusual in view of certain happenings down here—for instane: the refusal of Biddle to take any action against labor racketeers accused of selling war jobs."

Members of the house judiciary committee expressed interest in the case but said they wished to investigate further before making any formal statement on it. Sen. Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.], chairman of the senate judiciary committee, also said he would be interested in knowing more about the situation but was not prepared to say whether a formal investigation would be held, altho it probably would fall to his committee to hold such a probe if a resolution for that purpose were introduced.

One influential member of the house judiciary committee said that the case certainly is one that congress should investigate. Rep. Clarence F. Lea [D., Cal.], chairman of the house interstate and foreign commerce committee, said, however, that as he understands the situation the attorney general wanted the grand jury to withhold any action until more evidence was submitted by the government and this he considered "commendable" on the part of the attorney general.

The nature of the antitrust investigation and the interests involved have not been disclosed because the grand jury's inquiry necessarily was secret.

Lends Binoculars

Gov. Green (left) handing binoculars to Capt. Wolleson.

Gov. Green yesterday lent the navy a set of binoculars—Mrs. Green's—as he urged everyone owning sets that conform to requirements to follow his example. The governor presented the glasses to Capt. E. A. Wolleson in a ceremony at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Green asserted that 50,000 pairs of binoculars were lent to the government during the first World war and were all returned later.

WAR PRISONERS IN HONGKONG FED WELL, SAY JAPS

OTTAWA, Ont., July 13 (AP).—An official Japanese report relayed here thru the Argentine government asserted that war prisoners in Hongkong, including an estimated 1,600 Cnadians, are satisfied with their food rations and that prison camp conditions generally are improving.

This was the first direct word from official Japanese sources since the far eastern base, garrisoned by Canadian, British, and Indian troops, fell to the enemy last Christmas.

The note said health measures had reduced the number of cases of cholera and dysentery. The number of wounded patients "satisfactorily" declined from 1,150 in January to 391 by mid-March, the report added.

Food rations varied in different camps, the report said, but it maintained that the prisoners got the same food as Japanese soldiers in the area.

The daily rations at one camp at the end of March were listed as follows: 40 ounces of rice, 17 ounces of fresh vegetables, and 5 ounces of meat—including fish—and additional miscellaneous food. Both officers and men also received one ounce of tobacco free each week and such necessities as soap and toothpaste were supplied free, the Japs said.

HOUSE EXPUNGES FROM RECORD PM INGERSOLL ITEM

Rankin Says Draft Item Was a Trick.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washingtn, D. C., July 13. — The house today unanimously adopted a resolution expunging from the Congressional Record a letter written by Ralph Ingersoll, editor of the New York paper PM, to his draft board protesting its refusal to exempt him from army service.

This action, rare in legislative procedure, was taken upon the request of Rep. John E. Rankin [D., Miss.], and constituted a rebuke to Rep. Sol. Bloom [D., N. Y.] who was accused by Rankin of inserting the letter in the Record thru a tricky procedure.

Last week Bloom had requested permission to insert an article from PM, owned by Marshall Field III., in the Record.

Ingersoll's Letter Inserted.

When the house met last Thursday, Rep. Herman P. Eberharter [D., Pa.] requested unanimous consent that Bloom be permitted to extend his remarks in the Record "by inserting therein an editorial" from PM, the cost of printing which was estimated at $157.50. Bloom was said to be in New York at the time.

The "editorial," as printed in the Record, turned out to be Ingersoll's letter to draft board No. 44 in New York City, protesting against its placing him in class 1-A. PM, Ingersoll, and Field were rabidly pro-war prior to Pearl Harbor.

In this letter, which Rankin described as the "whining confession of a draft-dodger," Ingersoll made abusive remarks about Rankin and others whom he castigated in trying to defend his position of unwillingness to join the army.

Tricked, Rankin Says.

Rising on a point of personal privilege, Rankin informed the house that it had been tricked into accepting for the Record the Ingersoll letter on the grounds that the letter was inserted under permission to insert an editorial and not a letter from Ingersoll; that the letter "contains language and statements that are objectionable and unparliamentary," and that the statements contained in the letter "reflect upon members of congress, are false, improper, out of order, and in violation of the privileges and rules of the house."

The house adopted Rankin's resolution without dissent.

Ingersoll remains in 1-A despite his outbursts against the draft board, according to its latest ruling, which found him without dependents, unmarried, and of draft age. Field had requested his deferment on grounds that he is an employé essential to PM.

MRS. PUTNAM OF AVWS APPOINTED RESIDENT COUNSELOR FOR WAAC

Des Moines, Ia., July 13 (AP).—Col. Don C. Faith, commandant of the women's army auxiliary corps training center, announced today the appointment of Mrs. Ella Newall Putman, 55 years old, of Carthage, Mo., as resident counselor of the WAAC.

Mrs. Ella Putman.

She was with the University of California as auditor from 1930 to 1932. In 1935-'36, Mrs. Putman organized and administered the household workers' training school under the WPA in Washington and in 1937-'38 she was resident head of Sandia boarding school for girls at Albuquerque, N. M. She returned to the WPA in 1938-'39 and in 1941 began her work with the AWVS in New York City. Her husband died in 1936.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—A fine of 2,000 pounds [$8,000] was imposed today on George Black, leading theatrical producer of this country, for obtaining 13,000 yards of mercerized lawn without surrendering the necessary coupons. He got a similar fine for having purchased the lawn not for resale but for use in his various productions when the occasion arose.

REVEALS GERMAN PLAN TO ATTACK U. S. THRU MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, July 13 (AP). —A former Mexican military attaché to Berlin said in a published interview today that Germany had planned to land an invasion force in Tampico to attack the United States and had offered Mexico "territorial compensations" for its support.

The plans were completed during the invasion of Poland, two years before the United States entered the war, Lieut. Col. Armando Lozano Bernal said. Bernal has just returned to Mexico with diplomatic repatriates.

The colonel said the German plan was discussed with him, but his unsympathetic answers caused the Germans to cut short their efforts to win him over. He said the Mexican government was fully advised of the German overtures. Bernal remained in Germany until last May.

Saboteurs Blast a Bridge on Swedish Side of Border

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—The Stockholm radio said tonight that the important Svinesbund bridge crossing the Norwegian frontier near Sarpsborg had been damaged by an explosion on the Swedish side, and that saboteurs were responsible. Swedish troops now are hunting for the saboteurs, the broadcast said.

RINGED BY PEAKS, HE TRIES TO FLY OUT IN '14 PLANE

Fails, but Three Stranded Airmen Are Saved.

BULLETIN.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, July 14 (Tuesday)—(AP).—Allied headquarters said in its communique today: "Air activity in all sectors was limited to reconnaissances."

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 13 (AP).—Three United States bomber crewmen have finally reached their base from the New Guinea jungle after a futile attempt to fly out of encircling 8,000 foot high mountains in a 1914 model biplane which they patched up with bed sheets and stretcher canvas.

Forced down in New Guinea by lack of fuel, Capt. John D. Feltham, 29 years old, Newport, R. I., First Lieut. Hugh Turk, 25, Piedmont, Ala., and Sergt. O. N. Ferguson of Los Angeles, worked a week to repair their plane without success.

Find Two Old Planes.

Abandoning it, they slashed their way thru the jungle for four days before coming to a deserted trading post where they found the 1914 plane with its propeller smashed and another 1917 model which had been almost burned out.

For a week they worked on the older plane, salvaging a propeller from the 1917 model, replacing with bamboo struts pieces that had been eaten away by white ants, and covering them with two bed sheets and a piece of stretcher canvas. They had no aviation fuel but they found a cache of automobile gasoline.

Plane Dashed to Earth.

He got within 15 feet of the top of the 8,000 foot high mountains, but the plane would do no more. While his precious gasoline dwindled, he tried to find an outlet. Then a strong current dashed him to the ground like a leaf.

With his legs trapped, Feltham had worked five hours to extricate himself before his comrades worked their way to his rescue. With his legs in bamboo splints, Feltham was carried down the mountainside.

Three days later all three were rescued by an Australian plane which sighted them and landed in a small clearing.

U. S. Flyers Worry Japs.

[By wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, July 13.—Intensification of Japanese air activity over New Guinea in the last two weeks indicates that the enemy is worried over the growing menace of allied airmen, who despite the handicap of inferior numbers and inferior quality of pursuit planes, continue to maintain aerial superiority by their flying and fighting ability.

Since July 1, the Japs have raided Port Moresby eight times and Horn Island once in attempts to knock out the allied bases supposedly used for the bombing attacks on Salamaua and Lae in New Guinea, and Rabaul in New Britain. The raiders have been repelled several times without causing much damage. The box score reveals that the Japs have lost at least seven planes destroyed and 11 seriously damaged while the allies have lost only six.

This allied superiority is confirmed by the enemy's failure to strike at Darwin since June 16, when Australia's northern outpost was raided for the 20th time. It is obvious that the Japs are unwilling to attack allied bases unless they are equipped with the strongest force of fighters and bombers.

Allied Pilots Best Fighters.

The reason is the superior combat ability of the air fighters in Australia, achieved in spite of America's failure to produce a fighter plane to match the new Japanese Zero, which is able to outmaneuver, outclimb, outdive, and outfly the P39 [Airacobra] and the P40 [Kittyhawk].

Both American planes use Allison liquid cooled engines and are at their best in medium altitude [15,000 feet] fighting. The enemy's bombers and fighters, however, usually operate at twice that altitude. The American planes are unable to intercept the Japs at that height. American pilots think turbo-supercharged engines would enable them to ride the tails of the Japs, whose new Zero is so fast that it even outdives the Americans.

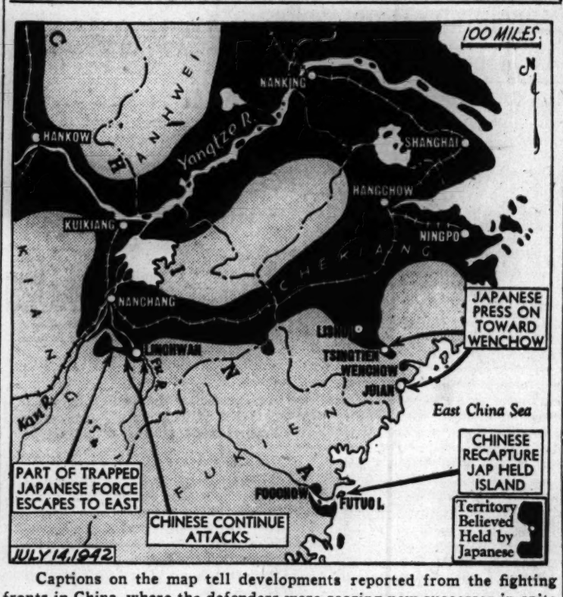
The Day's War News from China



Captions on the map tell developments reported from the fighting fronts in China, where the defenders were scoring new successes in spite of the Jap invaders' extension of operations in other sectors.

CHINESE TROOPS PUSH JAPS OUT OF COASTAL ISLAND

Enemy Forced to Flee to Ships.

CHUNGKING, China, July 13 (AP).—Foochow, one of the two Chinese held ports menaced by twin Japanese drives on the Chekiang-Fukien seaboard, has been relieved by counter-attacking Chinese troops who landed from boats and drove the invaders out of nearby Futuo Island, the Chinese announced today.

The Japanese, who took the island near the Fukien seaport on Thursday, were forced on Saturday to flee to their ships, leaving behind 300 casualties and considerable quantities of supplies.

Threat to Wenchow Acute.

Meanwhile the threat to Wenchow, another port still in Chinese hands, continued acute. The Japanese pressed attacks to the northwest in a drive from Lishui, southeastern Chekiang air base. The Japanese have captured Tsingtien, only 22 miles to the northwest, and have occupied Juian, 13 miles southwest of Wenchow.

Chinese accounts from the Chekiang battlefront were greatly delayed, however. The latest advices covered the situation only up to Friday night. [The Japanese said they occupied Wenchow Saturday night and Sunday morning.]

In Kiangsi province to the northwest, part of a Japanese force of 30,000 reported trapped last week when it started a new offensive westward toward Hunan province, was admitted to have broken the Chinese cordon when Japanese air forces came to the aid of the cornered units.

Pierce Trap and Flee.

Many of the Japanese, surrounded near the east bank of the Kan river on July 11, pierced the encirclement the next morning after an all night battle and fled to the east, the communique said, but the remainder were still trapped.

China's leading newspaper, Ta Kung Pao, appealed to the United States to open a second front against Germany in Europe, start a naval offensive against Japan, and use her air forces both in Europe and Asia.

Pins Faith on U. S.

"Only an American offensive can bring about a successful conclusion of the war," it said.

The newspaper said the talk of a second front recalled the Chinese saying: "There is plenty of noise on the staircase, but nobody comes down."

It predicted the war would reach a turning point this summer or autumn and said: "The force that can turn its course lies in America, especially the American army and navy. The responsibility lies on American shoulders."

Crack Dutch Indies Pilots Coming to U. S. on Mission

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 13 (AP).—Several crack pilots of the Royal Netherlands Indies Air Lines, each of whom has flown more than a million miles, will leave shortly for the United States to take up a new united nations war mission, the Netherlands news agency Aneta said today. In addition, some of the pilots will aid in instructing the approximately 800 Netherlands and Netherlands Indies officers and men now receiving advanced air training at United States flying fields.

STORY OF MARINE CONVOY TO PORT IN SOUTH PACIFIC

Decks Bristle with Guns to Battle Raiders.

Washington, D. C., July 13 [Special].—The story of the voyage by transport convoy thru the Pacific of the first major expeditionary force of United States marines, whose landing at a south Pacific port was announced June 27, was told here today.

From the time of departure marines aboard ship had designated battle stations. Cooks and members of the marine band were assigned as stretcher bearers or to perform utility duties.

Marines manned the five and three inch naval guns of the transports and also brought out their own weapons for use against any enemy submarines, planes or surface raiders. Their Higgins landing boats, carried on deck, bristled with machine guns. Fifty caliber anti-aircraft batteries were set up to augment the guarding of the transports, and 24 hour watches were established at every gun.

Many Sleep on Deck.

Sleeping quarters were arranged with bunks in tiers of four. Air below decks was rather stuffy at night, so most of the marines slept on deck. Some slept in the Higgins boats.

The most popular place aboard ship was the soda fountain. Card playing, sleeping, reading, singing and exercising passed the time.

The marine band, composed of 18 enlisted men, played twice daily—before the noon and evening meals. At dusk the order went out: "Prepare to darken ship." Hatches were sealed, marines and sailors went to quarters and stood by their guns. Port holes were closed.

One night a transport neglected to close a sickbay port hole. The light made the ship a perfect target, but after several tense moments it snapped off.

Learn About "Pollywogs."

As the convoy neared the equator the routine was broken. The terms "shellbacks" and "pollywogs" were heard in the passageways. Sergeants gathered names, checking off men who had already crossed the line.

"Meeting of all the trusty shellbacks on fo'c'sle at 1400 [2 p. m.]; all landlubbers stay clean," the ship's bulletin read one day. That afternoon Davy Jones, royal scribe of the domain of King Neptune, came aboard. A procession filed around the "AA" gun platform foreward.

Leathernecks who laughed at the royal scribe or did not stand at attention received swift punishment, regardless of rank. Sitting down was no pleasure for many junior officers that night.

Old Salts Take Charge.

That night the old salts hazed the "pollywogs." The next morning King Neptune boarded the transport and arranged so that all "pollywogs" could stand trial. By noon all of the ship's company were shellbacks. Traces of cement were present in hair and ears at evening chow. Strange hair cuts were in evidence. Some marines sat a trifle gingerly.

The last days of the voyage were monotonous. The men's spirits skyrocketed when land was sighted off the South Pacific port.

HAWKS ASSAILS U. S. NEGLECT OF ARMING BEFORE PEARL HARBOR

Waukesha, Wis., July 13 [Special].—Former Rep. Charles Hawks Jr., Republican, criticized governmental tardiness in preparing for war in a talk to the Rotary club here today.

"The country actually sent back men who enlisted long before Pearl Harbor because they had no suitable place to stay, and no equipment," Hawks said. "We are indeed fortunate we were not called upon earlier to enter actual battle, for it would have been a slaughter."

Hawks recalled that in May, 1940, he and others suggested overhauling the entire military setup, and urged larger armed forces.

"Those in power woefully neglected their task up to Pearl Harbor, and today they are forced to work twice as hard to compensate for the late start," Hawks said.

$10 TOMMY GUNS DEVELOPED FOR AUSSIES' ARMY

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, July 13.—The Australian army is about to take delivery on two remarkable new submachine guns, each weighing about nine pounds and each of which can be produced in quantity lots at a cost to the government of less than $10.

The manufacturer of the Austen gun, which is an adaptation of the British Sten gun, told the Tribune correspondent today that he expects to turn out the weapon at a cost of from $5.50 to $6.50 each. The second new gun—the Owen—probably will cost just under $10.

Fire .38 Calibre Bullets.

Both weapons already are being produced in limited quantities and involve numerous departures from orthodox gun manufacturing practice. They fire 9 millimeter [.38 calibre] revolver ammunition at a rate of from 500 to 600 shots a minute and are said to meet accuracy standards set for weapons of this type.

Australian army leaders are not disturbed because the two guns do not have the fine finish of the American Thompson submachine gun which is the granddaddy of all tommy guns.

Look Like Toys.

This correspondent, who has spent two days in an Australian small arms school, has seen the new guns in action and can testify that they work. At first glance they look like a toy gun which would fire a cork on the end of a string—but they don't. They spit out a very nasty sounding stream of lead at a high rate of speed.

The Austen gun, the manufacturer said, can be produced in 10 man hours. The Owen takes somewhat longer to make and has a magazine containing 30 rounds of ammunition. Materials for both are available in Australia.

THE great scrap rubber drive has ended with an enormous quantity of rubber added to the national stock pile. How much is not yet known. Nor is it known, as yet, whether it will avert gas rationing in this area.

But it is evident that when President Roosevelt called for action, the American people gave a magnificent response!

The men, women, and children who participated in the drive—from those who gave days of time to those who were able to contribute just a few ounces of rubber—have earned the thanks of the entire country. America needed the rubber. You brought it in. Congratulations on a job well done!

Uncle Sam still needs rubber, and motorists will keep right on saving it. They'll drive slowly, because that saves rubber—particularly in summer when wear increases up to 4 and 5 times. They'll have their tires properly inflated once a week, have them examined monthly for cuts and sharp objects. They'll cross-switch their tires frequently.

In this saving of rubber—as in the conservation of your car—your Standard Oil Dealer is more than willing to help you with expert advice and service. Call on him frequently. You'll find he knows his business. His Station is Car Conservation Headquarters.

FBI TRACES LIVES OF 14 SEIZED AS SABOTEURS' AIDS

Links to Bund Found in Several Instances.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The 14 persons arrested on charges of aiding the Nazi saboteurs landed from U-boats were described by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Max Haupt, 2234 North Fremont street, Chicago, parents of one of the submarine-borne saboteurs, have admitted, Hoover said, that their son informed them of his training as a saboteur in Berlin and of his manner and purpose in coming to America. The son stayed at his parents' home, gave them $2,550 to hide, and they purchased an automobile for him in the father's name.

Mrs. Haupt was fully advised of her son's activities, Hoover said. Both of the elder Haupts were born in Germany, where he served as a soldier during the first World war. He came to the United States in 1923 and was naturalized. Mrs. Haupt also is a naturalized citizen. The elder Haupt belonged to numerous German organizations, including the Association of German World War Veterans, the German Day Association, the Schwaben society and the Deutscher Veteranen Unterstutzungs, Verein of which he is secretary.

Harry and Emma Jaques, 229 West North avenue, Chicago, were the first persons contacted by Hermann Neubauer after the latter's arrival in Florida. The Jaques admitted, Hoover said, that Neubauer told them how and why he came to this country and asked them to hold $3,600 in $5C bills, which FBI agents found hidden in a coffee jar in the Jaques' kitchen. Both of the Jaques were born in Germany. His true name is Andreus Heinrich Jans. He entered the United States in 1924 by jumping the ship on which he was a seaman. Mrs. Jaques came here in 1925.

Knew of Haupt Mission.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richard Wergin, 5416 South Wood street, Chicago, were close friends of the Haupt family and Wergin was contacted by Haupt shortly after his arrival in the United States. Wergin has admitted that Haupt told him of his mission in this country, Hoover said. Wergin was born in Arenswalde, Germany, in 1896, and served in the German navy during the last war. He came to the United States in 1926 and was naturalized at Chicago 10 years later. He attended meetings of the German-American bund and was a member of the Reichsdeutsche Vereinigung and the Germania club in Chicago. Mrs. Wergin also knew of Haupt's mission, Hoover said.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilhelm Froehling, 3643 North Whipple street, Chicago, were described as "important contacts for the German sabotage agents." Froehling is an uncle of Herbert Haupt and was the first person contacted by him in Chicago. Hoover said that "Froehling's name was on the list of persons to be contacted which was approved by the German high command. The saboteurs intended to use the Froehling residence as a hiding place. Froehling admitted, Hoover said, that Haupt left a bag containing $9,950 which was found by FBI agents. Both Mr. and Mrs. Froehling were born in Germany. He arrived in 1926 and was naturalized at Chicago in 1935. Both associated with members of the bund and other German organizations.

Approved as Contact.

Helmut Leiner of New York City, a close friend of Edward John Kerling and himself approved by the German high command as a secret contact for the saboteurs in this country. Kerling contacted him immediately after his arrival. Leiner was born in Germany Aug. 11, 1909, came to the United States in 1929, is a member of the Nazi party, and was associated with the German-American bund. Leiner is not a United States citizen.

Anthony Cramer of New York City, a close friend of Werner Thiel, who is on trial. Thiel contacted Cramer immediately after arrival and turned over to him for safekeeping $3,670, most of which the FBI recovered. Cramer was born in Allendorf Germany, in 1900, and served in the German army during the first World war. He arrived in the United States in 1925 and was naturalized in 1936. He was active in the bund.

Miss Hedwig Engemann of New York City, 35 years old, a native of Brooklyn, was visited by Kerling in New York at the grocery where she works immediately after the Nazi arrived from Florida. She helped Kerling in changing bills and knew that he had landed from a German submarine. She spent her childhood in Germany and returned to the United States in 1928, working as a waitress, domestic and clerk in New York City and Miami Beach, Fla.

Kept $3,600 for Suspect.

Herman Heinrich Faje of New York City, a close friend of Heinrich Heinck, one of the four agents who landed at Amagansett, Long Island, N. Y., from a submarine on June 13. Faje admitted, Hoover said, that Heinck asked him to keep $3,600 which had been brought from Germany. Faje was born in Hamburg, Germany, in 1906 and arrived in the United States in 1928, being naturalized eight years later.

Maria Kerling of New York City, wife of the leader of the Florida group, was born in Germany in 1904 and came to this country in 1926. When Kerling arrived he tried to reach his wife thru Leiner. The latter told Mrs. Kerling of her husband's arrival but she was unable to reach him because he already had been caught. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kerling were members of the Nazi party of Germany.

Ernest Herman Kerkhof of New York City, was described as having been "intimately associated with Maria Kerling, the wife of Edward Kerling, for over a year." He was born in Germany in 1906, came to the United States in 1924 and was naturalized in 1932. He was a member of the Von Hindenburg post of the Kyffhaeuser bund in New York.

FOUR WITNESSES APPEAR BEFORE SEDITION JURORS

Four witnesses appeared yesterday before the special federal grand jury investigating seditious activities. They were Miss Frances L. Dusenberry, proprietor of the New Thought book shop at 17 North State street; Dr. D. J. McDaniel, 1419 East 60th street, a dentist; Otto Brenneman, an artist with offices at 205 West Wacker drive, and Kurt Krause, an official of the Market Publishing company, 129 North Halsted street.

Federal officials said the Market Publishing company previously had printed pamphlets, tickets and stationery for the German-American bund here, but that the officials had coöperated fully and loyally with the investigators.

Evidence is being presented to the jury by William J. Connor and Paul Plunkett, assistants to J. Albert Woll, United States attorney. John T. M. Reddan, special assistant to the United States attorney general, conferred yesterday with local officials to correlate evidence obtained here and by other investigating agencies thruout the country.

FBI ARRESTS 8 HERE, 6 IN N. Y. AS AIDS OF SPIES

U. S. Says All Knew How Nazis Came to U. S.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—As the secret trial of eight Nazi saboteurs landed by U-boat in Florida and Long Island entered its fifth day, the department of justice today announced the arrest of 14 alleged accomplices, eight from Chicago and six from New York.

Included among those seized are Mr. and Mrs. Hans Max Haupt, Chicago, parents of Herbert Haupt, one of the eight spies on trial, and Mrs. Marie Marie Kerling, New York, wife of Edward John Kerling, leader of the four Nazis landed in Florida.

The announcement of the round-up of 14 additional persons, including eight men and six women, was made by Attorney General Francis Biddle just before the military commission, before which the Nazis are on trial for their lives, recessed for lunch. The 14 additional persons accused in the plot are said by the justice department to have served as contacts for the Nazi agents and to have given them assistance. The investigation is continuing, according to the justice department announcement.

As usual, the proceedings of the closely guarded trial of the saboteurs in the ornate justice department building were veiled in secrecy. The only disclosures on the day's developments at the trial were contained in two terse communiques from Maj. Gen. Frank McCoy, president of the commission, in which he said the morning session and part of the afternoon session were devoted to continued cross-examination by the defense of an FBI agent who participated in the investigation and later in the afternoon to "examination and cross-examination of certain other government witnesses."

According to a statement from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, the 14 additional persons under arrest were "the immediate contacts of the Nazi secret agents who were landed on the Long Island and Florida coasts from German U-boats after having received detailed instructions in a sabotage school near Berlin in the methods of destroying vital war industries and transportation facilities."

Bought Auto for Saboteurs.

"The individuals apprehended," Hoover continued, "are known to have given shelter to the saboteurs after their arrival in New York and Chicago and to have furnished them assistance which would have aided the foreign agents in their sabotage activities in the United States. One of the individuals assisted by purchasing an automobile for the use of one of the agents in transporting the explosives and other material recovered by FBI agents on the Atlantic shore on Long Island and Florida."

These accomplices, said Hoover, assisted the Nazi agents in concealing part of the $176,000 so far recovered which the saboteurs brought with them to finance their mission of death and disaster. They helped to change bills of large denomination for the Nazis and kept part of the money for them, according to Hoover. None of the 14 persons, altho aware of the arrival of the Nazi agents in this country, made any attempt to report the information to the FBI, he charged.

Charges Not Specified.

So far, the justice department has not described its specific charges against the 14 accomplices. Four of them are aliens and could be charged with espionage, for which the death penalty can be exacted. The eight American citizens could be charged with treason, for which the top penalty also is execution.

Hoover listed the persons seized as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Haupt, 2234 North Fremont street; Harry Jacques and his wife, Emma, 229 West North avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richard Wergin, 5416 South Wood street; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilhelm Froehling, 3643 North Whipple street, all of Chicago; and Maria Kerling, Helmut Leiner, Anthony Cramer, Miss Hedwig Engemann, Ernest Herman Kerkhof, and Herman Heinrich Faje, all of New York City.

4 MORE ARRAIGNED AS BUND LEADERS IN NATION-WIDE DRIVE

New York, July 13 (AP)—Four men who the government says directed Bund activities in New York, New Jersey, Indiana and Pennsylvania, pleaded innocent today to indictments resulting from the government's drive to smash the Bund. The defendants were among 29 persons indicted a week ago by a special federal grand jury.

They were John C. Fitting, 56 years old, of Union City, N. J.; Herman Agne, 30, of Philadelphia; Louis Schatz, 42, an optician, of Troy, N. Y.; and Ferdinand Callsen, 57, of South Bend, Ind.

Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver held each in $10,000 bail for trial July 28.

Of the 29 men indicted, 18 have been arraigned, all pleading innocent excepting John A. Grill, a 37-year-old Brooklyn baker, who pleaded guilty.

RETRIAL DENIED CONVICTED AID OF ESCAPED NAZI

Detroit, Mich., July 13 (AP).—Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle today denied a motion for a new trial for Max Stephan, who was convicted July 2 of treason against the United States. No date has been set for sentencing. The death penalty is possible.

Defense Counsel Vern C. Amberson asserted the government had presented proof showing only that Stephan had aided Hans Peter Krug, German flying officer who had escaped from a Canadian internment camp as an individual. Judge Tuttle had instructed the jury it find that Stephan had helped the German government thru Krug and not just Krug himself.

"It seems to me there not only was proof to show that Stephan had intent to help Germany, but it is difficult to prove that he had any other intent," Judge Tuttle said today.

TESTS INDICATE RADICAL CHANGE IN PLANE DESIGN

Pusher Type Propulsion, Buried Engines Seen.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Within the next two or three years the army air corps may have its pilots flying types of combat planes radically different from those of the present, it was disclosed here today. The craft of the future—as yet in experimental stages of development—not only will differ in appearance from today's craft but will have materially improved performances.

The aircraft industry's best brains, seeking the utmost in speed, and in load carrying capacities for range, armor, and armament, are turning toward the following expedients to obtain the required results:

1. Use of fully controllable pitch propellers turning against one another off the same driveshaft.

2. Reversion to pusher type propulsion for all kinds of craft—whether single or multi-engined.

3. Burying of engines in wings or in the bodies of aircraft with the use of extension shafting to propellers.

4. Universal adoption of the tricycle landing gear, which now is found only on a few advanced types of pursuit planes and bombers.

Drawings Show Trend.

Illustrative of these trends is the series of drawings issued last winter by the design development unit at Wright field, Dayton, O., headquarters of the army air corps material division.

At that time no explanation was made for their release, nor was any attempt made by the army's engineers to point out the various factors that caused these drawings, reproduced in color in this issue of THE TRIBUNE, to appear so strange to eyes accustomed to military and commercial airplanes in service around the world today.

A set of those drawings was produced here this afternoon by one of the country's foremost aeronautical experts. Using this official release as an illustration of his talk, he proceeded to explain the direction of current aeronautical thought and to give point to the hitherto meaningless army pictures.

Variations of a Theme.

"Look at every one of these army planes," said this man whose identity cannot be disclosed. "It is obvious that all these conceptions are variations of the same general theme, to wit: Counter-rotating props off a single driveshaft, transfer of propellers from pulling to pushing positions, burial of engines to reduce resistance at high speed, and universal adoption of the tricycle landing gear.

"To an engineer who is unbiased in his thinking it makes little difference whether an airplane propeller is at the tail of a craft, at its nose, or attached to the wings, either on the leading edge or trailing edge. Some installations are best for one purpose, others for another.

"The industry has known for a long time wind tunnel tests indicate that pusher propellers will be more efficient—and consequently give more power or speed—than equivalent puller or tractor propellers.

Nose Engines Cause Drag.

"We have known for a long time that engines carried in the nose of a plane or countersunk into the leading edges of wings cause a great deal of drag or resistance. We pay for this inefficient placing by losses in power and speed. Burial of them in the body of a craft, as in the case of the Bell P-39 Airacobra pursuit plane, pays dividends in many ways. That is what the army has done with these 'dream' ships of the future."

As for the use of counter-rotating propellers off the same driveshaft, he said that a number of such propellers already were in existence and had proved successful in test. The latest such propellers, he added, are American designs under construction by a General Motors subsidiary. They can be feathered in flight and have their pitch changed to hold any given crankshaft speed desired. This is the same control as exercised on the two, three, and four bladed propellers rotating in one direction in general use today.

Lighter Propellers Possible.

"Construction of the new high power engines have driven the propeller makers to this counter-rotating propeller," the aerodynamist explained.

"Single rotation propellers to absorb 1,500 to 2,500 horse power must be heavy, have long blades [making for difficult ground clearance problems], and impart strong torque pulls to aircraft. But by making a dual rotation propeller off a single driveshaft, engineers can use smaller, lighter propellers turning at higher speeds. Because they turn against each other they blanket out torque effects. And there are no problems of ground clearance."

This designer said that the snipe design, as shown by the army, is quite similar to the Focke-Wulf 198, one of Germany's latest single engine fighters. It also is similar to a plane suggested a year or more ago by Clarence L. Johnson, chief research engineer of the Lockheed Aircraft corporation.

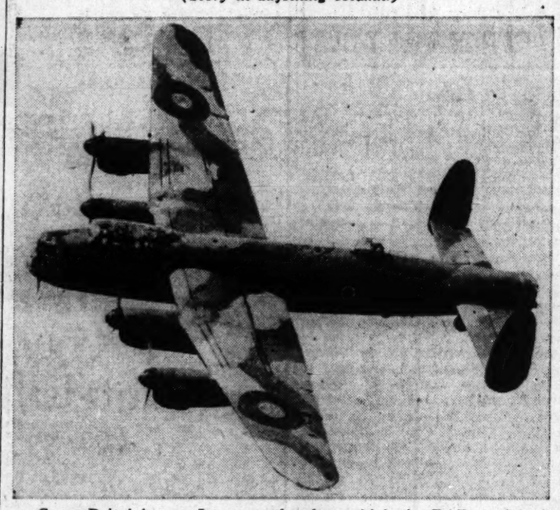
The army's bat design, with its tricycle gear, pusher dual rotation propellers, and buried engine, is not dissimilar, he said, to planes now being constructed.

A plane with its propeller at its tail was constructed prior to 1914, this engineer said, showing that the windmill type with the propeller behind the tail rudder and elevators is not essentially a new conception. The whole idea of the pusher propellers, and the use of two opposite turning propellers to blanket out torque, was first tried by the Wright brothers in their first airplane, he pointed out.

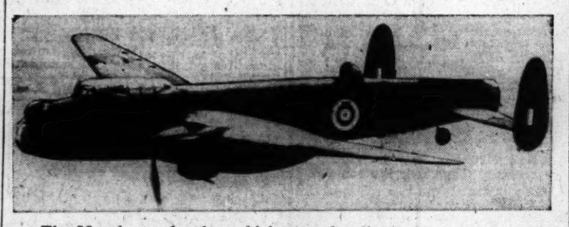
In suggesting these types of planes the material division's design development men are merely holding out to the industry certain possibilities, it was explained.

The Evolution of a British Bomber

(Story in adjoining column.)



Great Britain's new Lancaster bomber, which the RAF used in its daylight air raid on Germany's submarine yards at Danzig on Saturday. The four engine craft is the outgrowth of disappointments experienced in attempting to power the two engine Manchester bomber with a new type engine. The Lancaster is powered with four Rolls Royce Merlin engines.



The Manchester bomber which proved a disappointment because its new power plants failed to perform satisfactorily. The Manchester was powered with two Rolls Royce Vulture engines, a type that later was abandoned. [Associated Press Wirephotos.]

BRITAIN UNVEILS HER FASTEST 4 ENGINE BOMBER

Difficulties in Developing Motor Disclosed.

Publication of the first photographs of the Avro Lancaster bomber, newest and said to be the fastest British four engined plane, also is the occasion of a public confession by British authorities that rush development in wartime of a high horse power aircraft engine can run into insurmountable difficulties.

The confession concerns the procurement of engines to power both the Lancaster and its predecessor, the Avro Manchester. Except for engines there is little difference in the two craft. Both are heavy bombers, total loaded weight being over 56,000 pounds. Both will fly at about 300 miles an hour and have a range of about 2,000 miles with several tons of bombs.

The Avro company first built the Manchester. The motors used in this version were Rollys-Royce Vultures. The Vulture engine was a new type—a 24 cylinder motor delivering over 2,000 horse power for takeoff, and 1,710 horse power at 15,000 feet. Only two of these engines were used for each Manchester and both they and the airplane were highly praised when first put into action.

Faults Appear in Service.

Within a few months, however, service in the field and during bombing raids over Germany proved that the Vulture engine had a number of serious faults. Attempts were made over a period of a year or more to correct them. Changes were made and modifications tried. None was successful. So the British recently halted all production on this type and directed the Rolls-Royce engineers to concentrate their efforts on obtaining more power from the smaller 12 cylinder V type Merlin engine.

Production of the Manchester was halted simultaneously. Avro engineers redesigned the 95 foot wing of the plane to take four of the smaller Merlin motors which deliver 1,250 horse power each at 12,250 feet. All the Manchesters already in service also were called back to the factory to have the engine changes made.

The net result is that the Lancaster has more power than the Manchester; about 4,800 horse power as compared to 4,000 horse power for takeoff. The Lancaster is said to be slightly faster but carries a smaller load.

Fighters Kept from Combat.

The decision to halt production on the X type 24 cylinder Vulture engine also affects the British fighter plane production plans. The Hawker company, builder of the world famous Hurricane series of fighters, have a new model out which was, in one version, to take the Vulture engine. Abandonment of this motor, however, leaves the new fighter with only one source of power—the Napier Sabre 24 cylinder engine of 2,400 horse power for takeoff.

This Hawker plane with the Sabre is known as the Typhoon. Several squadrons have been equipped with the planes, say British aeronautical publications, but difficulties in servicing the Sabre engines have kept even these from combat.

CHARGES YOUTHS 'BUY' IMMUNITY TO DRAFT BY GOING TO COLLEGE

Baltimore, Md., July 13 (AP).—Maj. Louis E. Lamborn, principal of McDonogh school, advocated today the drafting of all youths upon graduation from high school or upon their 18th birthday, whichever occurs first.

The military school head declared that "young men today are buying their way out of the draft for four years by going to college, just as they bought freedom with cash in the Civil war.

"The only democratic answer is to draft all of them and then to assign those of high capacity to colleges for further education."

He indorsed government loans or subsidies to youths of college quality who are unable to pay their own way.

"Young men of relative wealth," Lamborn said, "are able to buy four years of immunity from the draft by attending colleges and taking a few specified courses. Much more able youths, thru poverty, are often unable to attend colleges and accordingly enter the armed forces at 20 lacking the training they both deserve and should have."

New Zealand Gets Jeeps and 11 Ton U.S. Tanks

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, July 13.—Widening of the flow of American arms to help equip the New Zealand army for a Pacific counter-blow was disclosed in official announcements here today. The first disclosure was that 11 ½-ton American tanks, named the Gen. Jeb Stuart, have arrived here. The news was also released today that the army now has jeeps as regular equipment.

RAF Bombers Again Strike at Objectives in Germany

LONDON, July 14 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Bombers of the Royal air force attacked objectives in Germany last night for the fourth time this month, authoritative British sources said today. Details were not immediately available. Yesterday afternoon American produced Boston bombers attacked railroad yards at Boulogne, France, and also swept over the Abbeville area.

REPORT NORSE GET BONUS FOR FINDING MINES

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 13.—Activity of British minelayers off the coast of Norway has led the Nazi authorities of Tromsoe to offer 500 Norwegian kroner [about $226] reward for every mine found by the population, news dispatches said today.

The offer as reported carried in newspapers says: "A short time ago the enemy dropped mines in the archipelago with the object of making coastal traffic more difficult. The population of the coast is requested herewith to inform the German authorities whenever one or several mines are seen. Those who give the information will be rewarded by 500 kroner. It is in the interest of the population to see that this appeal is responded to."

German authorities in Norway are advertising also for a large number of watchdogs to be placed in military establishments as a guard against sabotage, it was reported.

GERMANS SEIZE MORE HOSTAGES IN NETHERLANDS

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—The German controled Dutch radio announced today that a large number of new hostages had been seized in Holland in a drive against anti-German activities.

An official proclamation said the lives of the hostages would be forfeit if acts of sabotage continue.

"The population holds the safety of these compatriots in its own hands," said the announcement.

TELLS HOW SUBSTITUTE FLYERS BID $100 FOR PART IN TOKIO BOMBING

Houston, Tex., July 13 (AP).—Bomber crews who spread destruction and panic in Japan in April turned their backs on all folding money bids for their places. Lieut. Rodney R. Wilder, pilot of one of the planes, said today that volunteer substitutes had offered $100 and $150 for places in the planes.

"On the morning we began making preparations for the takeoff and it was found that no one of the original crews had given any sort of an excuse for not making the trip, the substitutes were a plenty sick lot," he smiled. "Some offered $100 and others ran the price up to $150 to get a spot on the planes. But the original crew members had no idea of giving up a ringside seat or the pitcher's box in one of the greatest games they had ever heard of."

Piloting his plane over Tokio proper, he related seeing on one of the main streets of Tokio "an old boy standing out in the middle of the street, making movies of us."

INTERNED PRIEST OUTTALKS JAPS; THEY FREE HIM

Ossining, N. Y., July 13 [Special].—Father Maurice Feeney of Albany, one of the 40 Maryknoll missionaries interned since December in Hongkong by the Japanese, has induced his captors to release him, a letter received at Maryknoll headquarters here from Father Joseph McGinn of Philadelphia, Pa., whom Father Feeney has joined in South China, said today.

"Father Feeney," the letter explained, "had bluff and daring and on the strength of it got out of Hongkong. He went before the Japanese and explained calmly and convincingly that while he was an American citizen, he was of Irish descent and that Ireland was not at war with the axis.

"Several of the Irish Jesuits had previously been freed, and Father Maurice was likewise given a pass."

ADMINISTRATION OPENS FIGHT TO KILL OPA CURBS

Barkley Leads Battle to Give Agency Power.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The administration went to bat in the senate today against weakening of its price control authority, with Democratic Leader Alben Barkley [Ky.] telling the chamber it would be unfortunate if the people got the impression senators were "more interested in patronage than in winning the home front battle."

Demanding a delay in all controversial votes until the 43 senators he said were absent could return to the city, Barkley served notice he intends to fight for elimination of restrictions on the price control administration written into a $1,856,000,000 supplemental money bill by the senate appropriations committee. [A quorum call listed 61 senators present, with 35 absentees.]

If the restrictions were approved, he declared, Price Administrator Leon Henderson "would be so limited he would have no authority whatsoever."

Hits Farm Amendment.

The committee increased to $140,000,000 the $75,000,000 previously voted by the house to finance a year's operation of the Office of Price Administration, but stipulated that none of this money should be used to pay subsidies. It also tied up Henderson's authority to fix prices on processed agricultural commodities.

Barkley raised his chief objections to the farm amendment and to a provision requiring senate confirmation of all OPA employés receiving $4,500 or higher yearly salaries. It was the latter requirement which he asserted might "create the impression that we are more interested in patronage than in winning the home front battle."

This battle, he said, was against uncontroled inflation and the Democratic leader warned that if Henderson lacks authority to keep down prices on food, shoes, clothing and other articles there was no telling to what heights they might rise.

Gas Price an Issue.

Barkley opposed a committee approved amendment requiring that the Secretary of Agriculture determine the maximum price on processed farm commodities before Henderson could act, with the specification that the price must reflect 110 per cent parity returns to farmers. Parity is a price calculated to give farmers returns equal to those of a past period, usually 1909-'14.

The committee also provided that no OPA funds could be used to enforce a 2½ cent a gallon gasoline price increase in states where there had been no increase in the cost of transportation of the fuel because of the withdrawal of tankers, and barred the fixing of varying prices on hardwood lumber within a single state.

'Inexhaustible' List.

It made another change in house language which members said was designed to prevent the OPA from turning over confidential business information, obtained by questionnaire, to other government agencies.

Barkley said the list of commodities which would be placed under the 110 per cent parity provision would be "inexhaustible" if the committee amendment was adopted.

"It would include suits, shoes and practically everything purchased," he declared.

OPEN 6TH CORPS 'REHEARSAL' FOR REAL WARFARE

Wadesboro, N. C., July 13 (AP).—Battle practice, promising to feature "smashing offensive tactics, marked by teamwork of ground, air, and armored forces," began in the Carolinas maneuver area today with the 6th army corps taking the field to start the three months' long training program.

An announcement from the headquarters of Maj. Gen. E. J. Dawley, maneuver director, said the first problem envisioned a Red army located in the vicinity of Columbia, S. C., preparing to move to the northeast, and a Blue army concentrating near Asheboro.

"This may be the last dress rehearsal before the shooting for keeps starts for many of you," Gen. Dawley told the officers of the corps.

NAVY TO SET UP AERIAL TRAINING BASE IN KANSAS

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The navy announced today that a new naval reserve aviation base would be established in Hutchinson, Kas., to provide facilities for 800 student aviators.

The base will be ready to receive its first student flyers early this winter, the navy predicted. Completion of the base will raise to 19 the number in this country. The training centers get their students from one or more of the toughening schools established at the universities of Georgia, Iowa, and North Carolina, and at St. Mary's college in California.

Navy Casualties

1¾ SHIPS BUILT AT SAME TIME TO SPEED OUTPUT

Tacoma, Wash., July 13 (AP).—Shipbuilding on the assembly line principle took another step today when the navy announced the Seattle-Tacoma Shipbuilding corporation is constructing in quantity one tanker and three-fourths of a second tanker on the same launching way at the same time.

The method calls for the tankers to be launched bow first. One-fourth of the second tanker, including the bow, in prefabricated sections, is assembled in other parts of the shipyard and set in place on the ways for final assembly after the first tanker is launched.

As fast as one tanker is launched, another one, partly completed, slides down the ways and its prefabricated bow is welded on, while in the space it vacated work is started on three-fourths of a third tanker.

Many days are saved by launching the ship's bow first because it gives workmen opportunity to work on the sterns of two vessels at the same time.

Cyrus McCormick Leaves Executive Post with OPA

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Cyrus McCormick, automobile price executive of the Office of Price administration, has resigned, an OPA spokesman said today. He said it was understood that McCormick, a resident of New Mexico and a grandson of the original reaper manufacturer, had left his $1 a year position to accept an army commission. Importance of his price section had dwindled because of the cessation of automobile manufacture.

House Bill Would Link Army Pay to Steel Wages

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Rep. Robert F. Rich [R., Pa.] proposed today that compensation for men in the armed forces be geared to that of steel workers. He introduced the bill to require that whenever, as a result of action by the National War Labor board, the compensation of workers in the steel industry was increased by $1 or more daily, members of the land, air, and naval forces would automatically receive the same amount of increase.

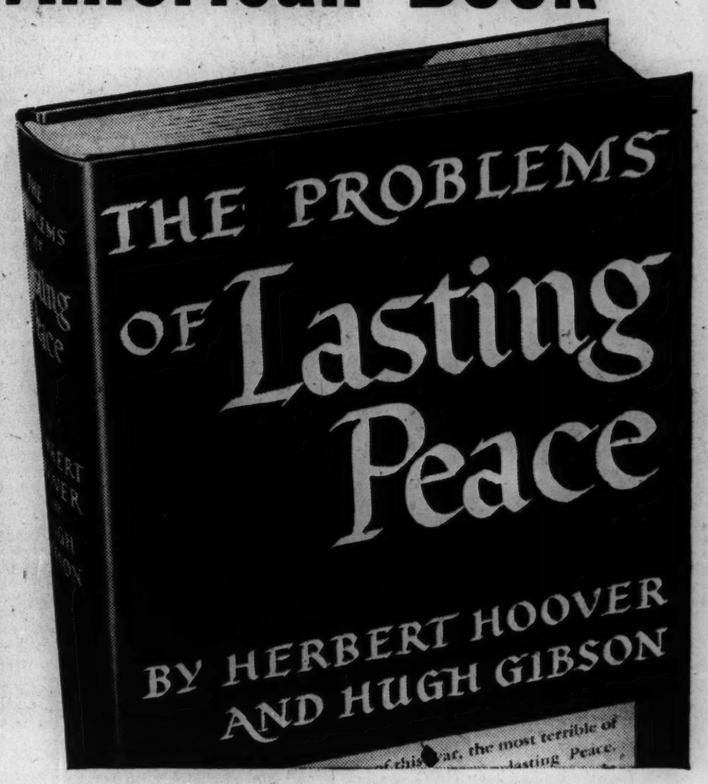
Nationwide Praise for a Great American Book



CHICAGO

CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE (Penny Butcher). "Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson, two Americans as closely concerned as any others with the aftermath of the first World war and its inconclusive . . . a book of the greatest importance to every American of good will . . . They have subjected history to the cold surgery of analysis and have presented their findings as clinically, as unemotionally, and as revealingly as a surgeon's report."

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS (Harry M. Beardsley). "Here is a book that is required reading for all who hope for peace in our time or at any other time . . . It is to be recommended as a tonic for all who are confused, bewildered, and befuddled in their thinking about the state of the universe . . . It is to be recommended to all who practice, or aspire to practice, the writing trade, as a model to be emulated in presenting a controversial subject so as to shed light rather than to generate heat and to stimulate thoughful consideration . . . Factually, objectively, without emotion, without recrimination, and without messianic evangelism, the authors anayize the part these factors have played in peace and war during the 165 years since the American and French revoluions. With the same objectivity they suggest formulae for curbing those factors that make for war and fostering those that make for peace . . . If the various peoples that compose what we are pleased to think of as the human race really have any desire for a lasting peace, and if they have any power of objective self-analysis, the principles here outlined can serve as the starting point for the prolonged educational process that must precede any effort to implement such 'will to peace' as may exist. Men have received the Nobel Peace Prize for contributions that seem to me to have been less fundamental and less significant than this book . . ."

CHICAGO HERALD-AMERICAN and 8 other Hearst papers. ". . . Will have significant place in literature of these critical years. Both write with authority . . . its merits are in analysis and definition of the constant gathering forces . . . We want a peace that will last . . . Can it be done? Yes, it can be done . . . It has never been done before but it will be done in time. We will surely try . . . The book which Mr. Hoover and Mr. Gibson have written is part of that effort."

INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITIES

GENERAL CHARLES G. DAWES, Former Vice-President of the United States. "This book is a product of genius and high statesmanship . . . It should become a permanent authority and source book."

FRANK O. LOWDEN. "A great book . . . most timely. The air is full of vague and impractical dreams . . . This book, sane, practical and unimpassioned comes at the right time." "With substantial circulation in the Axis countries, it might well hasten the end of the war. Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson have done a great work . . ."

BAINBRIDGE COLBY, Secretary of State, Wilson Cabinet. ". . . I cannot but think that a masterwork such as this which clarifies the aims of the United Nations will prove a major contribution to the victory."

MAJOR GENERAL FRANK R. McCOY, President of the Foreign Policy Association. ". . . We have, in this book, the ever present help of responsible men of the most valued experience."

ADMIRAL WILLIAM V. PRATT, Former Chief of Naval Operations. ". . . This book . . . lays the foundation stones upon which the house of peace may be erected later."

J. REUBEN CLARK, Jr., Former Under Secretary of State. "Should be read by every true American, studied in every high school and college . . . we would come nearer placing the United States in its proper place in world affairs."

JAMES R. ANGELL, former President of Yale University. ". . . I only hope it may have the widest possible reading. Its clear analyses and the wisdom and sanity of its conclusions . . . cannot fail to exercise a most wholesome influence."

JAMES T. SHOTWELL, Chairman, the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace. "The method of presentation is a stroke of genius . . ."

THOMAS J. WATSON, former president, International Chamber of Commerce. ". . . should be read and studied by the thinking people of all nations."

RABBI NORMAN GERSTENFELD, Washington Hebrew Congregation. ". . . This . . . book will be found invaluable for . . . winning the peace. It ought to be read by every American citizen . . ."

COLUMNISTS AND COMMENTATORS

DAVID LAWRENCE. "Every once in a while men with governmental experience and background give themselves unreservedly to the preparation of a book done objectively, fairly, nonpolitically, they perform a service of transcendent value to their fellow citizens. Such a book—it may prove the most valuable work of our times—has just been published by Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson . . . a truly American statement of what might be termed practical idealism. The book will help Europeans as well as Americans . . ."

WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS, Washington. ". . . So objective and so thorough is this work that what they have produced is nothing less than a state paper and will be so regarded here . . . They . . . blaze a trail for a durable peace . . . they insist again and again that the American people must begin right now to 'think of the problems of peace and think in a far larger frame than ever before'. Such being the case, they can do no better than to start with this book."

FRANK KENT. "Its great value is its contribution of fundamental sanity to the discussion and the convincing completeness with which it marshals and analyzes the basic facts which cannot be ignored if finally civilization is to save itself. The background of the book is the skillful and impressive summing up of the record . . . The long quest for effective international co-operation has never been as lucidly nor as forcefully presented. Aside from the thoughtful and penetrating interpretation of facts and ideas, the book is remarkable for the exceedingly practical suggestions for dealing with hitherto insoluble economic, social and racial problems. It is notable also for its fairness . . ."

EARL GODWIN. "The remarkable book . . . An amazing study of the things it takes to insure a lasting peace."

ARTHUR KROCK. "The important book by Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson."

CHESTER ROWELL. ". . . the book . . . is a major contribution. These men will not be suspected of militarism, New Dealism or economic radicalism. They know more about the problem than any other person now alive, the most objective factual and thoughtful analysis of it that has yet appeared . . . And you cannot, if you use your brains, escape its major conclusion . . ."

LOWELL THOMAS. "This volume . . . is memorable . . . few authors have been better fitted . . ."

BOAKE CARTER. ". . . the meekness and spiritual essence . . . in this monumental piece of research . . . This book is due to become one of the permanent works of American history and of the God-ordained mission that is this nation's destiny . . . This book . . . is a pillar of strength in this generation . . ."

RAYMOND MOLEY. "The amazing equipment each of these men brought to the job, the unexampled detachment . . . the freshness and constructive work of these men. They have performed an invaluable service. From here on no thinking of the postwar world can ignore the job . . have done. They have truly raised a standard to which wise and honest people regardless of party may repair. And that is statesmanship of a high order."

EDITORS

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, Editor, The Emporia Gazette. "I do not recall when I have read a book which seems so timely, so sane, and at the same time so full of courage . . . The making of this book is a great patriotic service . . . a brave path toward a new world resting upon realizable ideals."

WILLIAM L. CHENERY, Editor of Collier's. "A scholarly and statesmanlike approach to a problem of enormous difficulty which every thoughtful American is searching to solve . . . A powerful stimulant to honest and clear thinking."

FELIX MORLEY, Former Editor, The Washington Post. ". . . It is no exaggeration to say that this guide book for the discovery of happier world is what men of goodwill in every country have been eagerly, though none too hopefully, awaiting."

FULTON OURSLER, Former Editor of Liberty Magazine. "An able, constructive work of major importance; a fresh approach to a gigantic problem; a wise book; a book generous in spirit."

WHEELER McMILLEN, Editor, The Farm Journal. "The road map for humanity is in The Problems of Lasting Peace . . . those methods that must be utilized if a truly durable peace is to be the fruit of victory. It has the distilled essence of tolerant realism."

DR. DANIEL A. POLING, Editor, Christian Herald. "This book is timely and imperative. I congratulate the authors on the tone and temper and comprehensive statesmanship of what has been written. They have produced a source library for the peace-makers."

REVIEWS AND EDITORIALS

NEW YORK TIMES (Anne O'Hare McCormick). "The position and the experience of the authors would make this book of first importance . . . It is more than a literary event . . . This book makes a new approach to the problems of peace and war . . . It traces the outline of history that makes the efforts of H. G. Wells seem diffuse and compendious . . . Mr. Hoover was a noninterventionist before we were forced into the conflict but in no sense was he ever an isolationist . . . The truth about Mr. Hoover is that he has remained as typically American as his native Iowa . . . It is because his reactions are so often typical that this book has such significance and value . . . it is an honest, courageous contribution to a debate that will mean the fate of our country and the world."

NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM (Harry Hansen). "Their book should lead to clarification of the Atlantic Charter . . . and help us keep abreast of peace aims."

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS and WASHINGTON TIMES HERALD (Alicia Patterson). "How can we achieve lasting peace? . . . These questions are thoughtfully analyzed and evaluated by two gentlemen who know what they are talking about . . . This is one of the soundest and fairest judgments of war and peace to come out of the current debacle."

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE (Mark Sullivan). "The personal participation of two exceptionally intelligent and humane men in the most ambitious attempts at peace ever made, coupled with the scholarly study of all man's attempts at peace, give this book unique value."

TIME MAGAZINE. "In a thoughtful book . . . provides a sense-making frame to help clarify postwar thinking . . ."

BOSTON HERALD (George W. Long). "A book of unusual significance . . . It is decidedly more than a literary event . . . It is to men like the authors of this book that America must listen . . . certain deductions from the past, hard lessons which we should and must have learned by now. They are the blocks and mortar of a durable peace . . . a courageous contribution to thinking."

BOSTON POST (William E. Barrett). "'Nations can blunder into war. They cannot blunder into peace.' It is a phrase to remember. Herbert Hoover has seen the waging of war and the making of peace. The pooling of experience which created this book . . . remarkable for its detachment, its lack of political bias, its freedom from war hatred or race prejudice . . . No review can do justice to this book . . . It is a book that will outlive our time."

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR (Edwin D. Canham). "Out of the experience of long careers devoted largely to problems of world order . . . two wise Americans now give their Nation invaluable advice . . . The book, which is written with rare simplicity and clarity . . . should be read by every American . . . of incomparable timeliness . . . Volumes of comment could be written on the lucid and vigorous summaries given . . . a tremendous step toward national unity and peace thinking, and should do incalculable good."

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER. "A stimulating study of the dynamic forces in peace and war based on the combined realism and idealism which is the essence of statesmanship."

PHILADELPHIA RECORD. "No one now studying the all-important questions of peace and postwar plans can afford to overlook this thoughtful and stimulating book."

CLEVELAND NEWS. "Two men better qualified . . . could scarcely be found . . . a stroke of luck for the hundreds of thousands of serious-minded Americans who are earnestly searching for a solid foundation . . . The authors' qualifications will not be doubted by any one who reads well into the book . . . This thoroughly scholarly undertaking . . ."

THE CINCINNATI POST (Carl D. Groat). "'The Problems of Lasting Peace' makes a valuable challenge to America as to the future . . ."

INDIANAPOLIS STAR (Corbin Patrick). ". . . is expressed with great sincerity and conviction . . . They rank as elder statesmen . . . and are remembered with gratitude by the peoples of oppressed Europe. No one in a better position to know . . ."

FORT WAYNE NEWS SENTINEL (Virginia Coverdale). "It is good to hear such sane words in frantic times like these. It is good, also, to know that men of vast experience in international relations still have hope, still have the courage to work and plan for permanent peace . . . is cheering . . . is steadying."

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA, TRIBUNE (Editorial). "Without cynicism, airy idealism, political partisanship or diplomatic evasion . . . a profound discussion of the world peace problem . . . both men are among the most experienced in the world . . . They are neither Utopians nor depressing pessimists . . . is required reading for every American."

PEORIA (Illinois) STAR. "Readers will like 'The Problems of Lasting Peace' . . . as precisely as a machine is constructed from a blueprint and sets the complicated and perplexing problems of war and peace in a pattern easy to understand."

DUBUQUE IOWA TELEGRAPH HERALD. "The plausible fallacy of economic determinism—the theory that world wars are inevitable until the nations create a sort of communism of natural resources—is exploded pretty thoroughly in 'The Problems of Lasting Peace' . . . goes straight to the roots of the problem, cutting sharply through the superficialities with which German propagandists and misguided economists confused the issue . . ."

MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE (Editorial). ". . . an earnest, liberal, practical book . . . sure to influence thinking . . . Everybody who wants to get closer to bedrock . . . will find rewarding reading . . . packed with meat . . . The authors have made an intensively honest, impartial effort to help raise . . . 'a standard to which the wise and honest can repair.'"

MILWAUKEE JOURNAL (Arthur M. Follows). "While several recent books have dealt with . . . lasting peace, the Hoover-Gibson contribution is a different, and, in many ways, a more practical treatment . . . a book that will be much quoted."

KANSAS CITY STAR (Editorial). ". . . It ought to be possible to make a peace that will last longer than the peace that followed Versailles . . . A keen analysis of the problem is embodied in a new book . . . Both men have had unusual training . . . a helpful book."

THE TULSA TRIBUNE (Editorial). ". . . A lot of loose writing is finding its way to periodical presses on the subject of 'What We Are Fighting For.' For the most part these answers are trite. Shallow. No men are so qualified to speak . . . should be compulsory reading in every secondary school and in every one of our colleges for at least a decade of years. Here, for the first time, we have a chart for purposeful peace pilots . . . the most important message that has been addressed to the American people . . . Here, at last . . . is the charted course for that 'Peace On Earth and Good Will Toward Men' . . ."

SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE (Joseph Henry Jackson). "It is no use to say, 'Oh, but the peace makers will take care of us' . . . The peace makers took care of it for us once . . . If we look forward to anything real in the way of peace we'd better inform ourselves. How to make sure of this? One way is to read The Problems of Lasting Peace . . . You should go to the book itself . . . most significant . . ."

LOS ANGELES TIMES (Ralph W. Trueblood). "No more valuable aid than that contained in the just-published book . . . Among men living, no other two as well qualified to treat the subject . . . No summary could do it justice . . . literary art which makes them entertainingly and profitably readable . . . There is no vague idealism or lack of courageous conviction . . . should be immensely valuable to the people."

MAGNESIUM FIRM WORK IN MUDDLE, SAYS SEN. BUNKER

Assails New Contract for Competent Direction.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Sen. Berkeley L. Bunker [D., Nev.] told the senate today that the Defense Plants corporation had signed a contract to pay a New York firm $100,000 "to provide competent management" for the operation of a mining project at Las Vegas, Nev., by Basic Magnesium, Inc.

Referring to Basic Magnesium as "the company that stands to make a profit of 4,280 per cent on an investment of less than $50,000," Bunker said that "gross mismanagement on the part of Basic Magnesium officials was established" in an investigation by the senate defense investigating committee.

"Altho Jesse Jones made a feeble and unsuccessful attempt to justify the miserable progress and delay on the part of Basic officials, yet he was willing to spend $100,000 to correct the same," Bunker declared.

Old Contract in Effect.

He said that on April 9 Defense Plants corporation had signed a management contract with Coverdale & Colpitts of New York City.

"This expenditure does not revoke the contract previously made with the incompetents of Basic Magnesium," he declared. "It is to be paid by the Defense Plant corporation altho it should be deducted from the $300,000 Basic Magnesium is to receive for work it was incapable of doing."

Bunker said that on June 15 test drilling had not been completed on the Basic claims, "notwithstanding the fact that the government had spent $5,000,000 for a plant to process the ore."

"It is intensely interesting to know that the contract for the ore has not been signed," Bunker continued, "altho the plant should start operation and production of magnesium some time in August. There are claims adjacent to the ore reduction plant which no doubt could be obtained should the present source of ore prove unsatisfactory, or other claims thruout the state.

Question of War Profit.

"The question is, should Basic Magnesium be permitted to exact an exorbitant wartime profit on all or any ore supply?"

Bunker read from a report by P. H. Rustin of the auditing division of the Defense Plant corporation, the following statements:

"There is need for more effective supervision over DPC's funds now being spent by Basic Magnesium."

"Employés of Basic Magnesium authorized to draw checks were not bonded."

"Eleven bank accounts were maintained by Basic of taxpayer funds."

"Basic Magnesium is permitted to make disbursements but an accounting is not made until invoices are presented for audit."

"Basic has disbursed approximately $20,000, the proprieties of which were neither approved nor authorized."

Calls Pay Roll Too High.

"The executive pay roll is excessive."

"Basic Magnesium is not in a strong financial position and its principal source of income is the construction fee, the interest in which was assigned to a Cleveland bank."

"Limitation should be established for the amount of salaries allowable and for travel and other expenses."

"H. P. Eells engages in local politics, using the project as a vehicle."

CHILDREN'S DRUM CORPS TO JOIN IN WAR BOND DRIVE

Pretty drum majorettes and a children's drum and bugle corps of the 33d Division Veterans' association began a two months' drive last night to boost the sale of war bonds and stamps.

Working out of the Hotel Sherman, the group will appear in front of principal downtown theaters and hotels. The drum and bugle corps will play snappy military tunes while the majorettes whirl and toss batons.

Miss Ina Mae Jones, of the treasury department, who is in charge of the group, said appearances will be made Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday each week for two months. There will be no Friday appearance this week, because the youngsters worked last night and it is not planned to work them more than four days or nights a week.

COMMENDS AIR PATROL FOR AID IN FLOOD REGION

Commendations for fine work in a public emergency were sent yesterday by Illinois Wing Commander James R. Graham of the Civil Air Patrol, to CAP Group No. 619, Squadron 1, at Salem. Comm. Graham said this unit organized air and ground floor patrols at Salem on July 8 when 4.39 inches of rain fell in two hours.

The patrol members guarded the city water reservoir, building a sandbag flood wall around it; evacuated flooded areas, and made an air reconnaissance over the town to locate stranded persons and cattle.

NEW YORK WHIRLS GAILY THRU WAR IN NIGHT CLUBS

City Seems Untouched by Its Seriousness.

taurants are thronged at all hours. Night clubs catering to café society, defined as "one-third haut monde, one-third demi monde, and one-third exhibitionist," reported their best summers of all time. A 5th avenue shop is doing a $2,000,000 business in officers' uniforms alone, and the first tangible war induced shortages in merchandise are [1] bottle openers and [2] elastic.

New York is unique. It is the only place in the United States where an exclusive men's shop would ask $180 to make a uniform—with the officer supplying the material; where a dress designer can come forth in what is announced as "a patriotic effort to conserve metal" with a dress adorned not with one zipper, but with three, all of sterling silver; and where hat designers exploit the hazards of war with wishful creations called "Egyptian bonnets," "coolie brims," and fezzes. These all are in the name of morale.

Worry About Coney Island.

It is probably the only place in America where an army photographer, assigned to accompany a metropolitan news camera man on his rounds to learn how to take pictures, would spend two hours getting a picture of Gypsy Rose Lee pasting a rhinestone clip on her abdomen.

It is the only place in America, if not in the world, where a mayor, Fiorello La Guardia, more solicitous of Coney Island merchants than of ships silhouetted at sea by the glare from the merchants' shops, would suggest erecting canvas curtains along a mile of the boardwalk "to shut out the glare."

It is the only place in the world where a seventh of the population would be so interested in the outcome of a blackout that it would gather, a million strong, in one spot, Times square, to WATCH the blackout.

Hamburgers at $1.85.

It is certainly the only place in the world where any one would pay $1.85 for hamburger a la Walter Winchell in a gaudy night club called the Stork club. In the interest of accuracy it might be noted that this dish, a pièce de résistance on the menu, is cattily described by some as "chopped tongue."

It is probably the only place in a world at war where a spokesman for a night club would have the effrontery to say with pride, "we have no privates here, you see. We don't encourage them. Why should we? We are under no obligations."

New York is unique. New York is magnificent. New York is at war. A stranger to the city walked into a 5th avenue mansion of beauty last month and said, "I am tired. I need to relax." A solicitous attendant rushed her to a dark room, its walls covered with photomurals of beaches, arrayed her in a Gandhi robe, stretched her on a table covered with sand and placed dark goggles on her eyes.

"And now, Madam," the attendant said, "I shall turn on the sun."

Nothing is impossible in New York. Nothing except a war bond quota.

Moans About Dimout.

One New York columnist, Dorothy Kilgallen, who writes under the title, Voice of Broadway, and recently was photographed in the uniform of a lady colonel, moans pitifully from day to day about the Broadway dimout, a dimout which seems a dimout only to the eyes of New Yorkers so long accustomed to the scintillance of their flaming, gaudy midnight that they sleep thru the comparative twilight of the day.

Miss Kilgallen has written a series of pieces on the matter. They sound somewhat like one singing "Rock of Ages" in a saloon. She says she is proud to be part of such an important part of the country as Broadway and adds, with undeniable truth and surprising honesty, "it's the least serious part, to be sure, and perhaps that's why I like it so."

When America's victory toasts are drunk Miss Kilgallen has definite ideas on the setting. They should be drunk on Broadway and its exhibitionist fringes. She lists the places: Fefe's Monte Carlo, the Stork, Leon and Eddie's 21. This idea probably will come to fruition unless New York changes radically, for by remarkable coincidence New York now is conducting the war from these very spots.

Miss Kilgallen is Broadway's female Walter Winchell. Like Winchell, who is a lieutenant commander in the navy now relegated well to the rear of the inactive reserves, her military rank is not appreciated by the rank and file. She is a colonel in Father Duffy's canteen, a theatrical group which sometimes dispenses nocturnal coffee. She is not particularly resented, as is Winchell, and with the tolerance of one who also has a rank she rather gleefully reported the other night that Winchell, ordered out of his navy uniform, now is appearing in chocolate brown and heavenly beige, a little number run up for him by Valentina, who also designs the stage attire of Katharine Cornell.

True Bills Voted

Two men and a woman, held as members of the robber gang whose leader, Eugene Guzy, was shot to death as he killed Detective Walter Storm, were arraigned yesterday before Judge William V. Daly in Felony court. They were taken at once before the grand jury, which voted true bills against the trio later in the day.

Miss Charlene O'Neil, 23 years old, who had admitted acting as a lookout for the gang, known to police as the Polka Dot handkerchief bandits, was indicted for murder, as well as two robberies.

Leo Piscopo, her sweetheart, is charged with murder and three robberies as is the third member, Nick Gianos. All are held for another court hearing July 30.

TWO PARK POKER PLAYERS TO FACE TRIAL ON JULY 22

A continuance to July 22 was granted yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Women's court to a man and his wife accused of having started a fight with a policeman who ordered them to stop gambling in Eugene Field park, Foster and Lawndale avenues.

The defendants are Israel Lasky, 59 years old, 1200 Pratt boulevard, and his wife, Leah, 47. They were charged with assault and battery, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct by Park Policeman Raymond Eddy. The policeman said that when he told the Laskys to stop playing poker for pennies, Lasky hit him with a cane. Lasky denied Eddy's story and said the policeman grabbed and pushed him after stopping the game.

Capt. Peter Annen of the Lincoln Park police said his office had received numerous complaints of gambling in parks. He said he had ordered his men to enforce the law.

SURFACE LINES ATTORNEY TO ACT AS WAGE ARBITER

The Chicago Surface Lines yesterday appointed William J. Flaherty, general counsel for the company, as an arbitrator on the proposed three man arbitration board which will try to settle the wage dispute between the lines and the street car men's union. The union has appointed Ald. James J. McDermott [14th] as its representative, and the third is to be named by McDermott and Flaherty. The union sought wage increase of 10 cents an hour for trainmen plus five more days vacation, but the company rejected these demands. Any agreement on a new wage contract will be retroactive to June 1, when the previous contract expired.

JONES DEFENDS SELECTION OF 4 RUBBER AGENTS

Denies Junk Firms Stand to Make Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones tonight defended the appointment of four big rubber companies to act as agents for the government in buying scrap rubber and denied charges that they would make millions in profits out of the nation-wide scrap collection campaign just concluded.

The charges against the companies were made yesterday by Elliott F. Simpson, counsel for a subcommittee of the house coinage, weights, and measures committee which is investigating the rubber situation. Simpson declared that the companies would make commissions of $1.50 a ton on every ton of scrap rubber collected regardless of whether they were instrumental in its collection, and also other profits thru warehousing, sorting, and the monopoly they would control over scrap rubber supplies.

Details Arrangements.

Without mentioning Simpson or his charges, Jones issued a statement in which he described the arrangements with the rubber companies concerned. He said that the Rubber Reserve company, an RFC subsidiary, contracted on June 18 with A. Schulman, Inc., Akron, O.; H. Muehlstein Co., New York City; Nat E. Berzen, Inc., New York City, and the Loewenthal company, Chicago, to act as its agents in buying scrap rubber thruout the United States.

"As a result of these contracts," Jones said, "these companies are no longer in the scrap rubber business for their own account. They cannot buy, sell, or deal in scrap rubber except for the account of Rubber Reserve company. All four of the companies agreed to render this service to Rubber Reserve company without profit, but will be reimbursed for their actual costs and expenses.

Schedule of Prices.

"Other scrap dealers may sell scrap rubber to Rubber Reserve company thru any one of these four companies at $25 per ton, carload lots, f. o. b. point of shipment, and 6 cents a pound for tubes. Junk dealers have on hand a small amount of beadless tires for which Rubber Reserve company will pay $31.50 per ton until July 15, and $3.50 per ton for the beads. [A bead on a tire is a metal reinforcement under the ply where the tire meets the rim.]

"The four companies have bought for account of Rubber Reserve company 103,400 tons of scrap rubber. They began buying scrap from other scrap dealers for account of Rubber Reserve company immediately after announcement of the $25 per ton price, and these purchases are entirely independent of and in addition to the rubber gathered by the oil companies in the scrap rubber drive authorized by the President," Jones concluded.

Canadian Navy Minister Tells of Raids.

when a submarine torpedoed and sank their ship in the Gulf of Mexico, the navy department announced today. The blast blew the stern off the ship.

The freighter was in sight of five other ships when the attack occurred. The remaining 21 members of the crew, three of whom were injured, were rescued.

ENTIRE CREW ESCAPES

A Gulf Coast Port, July 13 (AP).—The entire crew of 22 escaped when their Panamanian cargo vessel was sunk May 23 in the Caribbean sea, the 8th naval district revealed today.

An explosion from a torpedo on the port side at 4 p. m. blew a hatch cover 40 feet into the air and broke the foremast, disabling the radio. The engines were stopped and the crew abandoned ship in lifeboats. It sank in 15 minutes.

After rowing three hours the crewmen were picked up and taken to a West Indies port.

25 OF CREW MISSING

A Gulf Coast Port, July 13.—The 8th naval district today made public details of the sinking Feb. 28 of a Panamanian cargo vessel off the coast of South America.

The ship was struck by one torpedo, which practically demolished it. Only one of 26 members of the crew is known to have been rescued. He swam to a life raft and was picked up after having floated six days.

The survivor said the submarine came to the surface 30 yards away but did not offer to help him.

Report U. S. Ship Sunk.

HAVANA, Cuba, July 13 (AP).—The Cuban navy general staff announced today that a United States merchant ship was torpedoed and sunk yesterday off the north coast of Cuba. It reported several members of the vessel's crew have arrived at a northern Cuba port.

Survivors Adrift 17 Days.

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, July 13 (AP).—Weakened by lack of food and exposure during 17 days' drifting in the North Atlantic, 12 survivors of a torpedoed allied merchant vessel are convalescing in a hospital here. Three of their comrades died after a diet of seaweed and salt sea water. Some of the survivors were natives of Malaya and southern and western Africa.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

NAME THE RUBBER BARONS.

Spokesmen for the British-Dutch syndicate of plantation owners have expressed indignation at recent testimony given by Mr. Jesse Jones, who had been charged with the duty of acquiring an adequate stock pile. Mr. Jones said the syndicate didn't play ball. The rubber growers, he intimated, feared that the accumulation of a big surplus of raw rubber in this country would result in drastic price declines after the war.

The syndicate defends itself against this charge of profiteering at the expense of the war effort by saying that it met all the requests from Mr. Jones for the creation of a stock pile. The only agreement which was not carried out was one concluded last December, but it was the Japanese and not the syndicate which prevented the performance of the contract.

This reply is not too convincing, but it seems to call for a bill of particulars from Mr. Jones. Certainly the experience which this country has undergone over the years at the hands of the rubber barons is not calculated to persuade any one that the members of the syndicate are above sharp practice. In the past they have rigged the market against us to our injury, notably at the time when Mr. Hoover, as secretary of commerce, led the successful fight against the exactions of an earlier cartel. The credence given in America to Mr. Jones' testimony can be explained easily enough in terms of the known record of the rubber barons for squeezing their customers.

At the same time Americans are not disposed to acquit their officials of all responsibility. If Washington had been really alive to the importance of obtaining an adequate stock pile of rubber a lot of things would have been done which weren't. The British-Dutch syndicate would have been pressed a great deal harder than it was to disgorge all the rubber in sight, and the shilly-shallying over the production of synthetic rubber in this country never would have been tolerated.

The record of mismanagement goes as far back as 1938, but a good starting point is Aug. 8, 1940, when Mr. E. R. Stettinius Jr. forwarded to Jesse Jones a recommendation of the advisory committee of the Concil of National Defense for the creation of facilities to produce 100,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually in this country. It was not until four months later, and after Mr. Jones had consulted President Roosevelt, that the oil and rubber companies were asked to submit proposals, but by that time the total requested production had been cut to only 40,000 tons. Three months later the figure had been cut again to a mere 2,000 tons. Two months later the administration was back again at 40,000 tons, and contracts were let on that basis. That was in May of last year, but by September, just three months before Pearl Harbor, the 40,000 had again been cut to 10,000, and before long the whole program was ordered stopped for a year. It was not until after Pearl Harbor that the government authorized a resumption of the synthetic program.

That is a record which suggests that the culpability of the rubber barons of London and Amsterdam is not the only culpability. Perhaps corruption will yet be exposed. Perhaps it was just infinite stupidity on the part of higher officials or a flunkeyism which made it easy for those with an interest in plantation rubber to sabotage the synthetic program in this country.

The investigations should continue. Those here and abroad who are responsible for our present plight should be identified so that they cannot any longer influence decisions. The investigation might well take for its slogan "Name the Rubber Barons."

GOV. GREEN'S CHANCE.

A little less than a year ago—to be precise, on Aug. 3, 1941—THE TRIBUNE published the welcome information that the transfer of the direction of the Illinois Eye and Ear infirmary to the University of Illinois "may be effected this fall." Enabling legislation had been passed at Springfield. The authorities of the university and its medical school were friendly to the idea and still are. Nevertheless, the transfer has not been made. The delay is altogether discreditable to those in the state administration who are responsible for it.

The infirmary at Adams and Peoria streets has become one of the largest clinics of its kind in the world, perhaps the largest. It has been immensely useful to the community and the state. In recent years it pioneered the treatment of trachoma with sulfa drugs. Branch clinics were established downstate with the result that a disease which has never been absent from southern Illinois in 150 years and has been responsible in every generation for thousands of cases of blindness is now almost eliminated. The infirmary also has been making successful war on glaucoma, another of the principal sight-destroyers, and here, too, the record of achievement is remarkable.

The medical men who are chiefly responsible for these victories serve, with the fewest exceptions, without pay. They favor the transfer of the infirmary to the medical school of the university. They recognize that the work of their institution in care of the sick as well as in teaching and research is being handicapped by two circumstances. One of them is lack of direct affiliation with a well-rounded medical faculty. The other is political jobbery. Short-sighted politicians are forever raiding or threatening to raid the infirmary for the sake of the few jobs and perquisites that might be picked up; in this reckoning the gratitude of tens of thousands of patients well cared for is of no political value as against the pacifying of a half dozen ward heelers. It would be remarkable in the circumstances if the members of the medical staff did not weary of the continual struggle, and indeed, it is no secret that many of the best of them will resign if the transfer is not soon effected. Association with the university may not mean complete freedom from political interference but promises much less of it.

Some months ago, the Department of Welfare of the state had the good sense to appeal to the Institute of Medicine of Chicago for a report on the future of the infirmary. A committee, composed of leading physicians with diverse university and hospital connections, studied the problem and urged that the transfer be made.

"The recommendations of your committee," the report says, "are based upon a fact that has been proven by centuries of experience: the excellence of professional services to the sick poor in charitable hospitals and clinics depends very largely upon the programs of teaching and study of disease established within those institutions."

The question is really a simple one. Shall the infirmary grow in usefulness to the sick poor and to medical science or shall it be of service primarily to the precinct captains? The answer will be made by Gov. Green.

MR. WILLKIE'S PARTY.

Mr. Willkie made his recent visit to Chicago the occasion for an assertion that he not only is a Republican, but expects to remain one.

It is not usually necessary for a party's former nominee for President to reaffirm his loyalty to that party, but then Mr. Willkie's conduct has scarcely been orthodox since defeat, as one commentator put it, started to go to his head. He is struggling hard to evade the Democratic label that is the natural consequence of his actions.

It was hardly as an apostle of Republican principles that the diehard Democrats in the Louisiana state senate invited him to address them. It was surely not his stalwart Republicanism that caused the Democratic organization in Iowa to upbraid the Republicans for not following the Willkie lead more closely. The Iowa Republicans turned thumbs down on the candidate who sought office on the Willkie coattails.

Mr. Willkie advanced his claim to Republicanism 24 hours after the Republicans of Wisconsin, meeting in their state convention at Wausau, twice rejected a resolution praising him, once in committee and again on the floor of the convention. The same meeting indorsed heartily the stand taken on the war by the Republican congressmen from Wisconsin, a stand diametrically opposite in many respects to that taken by Mr. Willkie.

The reasons for Mr. Willkie's insistence that he is still a Republican, in the face of all the evidence to the contrary, are evident. If he is ever recognized as just another house Republican for the Roosevelt administration, another Knox or Stimson, his usefulness as well as his aspirations are ended. Mr. Willkie may have no use for Republican principles, but he has an urgent need of the Republican party, as he has admitted.

What he has in mind for the party he outlined in April in the magazine Look, in which he said:

"Any leader who wishes to make his ideas effective wisely attempts to use the machinery of one of the two parties. Franklin Roosevelt's political ideas were radically different from the accepted principles of the Democratic party. He knew it. He knew, however, that his best chance of putting them in effect was to use the machinery of the Democratic party and then mold it to his ideas.

"Probably we shall continue to operate for some time under the present two party system, even as to names. But the principles of those two parties will be molded and remolded by their respective leaders."

Mr. Willkie claims to be a Republican. The Democrats in whose company he is customarily found insist he is a Republican. No one disputes the assertion except the Republicans themselves. Considering what Mr. Willkie admits he has in mind for them, can they be blamed?

NOTES ON THE TAX BILL.

The ways and means committee this week is sending to the house of representatives a draft of the 1942 tax bill. If it follows established practice, the house will adopt the measure as drafted. Senators may make changes before they pass the bill, but in view of the fact that the house and senate committees use the same staff of experts, it does not seem probable that the revisions will be considerable.

For individuals, the normal tax rate which has been 4 per cent goes to 6, and the exemptions of $750 for single and $1,500 for married persons are reduced to $500 and $1,200. The surtax is raised so that instead of starting at 6 per cent on the first $2,000, it starts at 13 per cent. The result of these changes is that a $2,000 married man will pay 3½ times as much as he did on last year's income. A $5,000 man will have his tax doubled. A $10,000 man will have his taxes raised about 50 per cent.

The $50,000 man will pay a little over half of his income to the government, an increase from $20,439 under the present law, and $14,128 the year before. The $100,000 man will now have $35,940 net. That is a thousand dollars a month less than he had left out of last year's income after paying taxes. The provision that 5 per cent of each person's pay envelope be deducted at the source after the first of next year is an innovation.

Corporation taxes are being hiked some more, too. The ordinary corporation which makes more than $25,000 will pay 45 per cent of profits to the government as a starter. Besides there is the excess profits tax of 87½ per cent. The present profits rate is 35 to 60 per cent.

Some comparisons with the highest taxes imposed in World War I. may be of interest.

Exemptions for individuals then were $1,000 and $2,000. The normal tax was 6 per cent on the first $4,000 taxable and 12 per cent on the excess. The surtax started at 1 per cent on the first $5,000 and ran to 65 per cent on $1,000,000. Thus a $25,000 married man paid $3,940, compared with $6,864 under the present law, and $9,220 as proposed. Tops for the ordinary tax on corporations in the last war was 12 per cent. The excess profit ran to 65 per cent, except on war contracts when it went to 80 per cent maximum. Thus the 87½ per cent rate is a record breaker. Great Britain collects 100 per cent of excess profits but 20 per cent is to be refunded after the war.

A CONFESSION.

Congress has repeatedly refused to appropriate money for the crackpot scheme to dig a ship canal across Florida. Now the senate commerce committee has approved a bill to construct a barge canal along the route of the proposed ship canal. Sen. Pepper has admitted that the barge canal is merely a foot in the door for the ship canal. The war emergency has been used to put over a piece of pork barrel graft.

The present excuse for the canal is that it will make the transport of petroleum from Texas to the Atlantic coast easier by permitting ships to escape submarines in the voyage around Florida. The canal will not be ready for service for at least 18 months, and probably longer. In supporting it the administration confesses that it has no expectation of controlling the submarine menace 18 months from now any better than it is doing today.

A marked change comes over the Italians in Africa. These are not the fellows who used to arrive with battle orders and the return half of the excursion ticket in their hands.—Detroit News.

A HOT WEATHER TOPIC.

We have discovered that many war-talkers, when the large scale subjects have been exhausted, want to know why Gen. Rommel has an American first name. The explanation is simple: Erwin is also a German first name.

Apparently it is not common, for three learned German-American citizens of the old stock to whom we submitted the problem said they had never heard of its use in Germany. But the next expert to whom we turned was of later vintage, and he testified that the name is occasionally used in northern Germany.

Erwin, in England, can be traced back in documents to the year 1275, when the real estate records called the Hundred Rolls were prepared. [A single entry.] In Scotland the name Irwin has been plentiful, and altho attempts have been made to give it a Celtic origin, it should be remembered in the Dark Ages invaders and settlers of Teutonic and Scandinavian breeds were abundant in Caledonia. We have no doubt that Erwin and Irwin, with Irvine and Irving, are varieties of the same name.

If you have a taste for the original meanings of given names, you might translate Erwin as "friendly warrior." If you think otherwise, submit a doctor's degree in the dialects of the ancient Jutes, Angles, Saxons, Frisians, and Goths, before starting an argument.

This column has no idea why Erwin became a popular given name in the United States. It has not been common in England. Such matters are born of fads, whims, and fancies, and the only writer we know who ever tried to explain them at length is Charlotte M. Yonge, an English novelist, who in 1863 published a two volume "History of Christian Names." Charlotte is painfully weak on the subject of Erwin, but she can put you right about the kindred name Edwin. It springs from the first Christian king of Northumbria, who is about 1,300 years old.

Among the small dots on the map of the United States are towns named Erwin in Arkansas, Indiana, North Carolina, Tennessee, and Utah. There is an Erwinville in Louisiana, and Erwinna in Pennsylvania.

O, yes, before we forget: There is a family of bacteria called Erwinnia. They cause pear blight and blackleg of potatoes.

A BROTHER GOES TO WAR.

There was so little we could find to say:
"Farewell," "Godspeed"—each old and time-worn phrase
Seemed cold and stilted as you went away
And yet perhaps you knew the thousand things
Encompassed in a handclasp and a smile,
The trust that Providence with guardian wings
Shall shield your steps thru this brief troubled while,
The pledge that we shall keep the home secure
To wait the day when battle shall be won,
The faith beyond our words to reassure
Your nights ahead until your task be done;
And more than all, I think you somehow knew
How proud, how very proud, we are of you.

STRANGER FROM THE INDIES.

Bearing strange goods and with a motley train,
Saying they come from lands he did explore
In New Castile, beyond the Spanish Main,
Having therefor Your Majesty's consent
And true Capitulation duly signed,
Appointing him to govern where he went,
With half of all the booty he did find.

It seems unlikely that it should be so,
That he hath found what other men have not,
And knows what even Colon did not know,
Cortez and Alvarado and the lot;
Yet there he stands, and porters of strange mien
Like dark-skinned natives, hold his treasure up—
Objects of gold and silver have I seen,
A monarch's throne, and many a jeweled cup.

He hath an eye that gleams when he doth talk
And tell of nations conquered for Your Grace,
There is a daring swagger in his walk
And bold adventure mirrored on his face.
Shall it then please Your Highness to admit,
Or tell the man to come another day?
The name—alas!—I don't remember it.
Let's see! I think—Pizarro, he did say!

PAGET'S DISEASE—A BONE DEFECT.

ALTHO mental efficiency may be retained perfectly during the later decades, nevertheless some minor physical ailment may interfere with the enjoyment of life. One such defect is Paget's disease, which was first described by James Padget in 1877.

The cause of this bone condition is unknown. Attempts to convict the parathyroid glands have resulted in failure. While injuries have been blamed, there is no close relationship—scarcely a semblance of cause and effect. The diagnosis, as a rule, follows X-ray examinations which will disclose the trouble.

The malady is characterized by the softening and absorption of portions of the framework which, of course, weakens the skeleton. The disorder comes on without the slightest warning. In fact, the patient is rarely aware of what is taking place until it is well advanced. Beginning in a single region—the skull or the lower legs—other structures may become involved.

Curiously enough, at intervals it appears to rest from its labors. There are occasions, however, when the head will enlarge, movements will become restricted, and the spine will become more rigid and bent forward. As we can understand, as the bones soften, the pull of muscles may bring about bending. In consequence, height may be lessened. It is not uncommon to find in a far advanced case an individual six inches shorter than his normal stature.

Symptoms vary from a dull kind of soreness to severe pain. This is generally worse at night or after standing for a long period. The parts along the shins may be affected and pressure will occasion discomfort. Cramping of the legs is not unusual. Because the victim avoids exercise, wasting of muscles may ensue.

Apparently there is little effect upon the length of life. Most sufferers live to a ripe old age, and once in a while the process becomes arrested.

Every one with bowlegs must not assume that he is afflicted with this ailment. The most common origin of the "cowboy stance" is rickets in early childhood—the result of too little vitamin D in the diet.

Now, nature attempts to repair damage whenever it appears. In these cases, the mending material which the tissues are able to supply is not as strong as the original substance and hence will not withstand weight.

Treatment is directed toward maintaining the body in the best possible state of health. That the circulation plays a rôle is fairly well recognized. In some instances, massage will keep the "pulleys" in good tone. Surgery is never advised since the difficulty may progress slowly regardless of what is done.

It is suggested that the patient make certain that his diet contains all of the essential minerals and that adequate quantities of calcium and phosphorus are included. The best we can hope for is that the disturbance will become stationary. Fortunately, complete incapacity is rare.

SPY STORY: 1918.

Chicago, July 4. — One October afternoon in 1918 a squad of army engineers were filling in shell holes on a road just outside the village of Montfaucon, France. To their left in the woods were row upon row of guns firing incessantly into the German lines. At regular intervals, we of the toiling engineers would run for cover from enemy shell bursts, or pause behind a tree to empty our rifles at some low flying Boche plane.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon, down the road came a lone French soldier riding on a horse. This Argonne sector had been taken over by the AEF in September, and no Frenchmen were supposed to be near or around this locality. The fellow spoke to no one. Just looked about, took in everything worthy of note, and continued north along the road. Why our loole did not take him in tow, or challenge his presence, will ever be a mystery.

Next morning, when we had advanced about a mile in our work, we came upon the dead body of the man in the French uniform. He had been tied to a tree and shot. Later, we learned that as he made his way north, he had ridden smack dab into a machine gun company who were standing by. The captain in command immediately stopped him for questioning and a look at his credentials. These were not in order. The captain came to the conclusion that the horseman was nothing but a spy sent over to garner information as to our battery locations. As a penalty, the hot lead treatment was administered. The horse was returned to the picket line from which it had been stolen.

There are many who will argue that the captain acted too hastily. However, this was his conception of duty. Recently our authorities captured several spies and saboteurs. They may be just a few of the many ready and waiting to bring death and destruction to us. If they are found guilty, why should their lives not be the forfeit? That machine gun captain of days gone by would be of this mind.

STUART ROBSON.

WARTIME FINANCING.

Skokie, Ill., July 8.—On July 6 in THE TRIBUNE'S finance section appeared an article, "Banks Handling Biggest Part of War Financing," which should open the eyes of even the most optimistic price controlers. The futility of inflation control can be seen from the plain facts on how the war is being financed. Forty-seven billion dollars to be borrowed in the next fiscal year: Twelve billion from individual war bond buyers and 6 billion from other nonbanking sources. This is all right. But—the remaining 29 billion is to come from the commercial banks of the nation. Because of the enormous excess legal reserves, the loans can be made by merely expanding credit or demand deposits. Banks pay no cash for bonds, but merely give the government a checking account. Thus, 29 billions of brand new check money to compete for dwindling consumers' goods. The OPA dams or ceilings will burst under this pressure.

An entirely new method of war financing is needed—a banking system attached to the board of governors of the Federal Reserve system, which will be empowered to make grants to the treasury and to gear the total volume of money with the total volume of production. This, incidentally, is also needed in peacetime. STIG REIHNER.

COMMISSIONS THRU DRAG.

Chicago, July 9.—A movie star flew to Washington to consult the air corps about joining up. A movie columnist states, "Naturally, he was offered a commission, but turned it down, saying he wanted to earn any honors that came his way." Much credit is due this actor for his fine and democratic viewpoint, but what does this columnist mean by "naturally, he was offered a commission?" Has this country—where all men are free and equal and we are fighting to prove it—come to the pass that it is natural to offer all advantages to those with position, money, or fame?

Practically every day we hear of commissions given to those in the public eye, while plain John Doe can fight and possibly die, without attaining a rank he may deserve more than the celebrity. I say, let all those without previous military training or value start equally.

SOLDIER'S WIFE.

HEDGE HOPPING PLANE.

Palatine, Ill., July 9. — At 2:40 this afternoon a plane that looked like an army bomber, North American B-25 or a Lockheed Hudson, gray, twin motors, and twin rudders, came from the west and headed east over the village of Palatine. Those who were out in the garden saw that it barely cleared our grove of trees. The noise was terrifying to adults and my little girl was prostrated with fright, for she thought it was crashing on her in the house.

Do the army and navy order their planes to fly at this low altitude, about 110 feet, judging by the trees? Are we to be treated to hedge hopping and have to dodge decapitation as the poor women field workers in Florida failed to do last winter? HELEN M. KING.

CAN'T FIND HIS IDEAL.

Chicago, July 7.—To the young women who write annoying letters to newspaper editors complaining that they can't find boy friends to go out with due to the war, let me say that us civilian young men still at home are having trouble, too. For my part, the only girls I am able to meet thru regular channels are of the brainless type, whereas my taste runs more to the quiet, educated, reserved kind of girl. But where do they hang out? Can anybody tell me?

EDW. J. BARDWELL.

ON FOSTER HOMES.

Chicago, July 9.—Mrs. Laura McCarter completely missed the point of my letter in regard to the state being delinquent in paying for the support of its wards in their foster homes. The 17 year old boy, in question, just finished his third year of high school, and is going to summer school so he can get into the service in order to avenge his brother's death on the Arizona. He works every afternoon after school at odd jobs. He has paid tuition for summer school, out of his earnings, besides his school supplies, clothing and shoe repairs, cleaning bills, hair cuts, occasional shows, and is saving for his war bond which is nearly paid for. My complaint was that the state puts these orphans out into private homes and agrees to support them until they become of age and then fails to meet its obligations. No wonder desirable foster homes are hard to find. FOSTER PARENT.

MINOR'S RESPONSIBILITY.

Chicago, July 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a boy of 17 years works and buys a car this summer and does not have insurance on same—in case of an accident [1] can his mother and stepfather be held responsible?

2. Will his parents have to consent to this purchase of a car? P. R.

1. Not on the bare facts stated. It must appear in addition that the trip was undertaken on their business or that they were in some way to blame.

2. There is no such rule of law, but since a minor is permitted to repudiate his contracts, it is not wise for an adult to enter into such dealing with a minor unless an adult signs with the minor.

LIMITATION PERIOD.

Chicago, July 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Jan. 1, 1909, a promissory note was signed in the state of Iowa. June 14, 1914, a promissory note was signed in the state of Wisconsin.

1. Is the Iowa note outlawed?
2. Is the Wisconsin note outlawed?

R. J.

1. The limitation period is two years from the maturity date or from the last payment or promise to pay, whichever is later.
2. The corresponding period is six years.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The War Production board today added approximately 250 articles of civilian goods to a previous list which can not continue to be made with iron or steel. The articles range from accessories for soda fountains to weed cutters, and include hospital equipment, merry-go-rounds, magic lanterns, umbrella shafts and vanity cases.

Manufacture of some of the articles has been stopped by an order of May 5 which prohibited deliveries or iron and steel for their production except on a preference rating of A-10 or higher. A-10 is the lowest of the priority ratings. Furthermore, there has been no restriction on production from inventories of materials.

30 Days of Production.

The manufacture of items on today's supplemental list can no longer receive iron or steel, effective immediately. He is given 30 days to process from his materials on hand at a rate not to exceed by weight 75 per cent of his 1941 monthly average. Assembly of these articles is permitted for an additional 30 days.

Divorce Hearing

Mary, 6; John, 13, and Patricia, 9, children of Mrs. Sophia Casey, during divorce hearing.

Time and again her husband, John, told Mrs. Lilian Casey, 41 years old, to get out of their home at 1609 North Avers avenue, but she never thought he really meant it, she told Judge Rudolph Desort in Superior court yesterday. But when she came home on June 16, 1941, she discovered Casey did mean it, she said. He took her by arm, pushed her down the stairs and then tossed her suitcase—which he had all packed and ready—down after her.

"The suitcase landed on my head," she testified. "All my things were scattered over the sidewalk."

The court granted her a divorce. Casey, who lives at 3250 Cullom avenue and is a shipping clerk, was ordered to pay her $15 a week for the support of their children.

PASTOR REVEALS WPA DID WORK FOR RACE TRACK

Nine Outbuildings Focus Attention on Camden.

Newark, N. J., July 13 [Special].—A charge by the Rev. Carl McIntyre, pastor of the Collingswood Bible Presbyterian church, that "taxpayers' money helped build this abominable track" has focused public attention on nine outbuildings erected as a WPA project at the stables of the new $2,000,000 Camden race track.

With the elaborate racing plant scheduled to begin a 48 day meeting on Saturday, Mr. McIntyre has appealed to President Roosevelt to seize the track and prevent it from opening. The pastor has been carrying on a campaign against opening the track.

Called Health Project.

Edward W. Hamilton, state WPA administrator, admitted that 40 lavatories had been constructed at the stables, but said this was done as part of a community health and sanitation project which has been under way since the inception of WPA.

The track supplied the materials for the construction, WPA supplied the labor, and the project was under the sponsorship of the New Jersey state board of health, Hamilton said.

Priority Questioned.

"We have built hundreds of these small buildings for church grounds, camp meeting places, Boy Scout camps, and state fair grounds," Hamilton declared.

Mr. McIntyre emphasized in his letter to the President that fabrication and installation of the outbuildings was begun by WPA several days after the War Production board's deadline on amusement center construction.

WPA officials in Washington said they have asked the New Jersey office to submit a report on the construction of outbuildings. A WPA spokesman said the request for a report did not constitute an investigation.

MONDAY EVENING SHOPPERS FLOCK TO LOOP STORES

Despite the rain, Monday evening shopping in the loop grew in popularity last night. Shoppers filled the stores early in the evening. Four more stores followed the example of the 12 clothing and ready to wear shops which started the practice a week ago and remained open for the benefit of defense workers and their families who are unable to shop during the day. Another 10 stores, mostly specialty shops, will be added to the group next Monday evening and loop department stores are expected to follow suit soon, David Mayer, chairman of the State Street council, reported.

"The stores have been busier this evening than they were last Monday," he explained, "and that was a good evening. Many customers have expressed their appreciation for giving them the opportunity to shop at their leisure instead of snatching time away from their work during the day. More and more stores are seeing the wisdom of the practice and are being encouraged to follow suit."

MAYOR ASSERTS HE'LL BE GLAD TO SEE CRIME BOARD

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he has received no communication from the Chicago Crime commission, which last week said the Civil Service commission should be discharged because it recently acquitted four policemen of the gambling detail who were charged with inefficiency, neglect of duty and making false reports.

The Crime commission accused the Civil Service commission of displaying a "partial attitude" in the trial of the four men and officials said they would seek an audience with the mayor to press their demands. Up to last night the Crime commission members had not requested an interview, but the mayor said he would be glad to receive them if they did.

"They may be preparing a brief on the subject," the mayor said. Asked if he thought the Civil Service commission could function better without Joseph P. Geary [4th ward Democratic committeeman] as its president, the mayor refused to comment.

INDICATE HOUSE CONFEREES GIVE IN ON GRAIN SALE

Senator Calls Tangle Hopeless, However.

Sen. Richard Russell.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—There were indications today that house members of a joint committee conferring on the $680,000,000 agricultural appropriations bill were weakening in their stand against the administration's grain sales policy, but efforts to dislodge the bill from a deadlock still were unsuccessful.

Chairman Richard B. Russell [D., Ga.] said efforts to reconcile differences over a senate amendment to permit sale of 125,000,000 bushels of government held wheat at 85 per cent of corn parity, about 83 cents a bushel, appeared so hopeless he might offer a motion tomorrow to discharge senate conferees.

Rep. Dirksen Differs.

But Rep. Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.], a house conferee, blamed the conference breakup on a technical stalemate which he said nullified compromises. He said senate conferees declined to take proposed compromises to the floor ahead of the house.

Dirksen said, too, the house conferees had agreed on sale of the 125,000,000 bushels of wheat at corn parity, about 97 cents.

However, Russell said there was no agreement on the part of senate conferees to this propsal, and that it provided the main stumbling block.

Agree on 7 Points.

Dirksen said the conferees had agreed on:

1. Government sale of 125,000,000 bushels of wheat for feeding purposes at the parity price of corn.
2. Sale of deteriorated grain for feeding purposes or manufacture of alcohol.
3. Salaries and expenses for the Farm Tenant administration of $1,625,000.
4. Farm tenant loans of $32,500,000.
5. Rehabilitation loans for "services and assistance," of $37,500,000.
6. Regular loans of $97,500,000.
7. A plan for agricultural conservation payments to be taken into account and added to the farmer's market return in determining parity payments.

HEAR BINNS MAY MANAGE HOTEL AGAIN, FOR ARMY

Lieut. Joseph P. Binns, who a month ago left his $30,000 a year position as general manager of the Stevens hotel to accept a commission in the air force technical command, may soon be back in his old job—but at army pay. This was the report buzzing among hotel employés yesterday as they prepared to turn over the mammoth structure to the army as of Aug. 1.

When Binns went into the army, he had little comment about his expected duties. During his three years at the Stevens he put the place on a paying basis.

Yesterday the Stevens Camera club on the fourth floor, established so that guests could process their own pictures, was cleared out to provide headquarters room for the commanding officer of the radio school to be opened by the army air force Sept. 3. He is Col. Walter T. Meyer of Scott field.

Manager Fred Clare of the Congress hotel, also to be a radio school, said that the army will need a larger maintenance force than is employed now. Repair calls will be frequent, he said, under the strain of 5,000 army guests instead of the present "capacity" crowd of 1,000 guests.

CHICAGO AREA TIN QUOTA 3,500 TONS MONTHLY

Ask 9 Cans Per Person from Each Family.

Chicago housewives please note! Your quota of tin cans for the salvage drive which begins Thursday will be nine cans a month for each member of your families.

This quota, which will yield an estimated 3,500 tons of tin scrap every month in the Chicago metropolitan area, was announced yesterday by William L. McFetridge, director of salvage of the Office of Civilian Defense.

"One hundred per cent of the metal, tin and steel, is recoverable," McFetridge said, "and will be used immediately in war production." He said the salvage value of the cans will pay the full cost of collecting and shipping to detinning plants.

Wash Clean and Flatten.

"Cans must first be washed to prevent deterioration of the tin coating. Removal of the top and bottom permits free flow of detinning fluid over the surfaces. Flattening the cans decreases size and reduces handling costs," he said.

Lloyd M. Johnson, commissioner of streets and electricity, said 450 trucks, 150 of which are city garbage trucks and 300 contributed by the Chicago and Suburban Scavenger association, will collect the cans weekly.

Drive for the Duration.

Mayor Kelly, in proclaiming Thursday Tin Can Salvage day, urged citizens to start saving all tin plated food and tobacco containers on this day and to continue for the duration. "Of the 100,000 tons used in the United States last year, only 44 tons of tin ore were produced in this country. Nearly 90 per cent of our supply now is in hands of the Japs."

Meanwhile more than 30 tons of scrap rubber collected from 63 buildings comprising the postoffice department in Chicago were contributed yesterday to the rubber drive, likewise extended for the duration, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen reported.

Kruetgen said building custodians removed all rubber spittoon mats, rubber flooring, and seat covers not essential to business and that they now were busy collecting tin scrap in all buildings.

FOUR BRITISH BOY SCOUTS TELL AIR RAID EXPERIENCES

Four British "blitz" Boy Scouts were conducted on a tour of the city yesterday by eight Chicago Eagle Scouts and officials of the Chicago council. As a climax to their day, they told stories of their experiences during air raids in Great Britain at a rally of Scout representatives in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel.

The tour began at 7 a. m. when the visitors were met at the La Salle street station by W. Arthur McKinney, executive of the Chicago council, and other Scouts. After breakfasting at the La Salle hotel, they visited the local council offices and were given a ride on the fireboat, Busse, in the Chicago river, and were permitted to operate the hoses. In the afternoon they met Mayor Kelly and appeared on a radio program.

The boys, who are King Scouts, the highest rank in Great Britain, are Stanley Newton of London; Ray Davis of Birkenhead, England; John Bethel of Southampton, England, and Hugh Bright of Glasgow, Scotland.

PETRILLO TELLS HIS SIDE OF CAMP BROADCAST BAN

James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, told his stand yesterday on the cancelation of a National Broadcasting company network broadcast of the concert of the symphony orchestra of the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich. The broadcast had been scheduled for last Saturday afternoon. Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, president of the camp, said pressure by Petrillo caused the cancellation.

"The National Broadcasting company and the American Federation of Musicians," Petrillo said, "have a closed shop agreement that only professional musicians are to be used on their radio programs. The federation merely drew NBC's attention to that part of the agreement and NBC proceeded to live up to it."

The camp is a nonprofit school of orchestra instruction affiliated with the University of Michigan. The orchestra is composed of 160 boys and girls of high school age from 40 states.

Claire Trevor Divorces Mate; Charge Indifference

Los Angeles, Cal., July 13 (AP).—Film Actress Claire Trevor won an uncontested divorce today from Clark Andrews, radio producer, charging him with indifference and with going on all night parties without her. She said he lived beyond his means and had to borrow from her. They were married July 27, 1938, and separated last February. They reached a property agreement out of court.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN STREET.

An unidentified man, about 45 years old, was taken to North Avenue hospital yesterday by a motorist who said he found the man in the street unconscious. The motorist left without giving details. The victim, believed to be suffering from heart disease, was removed to County hospital.

Thomas Joseph Walsh, secretary of the detective bureau confidence game detail for the last 10 years, was honored last night at a farewell party in the Bismarck hotel. He will leave Thursday to become a lieutenant in the military police at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Detective Walsh has been in the police department 20 years, the last 15 in the detective bureau. Sergt. John Murphy was toastmaster at the farewell. Members of the department presented a watch to Walsh. He will be accompanied to Fort Oglethorpe by Policeman Edward Kane of the Town Hall police, who also was given a lieutenant commission.

ZILLER SCANDAL BRINGS A CUT IN TEAMSTER DUES

Chicago Locals Upset by War Job Fee Slash.

Teamster unions in the Chicago area were reported upset yesterday over a surprise announcement that the International Brotherhood of Teamsters had established initiation fees of $10 and monthly dues of $2 for new workers on war or government jobs. The average initiation fee is $50, and the average dues run $3 to $4 a month.

The reduced rates were set by the international's executive board in Atlantic City, N. J., last month. The action, however, became known only now to local labor officials in the form of a statement in the union's monthly magazine.

Several Chicago union leaders were asking, "What's come into Tobin?" referring to Daniel J. Tobin, international president, who sponsored the new rates.

Ziller's the Answer.

However, there appeared to be little mystery as to the reason for the reduction. The answer, it was said, is George W. Ziller, portly downstate labor politician, who was exposed as the job dispenser for teamster and hodcarrier unions on government projects. He allegedly collected total fees of $63 for a teamster's contract and total fees of $21 for a hodcarrier's union card. The McLean county grand jury in Bloomington was reported last week to have named him and others in true bills charging fraud in the sale of jobs.

The executive board may have had Ziller in mind in one paragraph of its fee reduction announcement when it stated:

"We have found initiation fees running $40, $50 and $60, and dues running far above $2 a month, creating a hardship on those who are employed, perhaps temporarily. . . . This fact has been given considerable publicity and has caused serious injury to the name of the international union."

Cite Government Statement.

The executive board also explained that the government had called such fees unreasonable and that the board felt that reduced initiation fees and dues for war workers were necessary. It specified, however, that the so-called $10 members shall not receive sick or death benefits, which are available only to those paying normal fees—usually $50.

Leaders of Chicago area locals of the IBT said they have not yet received official orders of the $10 initiation fee, and that they would therefore continue assessing their usual fees. At the same time they said they intend to protest the reduction thru their district councils.

STOP CRUISING OR LOSE TIRES, CABMEN TOLD

Michael Mulcahy, director of the Office of Price administration for the Chicago metropolitan area, yesterday told officials of the Yellow and Checker Cab companies that cruising must be eliminated if they want to continue to receive retreads for tires. The officials told him that in June their "paid miles" were slightly greater than their "dead" or unpaid miles, but Mulcahy said the increase was not enough.

"Some way to eliminate cruising must be found to decrease the miles traveled by vacant cabs," Mulcahy said. "If that mileage is not reduced the retreading of tires is not justified."

The cab company officials said they had reduced the dead mileage by stopping cabs from going out of town or going to race tracks. "Why not stop the night club business," asked Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, who was present. The cab officials said that was only 3 or 4 per cent of their business.

RAID TURNS UP 55 PATRONS, BUT NOT A SINGLE BOOKIE!

Searching for a racing handbook, Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Central police groped his way thru dark and dusty rooms yesterday in a building at 17 West Quincy street. He found 13 women and 42 men trying to hide on the 4th, 5th and 6th floors.

"Tell me which are the bookies and I'll let the rest of you go," said the captain. "Otherwise I'll lock you all up."

But the patrons said the bookies had fled with their race sheets across the roof to safety. The captain called five patrol wagons and hauled the prisoners to the station. There they discussed the bookies, but not too favorably.

Falls 3 Floors; Lives

Nancy Lee Lillvick with her mother in Chicago hospital after the child fell three floors without suffering serious injury

It was hot last night and Nancy Lee Lillvick, 2 years old, decided to cool off. She climbed up on the window sill of her home, a third floor apartment at 4948 Blackstone avenue. The window was open and Nancy Lee leaned against the screen.

Before her mother, Mrs. Jeanette Lillvick, could pull her back, the screen broke and Nancy Lee tumbled out, falling three stories to the cement sidewalk below. Her father, Ivan, a precision machinist, rushed her to the Chicago hospital.

Physicians found only a skinned knee and a lump on her forehead. They shook their heads and told her parents they would take X-ray pictures today, just to make sure. But Nancy Lee only clapped her hands and laughed.

CONSULATES HERE ARE BEEHIVES, OF MUCH INACTIVITY

Became Information Centers in War.

Chicago's 40 consulates of foreign governments—10 of them nations conquered by Hitler—are being transformed by war from busy offices to information bureaus that receive only infrequent calls, it was disclosed yesterday.

Consuls for European countries, who formerly supervised vast shipments from the midwest to their lands, now find themselves with time on their hands. When the telephone does ring it's usually some one wanting to know if there isn't some way to get letters and parcels to German-occupied countries.

Travel Is Decreased.

South and Central American representatives are finding that U-boat sinkings of American ships have decreased travel. Passport regulations enforced since Pearl Harbor haven't helped them either, they said.

There is sadness in the 10 consulates representing nations captured by Hitler. They are Denmark, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, France, Greece, Luxemburg, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, and Jugo-Slavia. But if there is sadness over the fate of their fellow men in Europe, the consulate staffs also are determined to "give everything we have" to fight for victory.

"We're down now," said Alois Ozabal, acting Czecho-Slovakian consul-"but our land will live again. And it will be for us as it always has been."

Jan I. Noest, Netherlands consul, asserted that "We'll win, now that America is with us."

Consul General Demetrios Benetatos of Greece said his office was "just praying" for the day when the Nazis would be driven from Greece.

Want to Get Back to Work.

The consuls all said they were anxious to "go back to work" on the duties they fulfilled before war started.

K. W. Kohtala, acting Finnish consul, said he could now conduct his official business while working as the credit manager of a paper company. He said he was called only two or three times a month. "It's only a coincidence that Finland is fighting on the wrong side of the fence," he said. "But I'm all for America."

Chishau Lee, Chinese consul, spoke precisely. "We are fighting," he said. "And the Japs will never win. But our business here is very much less than it was before."

TWO WHO FLED STATE TRAINING SCHOOL CAUGHT

Eleventh Mutineer Gets One to Five Year Term.

Two young inmates who escaped yesterday morning from the Illinois State Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, were recaptured last evening at the Springbrook sanitarium, near Aurora.

They are Sam Hicks Jr., 16 years old, sentenced from Champaign on June 10 for burglary, and Willis Cottongain, 16, sentenced from Flora on April 10 for violation of court probation. Altho at the school relatively a short time, the two had been assigned outside the institution proper to Wilson cottage, where the school's dairy attendants live.

Planned to Visit Father.

Several hours after the alarm had been spread the boys were seen near the sanitarium and were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Wilbur Seidel. Hicks said he had been trying to reach Chicago, where his father is ill, and that Cottongain had suggested going along.

Later in the day, the 11th of 12 mutineers who on June 11 slugged a school recreation supervisor and stole a 30 passenger bus, was sentenced to prison by Judge Charles D. Page, in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva.

Least Culpable of Mutineers.

He is Anthony d'Antonio, 17, 1923 Erie street, Chicago. In passing sentence of from one to five years in prison, Judge Page said:

"I believe d'Antonio was least culpable of all those engaged in the break. He therefore should be confined a maximum of two years and a minimum of one."

Ten other of the mutineers have been sentenced to terms ranging from 1 to 10 years and 1 to 14 years on charges of assault to commit murder, automobile larceny and conspiracy to commit automobile larceny. D'Antonio pleaded guilty to the last of these charges.

Santo Sartorio, 16, 3149 Princeton avenue, Chicago, who slugged the school officer with a lead bar and drove the bus away, drew the 1 to 14 year sentence.

Calvin Baker, 17, of 6147 Kimbark avenue, will face the court within a few days, according to State's Attorney Charles Seidel.

Mayor Revokes License of Clark Street Barroom

Mayor Kelly last night revoked the license of the Royal Palm Gardens barroom in the Olympic hotel, 1015 North Clark street, after charges that the tavern was being used by women to solicit sailors. Revocation of the license was recommended by Capt. Frank Reynolds of the East Chicago avenue police station. Sally Sanders, 24 years old, who was arrested in a drive to clean up vice conditions on the near north side, failed to appear yesterday in Women's court to answer charges of soliciting.

CORNTELLER MORTON SLAIN.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

Annette asks: "Would you tell me if it is true that men in all branches of service are not allowed to wear rings of any type, such as wedding bands, graduation rings, and pins, while they are on duty."

ANSWER: The only restriction about wearing rings in the service while on duty is not to have too many on at one time. Regulations on the wearing of pins, however, are very stringent. Pins of any description, other than official insignia, must not be worn at any time on the service man's uniform.

Mrs. R. T. writes: "My husband is in the coast guard and we were wondering where to apply for the money I will get from the government and when it will be paid?"

ANSWER: Tell your husband to apply thru his commanding officer at his earliest opportunity. The payments under the new legislation are not necessarily retroactive to June 1 as commonly supposed, but the amount of the payments you will receive Nov. 1 or later, will be determined by "date of application," or "date on which the dependent or dependents first become entitled thereto, which ever is later." Applications for civilian claims will not be made available until Aug. 1 or later.

M. E. asks: "In the new regulations for inducting men in the 1-B group who have minor defects, will these men be in the regular camps for basic training, drilling, and shooting with the boys in combat zones?"

ANSWER: The general plan seems to be to induct these men into the regular way and give them, if they are physically able, the same basic training as regular 1-A men, including complete instruction in the use of arms. The object of training these men in the use of arms is that many of them may find themselves in combat zones where the lack of training in defense would jeapordize their lives. The army has no plans for using these men in combat duty and, furthermore, men with this classification are definitely "noncombat."

L. W. G. asks: "Where can I obtain information about the requirements to join the dental corps of the Canadian army? I have been rejected by the United States army for what I consider a very minor physical defect."

ANSWER: If you are an American citizen and not subject to complete deferment from military service in the United States army in any and every capacity, you could not join any of the Canadian services because you are still subject to duty with our forces.

COUNTY ACCEPTS 19.8% TO SETTLE $105,000 TAX BILL

The tax committee of the county board yesterday approved a bid of $10,500 by owners of a property at 4224 Diversey parkway to clean up unpaid taxes of $55,611 plus approximately $50,000 in tax penalties. The bid was only 19.8 per cent of the tax, excluding penalties.

William Carpenter MacLean, attorney for the property owners, offered to make the bid if the county would order a so-called friendly tax foreclosure suit. MacLean said construction of an industrial plant was started on the land in 1929, but was never completed, and that the parcel had mistakenly been assessed as improved property.

The tax committee, headed by County Commissioner Daniel Ryan, recommended that the state's attorney seek an outright tax foreclosure sale against a vacant parcel at 300-46 West Erie street, which owes $60,453 in taxes and $53,806 in penalties. After receiving a warning letter from the county board about the past due tax bills, the owners failed to submit any offer to clean up the delinquency.

Bids by owners of 31 parcels to clean up taxes thru payments ranging from 50 to 90 per cent were approved by the committee.

Kane County Youth Missing in Action in the Philippines

Sergt. Richard Leroy Leff, 21 years old, son of Mrs. Martin L. Roush of St. Charles township, Kane county, was reported "missing in action" in the Philippines in a message received yesterday from the war department. Leff enlisted in the army air corps a year and a half ago and went overseas nine months ago.

HARVESTER TANK CREWS START TO FORT SHERIDAN

The vanguard of a special tank maintenance battalion, recruited solely from International Harvester employés, left for Fort Sheridan yesterday. Company officials said the battalion would ultimately number 859 men and would include specialists from company plants in other states also. The Chicago contingent will number about 250 men. All are being recruited from the International Harvester tractor works at 2600 West 31st street, company officials said. Included among those making application for enrollment are skilled mechanics, blacksmiths, repairmen, electricians, and welders. The ages of applicants vary from 18 to 45 years. The men from all company plants will meet at Camp Perry, near Toledo, O., to receive specialized training in tanks.

SENTENCED IN $30 HOLDUP.

Rockford, Ill., July 13 (Special).—Floy Boyle, 34 years old, was sentenced to 1 to 20 years in prison today by Circuit Judge William R. Dusher upon Boyle's plea of guilty to staging a $30 holdup of an ice cream parlor.

GOLF BAG SAM'S AID IDENTIFIED IN SLAYING QUIZ

Police Book Hunt on Murder Charge.

Golf Bag Sam Hunt, the erstwhile gangster who says he's now a horse player by profession, got himself all shaved and shined yesterday. And to some purpose.

Slicked and pressed and grinning widely in spite of the bullet in his leg, he was put in line with 10 others for a special showup.

The showup was held for the special benefit of one man whose name hitherto had not entered the story of the killing of Mike Wade, a Negro houseman who was shot to death a week ago Sunday morning by a man who got out of Sam's car at Cermak road and Indiana avenue after a traffic brush.

Backs Turned to Him.

The spectator was the Rev. Joseph G. Sorich, a retired priest who lives at 5934 South Washtenaw avenue. Father Sorich saw the shooting. He took the number of Sam's license. But he was 30 feet away and he said the figures in the killing had their backs to him most of the time.

Father Sorich was reluctant to identify anybody at the showup for this reason, but, urged to pick out two men of the 11 in line, he picked out No. 1 without hesitation. No. 1 was Hy Godfrey, Hunt's chauffeur, who was with him when, Hunt admits, the shooting took place.

But Father Sorich also picked out No. 7, who had no connection with the case. Sam himself was a grinning No. 4.

But the priest said yesterday that the man who killed Wade got out of Hunt's car, shot the Negro, and got back into Hunt's car, carrying the gun all the time.

Sam's story is that he got out of the car unarmed, was shot in the leg by Wade, and that during the struggle he heard the gun go off several times and saw Wade sink to the street. But Sam is insistent that the bullet in his leg be left there so there can't be any ballistic comparisons made.

Meanwhile Attorney William Scott Stewart took out a habeas corpus writ for both Hunt and Godfrey, whose real name is Hyman Gottfreed. Police promptly booked Sam for murder and Gottfreed for accessory. They will be arraigned in Felony court today.

LAKES GROUP ASKS TORONTO TO OPPOSE CHICAGO WATER BID

TORONTO, Ont., July 13 (AP).—Mayor Fred Conboy today was advised by Daniel W. Hoan, president of the Great Lakes Harbors association, that it is opposing diversion of waters from Lake Michigan. Rep. Sabath of Chicago has proposed a resolution to the United States house of representatives to permit diversion of 5,000 cubic feet of water a second "to safeguard the public health." Hoan asked Toronto to join other Great Lakes cities in fighting what he termed "this Chicago water steal."

A 'SCOTTSBORO BOY' SENTENCED AS A MOLESTER

New York, July 13 (AP).—Willie Robinson, identified by his attorney as Willie Roberson, one of the Negro "Scottsboro boys" accused of attacking two women on an Alabama freight train in 1931, was sentenced to 90 days in jail today on conviction of molesting a young white woman in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Roberson was one of four Scottsboro defendants freed in 1937.

Sentence was passed by Magistrate Robert F. Mahoney in Bay Ridge court following conviction June 30 on a disorderly conduct charge. Robinson was accused of annoying the woman on a subway and of following her off the train.

MEET TOMORROW ON PAY ISSUE OF ELEVATOR UNION

James O'Grady, president of the Elevator Operators' union, announced yesterday that Harry E. Scheck, federal labor conciliator, will meet with union officials and representatives of the Building Managers Association of Chicago, tomorrow afternoon to attempt a settlement of wage contract difficulties between the two groups. The union contract expired June 30 and the union asked a reduction in hours and pay increases, which were refused by the association, according to O'Grady. Last week the union members voted that a strike vote be taken. This action will be deferred until after Scheck has tried to settle the issues, O'Grady said.

CANADIAN MAJOR IN CITY SEEKING ARMY RECRUITS

Confers with Draft Chiefs on Exchange Law.

Maj. J. G. Troup, commandant of the Canadian army enlistment center at St. Paul and officer in charge of the central district in Canada's repatriation plan, came to Chicago yesterday to confer with selective service officials on the new agreement between the United States and Canada and means of putting it more fully into effect.

Maj. Troup, an officer in the queens' own Cameron highlanders of Canada, has supervision over North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and part of Michigan.

Six Centers in United States.

There are five other centers in the United States. Two officers and four noncommissioned officers are on the central district staff.

Under the terms of the recent reciprocal agreement between the two neighbor nations, Canadians in the United States who have not taken out their first citizenship papers, may apply to their local draft board for enlistment in the Canadian army instead of being drafted into the army of the United States.

Inducted at St. Paul.

They are given a medical examination by American doctors and their papers are then sent to Washington, D. C., for processing and then to Canada. After they have been accepted by the Canadian government, transportation is sent them to their induction center, St. Paul in this instance, and after being sworn in, they are sent to Winnipeg for classification and training.

Applications for enlistment of Canadian nationals may be obtained from any draft board or army recruiting or induction center. Only class 1-A men are acceptable.

Maj. Troup will be available for personal interviews Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week in the office of the Canadian trade commission, 1229 Tribune Tower.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Clean Slate

Roosevelt, WPB Rise to Need.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—After a personal appeal to President Roosevelt as a three time voter for him, M. R. Wolfkeil, 386 pound shipworker of San Pedro, Cal., is going to get a sorely needed replacement of his size 57 pants, notwithstanding the government's conservation measures.

The order, for dungaree overalls and a twill shirt as well as a pair of twill trousers, was issued today by Jack E. Doron, chief of the work clothes unit of the War Production board.

A Friend in Need.

On June 15 Wolfkeil wired Roosevelt as follows: "Voted for you three times. Asked no favors. Need favor now. Need overalls badly. I am slightly oversize, 386 lbs. Very busy building ships California shipyard. Do not wish to become California Mahatma Ghandi. Please instruct Leon Henderson to send me priority for cloth and set price ceiling for pants. Need for pants is urgent."

The White House turned the telegram over to the WPB.

A Set of Specifications.

On July 8 Doran received the following from the shipyard worker:

"Yours of June 24 at hand regarding my shortage of work pants. You ask if I need work clothes. Brother, I sure do. I am pretty well air conditioned at the present time, and what I need is a new work outfit. I don't care if the pants have cuffs. All I care is that my pants have a front and back in them and no holes in the stern sheets.

"I am sending you a few measurements, or soundings, as we say aboard ship, namely: 59 inches around superstructure [chest]; 57 inches around midships [waist]; 32 inches from center of gravity to keel [inseam length of pants]."

Doron arranged thru a mail order house for a tailor to make the clothes. In Hazleton, Pa., Wolfkeil's home town, his stepbrother, Frank Hill, declared: "I'm glad to hear that shipbuilding is agreeing with Marty. He weighed 420 pounds on his last visit to Hazleton."

CIVILIAN NEED FOR PHYSICAL FITNESS TOLD

Osteopaths Study U. S. Health in War.

Unless the United States initiates rehabilitation and physical fitness programs for civilians the nation will fail to achieve an all-out war effort, Dr. Phil R. Russell of Fort Worth, Tex., president of the American Osteopathic association, said yesterday at the opening of the association's 46th annual convention in the Stevens hotel.

"The terrific struggle in which we are engaged demands almost total mobilization of American manpower," Dr. Russell told 2,000 osteopaths assembled to discuss wartime health on the home front.

"This is impossible," he said, "as long as 50 per cent of the population is physically unfit for the rigorous duties that war imposes.

45 Per Cent of Men Unfit.

"An alarming example of national weakness is the fact that 45 per cent of the first 2 million men examined by selective service physicians were rejected because of physical or mental deficiencies.

"If the proportion of unfitness was so great among these young men, supposedly the cream of the crop, it must be considerably higher among older men still to be called and among men and women in war factories," he continued.

"Fortunately, the majority of persons below par physically can be rehabilitated. It is the patriotic duty of government, the public, and the medical and dental professions to cooperate in stimulating physical fitness programs which will restore the national health."

Mass of Youth Ignored.

Dr. Russell said the physical training of youth has been inadequate in recent years because schools stressed development of a few star athletes while the mass of the student body sat in grandstands and restricted their exercise to the vocal cords.

"Our enemies have stressed the importance of national health and physical fitness and we must do the same if we expect to defeat them," Dr. Russell concluded. "We are strongest in terms of production, ingenuity and fighting spirit, but that alone will not win the war. We must also be robust."

Gale Gartz's Wedding Will Be in August

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT'S the bridegroom who sets the wedding date these days, with army and navy orders to consider. Miss Gale Gartz, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Frederick Gartz of Chicago and Lake Geneva, Wis., and Clayton Russell Gaylord, a cadet in the army air corps, are to be married either on Aug. 1 or Aug. 8, depending on the date his 10 day leave begins.

Since the Gartzes won't know which Saturday it is to be until closer to the wedding, the invitations will be telephoned. The ceremony will take place in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Communion in Lake Geneva, with a reception following at the Gartz home, Jerseyhurst. Mr. and Mrs. Gartz are planning to open another old family home on the estate, the one in which the Charles Cranes used to spend the summers, to take care of the guests for the wedding.

Mrs. Jack Vilas Jr. to Be Sister's Matron of Honor.

Mrs. Jack Vilas Jr. will be her sister's matron of honor and their subdebutante cousin, Jeanette Jennings, who was flower girl at the marriage of Mr. Vilas and the former Gloria Gartz, will be maid of honor. Miss Claire O'Brien, who is engaged to be married to Frederick Crane Gartz, the bride's brother, and Miss Mary Whitmire of Atlanta, Ga., Miss Gartz's roomate at the University of Chicago, will be bridesmaids.

Wilbur Schenk will be the best man, and ushering will be Frederick Gartz; his cousin, Richard Crane, and Edson Gaylord, who is the bridegroom's youngest brother. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gaylord of Rockford, Ill. Robert Gaylord Jr., is in the army and will not be able to attend the wedding. Miss Jennings' mother, Mrs. John Jennings, will come from her ranch in Minnesota for the event.

Jean Matthiessen Selects July 25 for Wedding Day.

The marriage of his daughter, Miss Jean Mathiessen, to Paul E. Johnson will bring Lieut. Comm. Richard P. Matthiessen flying home from Newport, R. I., next week. Miss Matthiessen and the young naval aviation cadet have decided to be married at 4 o'clock on July 25 in Christ church, Winnetka, with a reception following in the Winnetka home of the bride's parents.

The bridegroom's father, the Rev. P. Arthur Johnson, will come from Templeton, Cal., to perform the ceremony with the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard. Mrs. Johnson and her daughter, Helen, who at present are in Rockford, also will be here for the ceremony, as will Mrs. Matthiessen's brother and sister-in-law, the George E. Shipways of Noroton, Conn., and their daughter, Anne.

On Thursday Miss Mary Adams will give a shower for Miss Matthiessen, and the following day is reserved for Miss Barbara Wright's luncheon. Miss Marilyn Martin will be hostess at a luncheon on Saturday at the Indian Hill club. The bridal dinner will be given on the 24th in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore D. Matthiessen, and on the day of the wedding Mrs. Ryan Macfarland and her daughter, Mrs. J. Roy West, will give a buffet luncheon.

Report Nantucket Island Is Having Busy Season.

Two Nantucket Island, Mass., visitors who arrived back in Chicago yesterday, Mrs. Frederick L. Spencer and her sister, Mrs. Walter W. Crawford, agree that it's "business as usual" at Nantucket this summer. One or two of the big hotels aren't open, and the island is not so crowded with visitors as in other years, but it still is a grand place for a holiday. The Inquirer and Mirror, famed as being the "largest" newspaper in the world—it is a good 5 inches wider and longer than standard sized papers—issued a special edition recently to counteract rumors detrimental to the island's summer trade.

Included among the advertisments of the openings of clubs and hotels and the time tables fo boat services was a picture of one the early arrivals from Chicago, Robert W. Stewart, who, with Mrs. Stewart, is at Moor's End, their Nantucket home.

Mrs. Philip G. Connell and her daughter, Miss Frances Connell, departed yesterday for their Nantucket home. Mr. Connell will go east later on, and their son, Philip Jr., who will be spending the summer over his books at Princeton, will have a short visit on the island. He spent most of his brief summer vacation at the Presbyterian hospital recovering from an operation.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Taylor Among Earliest Arrivals.

One of the earliest arrivals at the island was Mrs. Benjamin F. Taylor, who motored east and who won't return to the Churchill before September. The Leeds Mitchells are established in their Nantucket home for the summer as usual.

The Frederick P. Boyntons decided not to open their Sankaty lodge at Siasconset this summer, largely because of the difficulties involved in driving east. They plan to remain in Highland Park. Mrs. John G. Ralston has made no plans for opening her Nantucket summer home. Expected at the island for their usual visit, according to the Inquirer and Mirror, were Mrs. Henry N. Tuttle, Dr. Leigh Ewing Schwarz, and Mrs. George Lytton. The paper is urging traffic regulations for bicyclists.

Mrs. Jay Schoonmaker of Pittsburgh, Pa., who is visiting the Donald R. McLennans, will be among their guests tonight at the concert in Ravinia park. The Harold O. McLains also will have a guest from out of town in their box, Mrs. Paul Grady of Washington, D. C. Mrs. William H. Mitchell, who will be entertaining in the box of her parents, Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood, will have her sister,

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Woman Editors.

A lively report on the position of women in industrial editing was made by Sadie Rodgers of Bloomington, Ill., before a convention of editors of house organs.

On the basis of questionnaires sent to 67 editors ["thru some unholy error 16 of these turned out to be MALE editors," said Miss Rodgers] these pertinent facts were disclosed: "Thirty of our answering ladies commanded salaries in the bracket of $100 to $200 a month; these ladies probably were extremely jealous of the four women drawing $250 to $300 a month; all these uniting in admiration for the five eminently successful personages who modestly stated they received sums from $350 a month upwards.

"Twenty-six ladies sweated thru college or the equivalent to achieve their posts as editors; eight skipped in thru the secretarial door, and eight of us are blithely sailing along without any particular training.

"Five persons [I still refer to the ladies] swear they spend their full time as editors; 19 confess to spending only part of their time with their journalistic duties.

"Thirty-two women informed us they had complete responsibility for their publications, while seven had to admit they were responsible to every one in their organization from the president to the office boy.

"Ours is a job requiring first an understanding of people," said Miss Rodgers. "Working people . . . their emotions . . . their hopes and their problems. Women are by their very nature understanding. I think it is fortunate that industry has a trained field of women editors to carry on its vital crusade of building morale in business as well as in the home. . . . We DO understand the problems of keeping people well informed, happy, and contented."

White Collar citation to Rachel A. Hargrove, Negro schoolteacher of Chicago, whose estate was just closed. Air Line Humor?

Frank E. Roman writes: "The air line passenger mentioned in your column would not have had a bad moment had she known that air line transports are equipped with automatic pilots which keep the plane on its course. However, even an occasional stewardess has to be initiated to the fact—sometimes quite rudely—as one stewardess making her first trip found. The pilots, after putting the ship on 'automatic' buzzed the stewardess and hid themselves, purposely leaving a window open. When the poor girl saw the empty cockpit and the open window thru which she thought her pilots had disappeared she surely did have a bad moment."

Little Guests Find It 'Swell' at Algonquin

The mail at Camp Algonquin is heavy with sincerely polite "bread and butter" letters and enthusiastically scrawled post cards written by youthful campers who have had their first taste of country life and carefree living.

The messages give a good picture of the fun that is provided the poor, weary mothers and scrawny tenement children at the United Charities vacation spot on a bend of the Fox river, 43 miles from the city's hot pavements. Generous readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE helped to make the vacations possible with their donations to the Camp Algonquin fund.

The first group of campers have returned to the city after two weeks of healthy, hearty enjoyment. Another group of 35 mothers and 177 children are at the camp. Those two weeks meant much to "Mrs. K." whose thank-you letter to Mrs. Astrid Save, director of the camp, was simple and sincere.

"Dear Mrs. Save," she wrote. "I have never been to any other charitable camp but I'm sure there isn't any place that is as nice as Camp Algonquin. It's so beautiful and has such fine equipment and is run so nicely. John has just undergone an operation. But he had a good time at camp and that is something for him to think about when he is recuperating."

The youngsters, who are now at the camp take little time out of their fun-laden days to write long letters back home but they express their high spirits on hundreds of post cards each week.

Adveturous lad who is getting his fill of good things to eat for the first time in his life, wrote his mother, "Dear Mom: Last night we had a bonfire and a scalp hunt and watermelon. Sam cut the watermelon. We also had marshmallows. The swimming pool has a leak so we can't go swimming. Wish you were here. Bernard."

Another hungry youngster assured her mother: "Everything is fine here. We all like it. The food is just wondeful. We are lucky to be here. Having the best time of my life. The lunch warning bell is ringing now. Have to go. Write soon. Good-by. Catherine."

The fact that there is always something to do and something to do it with at Camp Algonquin thrilled one little girl. She put it briefly to a friend on her post card. "Hello: Having the best time of my life. Wish you were here. I play archery. I go swimming. Will write as soon as I can. So long. Jane."

And there are hundreds of other boys and girls thruout the city who also wish they were there at Camp Algonquin. Donations, large and small, will send them. Each contribution will be acknowledged by The Chicago Tribune Charities Inc. thru these columns.

Women in War Work

By India Moffett

Miss Frances Clow, daughter of the Kent S. Clows of Lake Forest, is qualified to serve as an occupational therapy assistant now, for she just has finished the first course of the sort sponsored by the Office of Civilian Defense. Miss Clow, who received her Gray Lady diploma last April, took her clinical training at St. Luke's hospital, and it is there that she will give the 150 hours of service that she must complete during the first year. Mrs. Edgar Heymoun and Mrs. A. K. Stafford are others of this first class who also will work at St. Luke's, altho they did not take their training there.

Mrs. Francis Harris, Mrs. Mortimer Harris, Miss Helen Anderson, Mrs. Stuart Sherman, Miss Rosemary Kemper, Miss K. Lindener, Mrs. Dorothy Pink, Mrs. George T. Buckingham, Mrs. William Solomon, Mrs. M. Guttman, Miss Louise Kircheimer, Miss Amy Meyers, Mrs. Harold D'Ancona, and Mrs. Arthur Driesmo are others who have completed the course. It was given for the OCD thru the coöperation of the defense committee of the American Occupational Therapy association and the Red Cross. A second course will be given in the autumn, probably starting in September. Any one interested may apply to Dr. John F. Coulter, room 1449, 222 West Adams street, which is the OCD office.

Occupational therapy developed as an outgrowth of the first World war, when untrained workers devoted time and ingenuity to entertaining wounded soldiers. Games were found to be inadequate, so light occupations, such as weaving, leather tooling, etc., were started. The benefit of this type of treatment was so great that schools for training workers were started and have been in existence ever since. There will be a great need for such workers when this war is ended as well as now.

Donations to help furnish the new family visiting quarters of the Navy Mothers' club at 335 North Michigan avenue will be welcome, for there are several things needed badly. Among them are books to fill two big bookcases given to the club, playing cards, games, floor lamps, an electric refrigerator, chairs, and one or more comfortable sofas to replace the 'hideous and uncomfortable ones there now," to quote a spokeswoman for the club. For the time being the visiting quarters will be open on Sundays from 1 to 6 o'clock, and various club members will be on hand to welcome the sailors and their guests.

Mrs. J. Harrison Brown, Mrs. Henry C. Woods, and Mrs. Leonard Youmans are on the committee in charge of the quarters. Mrs. Helen Joyce is the founder-president of the club.

Block parties rapidly are becoming a favorite fashion for entertaining service men, for such parties are informal and simple and entail no very great effort on any one's part. There has been a series of them in Glencoe in one-block long Mary street and a picture of one of the soldiers and one of the young women invited to last Saturday's party is in this section this morning. The Mary street residents will have two more parties, and they are hoping other north shore persons will follow their example and entertain similarly for soldiers, sailors, and marines who are stationed at nearby camps and fields, for they seem to enjoy immensely this form of entertaining.

Evidence of their enjoyment is given in some of the letters the Mary street hosts have received. A sailor wrote: "I think Mary street has hit upon a swell plan; that is, entertaining the fellows at dinner in pairs and then all converging at one place for the balance of the evening. I talked to several of the boys afterward, and they all thought that the party rated 4.0, which in navy lingo is the tops. One thing that appealed to me, and the rest also, was that we didn't have to draw numbers and then pair up with the girl who had our number! That system takes away our initiative, yet seems to be in vogue at so many service men's parties. We sailors don't have any trouble getting acquainted!"

An appreciative marine wrote to his dinner host as follows: "The steak has been our main topic of conversation, next to the delightful company we enjoyed. There is no doubt in my mind whatsoever when I say that the middle west hospitality cannot be surpassed anywhere. All 10 of us agree upon that point; so the opinion is nation-wide, as we hail from different parts of the United States."

Dancing every Saturday night has been in the Emile G. Eberles garden but all of the street residents have had dinner guests on one or more Saturdays.

A different sort of block party is one that has been planned by Mrs. Mildred Molinaro of 7075 Ravenswood avenue and some of her neighbors for Wednesday evening, July 22, in the Molinaros spacious back yard. The proceeds will be used for sending boxes to the boys from the block who are in service. There are about 100 residents in the block, which is bounded by Ravenswood, Clark, Estes, and Greenleaf streets, and about one-tenth of them are in uniform. In addition, 20 boys who formerly worked in the block now are in service.

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and answers questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Cliff Dwellers' Party.

The Cliff Dwellers have sent out invitations to a dinner-dance on the terrace next Saturday night. The party also will serve as a housewarming for the club's newly decorated rooms.

Sally's Guests Will See Some Famed Players

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

The boys and girls who come to our baseball party on July 23 will have a fine chance to see some famous players. When we go out to Comiskey park for our party, we'll see the White Sox play the Boston Red Sox. Judging from your letters you're all anxious to see two of your old favorites, Luke Appling and Joe Kuhel of the Chicago team, and Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr of the Boston players.

We'll have room for 50 boys and 50 girls at that party, and if you haven't already sent in your bid for an invitation, better do it right now, because Thursday's the deadline and that isn't so very far away!

If you think you'd enjoy this party more than anything else you can think of, just tell me about it in your own words and in your own way. Write anything you like in your letter, but be sure that you write it all by yourself. Please don't ask for invitations for your friends—have them write, too, if they'd like to come.

When you write your letter there are three little things you must remember to include—your name, your address, and your age. It's surprising how many youngsters get so excited that they forget to include one or more of these items, and their letters must be discarded.

The winners will be selected next Thursday morning and their names will be printed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE. If you want to be in that list, better hurry up with that letter to Sally Joy Brown!

MARIA'S REFERENCES.

During the course of the evening, Juliet, as best she could, patched up her quarrel with Sir James. She explained that she had lost her head utterly and completely in the police station, that she was sorry, and that she apologized.

He told her not to worry about it, because ever since he had been married to a young woman, he had been able to appreciate temperament. He couldn't be certain whether it was artistic or youthful—but it was there just the same.

Juliet held her tongue. But she still wondered why he had lied about the notes.

She would like to have said that she had made the apology only because Elaine wished her to stay and she couldn't remain under his roof without apologizing.

Privately she wasn't a bit sorry she had lost her head. Nor was she annoyed with herself for telling Sir James to his face—in front of Philip and Morelos—that he had lied in saying he had never seen nor burnt any letters.

She was too confused to worry further over why he had lied—what possible purpose he expected to serve, himself or anybody else, by making such a statement.

"I'll find out some time," she told herself.

"Yes, but it had better be before you get into any more of a jam than you're in now," the inner voice warned.

Well, one way to get out of the situation in which she found herself would be to investigate Maria.

The Lynns' felinelike serving woman either knew something about the Festone case or wanted pretty desperately to find out.

Juliet realized, after today's session with the police, that the only way she could convince them of her complete innocence would be to give them all the evidence she could find—evidence which would stand up after she had presented it and not be knocked down with a word, as was her story of the charred fragments.

Where were those charred fragments? Who had taken them out of the toes of her slippers? Why?

There was no attempt toward sociability in the Lynn household that evening. When Sir James discovered that the girls intended to dine in Elaine's room, he announced somewhat disappointedly, Julie thought, that he would go back to the club.

"Elaine, what are you planning to do about Sir James?" Juliet asked.

"Honey, I honestly don't know. I'd rather like to go to New York with you and start the rounds of the casting offices. But I know that James would never willingly consent to that. And I'm just too worn out to fight about it now."

Juliet said nothing. Elaine asked:

"Do you understand James?"

"Well, in a way," Juliet answered, puzzled by the question.

"You know he's more of a typical business man than a baronet. He doesn't want to admit that he's made an expensive mistake in this marriage. He thinks that he's bought me and that he'll own me for the rest of his life. I'm his property. I've lost all right to my own individuality," Elaine complained bitterly. She added, "You know that night Harold and I went dancing?"

"Yes."

"Do you know what James told Sharon—when he was left alone with her? He told her that he would never give me an allowance nor an estate. He said that I could go and live with Harold if I liked. That he would never give me a divorce. He seemed to think that I had fallen in love with Harold on purpose. I heard him tell the police."

"Why, I thought she was too intoxicated that night to know what he said," Juliet answered in amazement. "I heard him telling the police that he was too tight to remember and that she was as drunk as he was."

Elaine grasped at the words.

"I hope the police have sense enough to check that, instead of bothering about how I spend my money. No, indeed, Sharon wasn't tipsy at all. She remembers everything perfectly up to the time she got sick, which was just before she and James went home."

"Yes," said Juliet excitedly, "he said she got sick—and that after he got here he asked if she needed a doctor. Then he said he thought she'd passed out because she didn't answer her door. He certainly intimated that she'd been drinking too much."

"Well, she hadn't," Elaine retorted. "She just got sick. Odd, isn't it—spend a whole evening in a restaurant feeling fit as a fiddle and then suddenly get sick. Wonder if she could have been poisoned?"

"O, Elaine!" Juliet scoffed. "Who would poison her?"

"James," she answered. "I really believe he'd do anything to get his own way. If he'd made up his mind that he was going to shoot Harold when Harold brought me home—and he thought Sharon might be in the way or interfered, he certainly wouldn't make any bones about getting her out of the way so he could go ahead with his plans."

"Well, I don't believe it," Juliet countered.

Then she remembered how easily Sir James, with his lie in the police station, had thrown the tremendous burden of suspicion on her.

Maria slipped into the room to turn down the bed.

Juliet took particular note of the girl. She wasn't much older than Elaine or herself. Her quick moving hands were neither as worn nor as ill cared for as one might expect in a serving woman.

Her nails, short and spatulate, had been kept finely trimmed.

Maria did not speak while she was in the room and on those few occasions when Elaine spoke to her she pretended not to hear or answered in soft monosyllables. The rings under narrow eyes were darker than usual.

When she left the room Juliet asked:

"How long have you had Maria?"

"O—let's see—about four weeks after we got here. That would be about four months ago. Why?"

"O, nothing—she seems very efficient. Where did you get her?"

"Sharon recommended her, I think—when she heard that James needed servants for our establishment—that was after we got this house and decided to stay in Mexico. James, who did the hiring, says she's from a very good pure Spanish family in Guadalajara—a family that lost all its money, I think. The other servants came from an agency."

"Had you known Harold long before Maria came here?" Juliet persisted.

"Say, what is this, Miss Scotland Yard? You're worse than Morelos. You're not going to try to blame this thing on poor Maria, are you? Of course I knew Harold. I met him the very first day we arrived. And by the time we got this house I—I—well, I knew him very well."

In that case, Juliet thought to herself it would be well to investigate Maria quickly, thoroly, and immediately.

She kissed Elaine good night, left the bedroom, fidgeted about in the living room—the curios there always surprised her—and then went out to the patio. She passed the kitchen slowly to be certain that Maria was still busy there lending Tita a helping hand.

Swiftly she made her way toward Maria's room.

Maria's room was in the servants' quarters, in the rear of one of the house store rooms. Juliet had discovered that, thru her natural inquisitiveness, long before she suspected Maria of anything. She found the room as surely as a retriever finds his bird. She couldn't help contrasting, while she was looking for it, the difference between her agitation when she was on her way to "burglarize" Harold's home, and her present eagerness to find "something."

Last night, when she had no thought of discovering anything that would clear her—she felt like an intruder. Now she was filled with righteousness.

Jewish Women Hear Consumers' Wartime Problems Discussed

Facts and figures on rationing, conservation, and salvage of essential war materials were given by three speakers yesterday to the Chicago area members of the National Council of Jewish Women at their second consumer relations meeting of a special summer series.

Michael F. Mulcahy, director of the Office of Price Administration of the Chicago metropolitan area, explained the functions of the city's 51 rationing boards, five of which handle tire as well as sugar rationing, and discussed price ceilings on commodities as an inflation curb.

Thomas J. McHugh of the War Production board's industrial conservation bureau told the women that successful salvaging is a major factor in the prosecution of the war. He emphasized the importance of the housewife's efforts in the salvaging of grease, scrap iron, rubber, and tin. Edith W. Renneckar, field representative of the OPA consumer division, gave suggestions for conservation of clothing and household equipment.

The Housewife

In answer to queries from readers, there is a cleaner on the market made especially for leatherette. It is put up in paste form and is intended for the leatherette seats and backs of chrome or other modern furniture. It removes dirt, grease, and some stains and it won't injure the finish. It also helps to prevent checking and cracking. Sold in half pint and pint sizes, the larger of the two costs less than a dollar.

Walk Your Way Into Romance, Director Says

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Young women, you probably never thought of your walk as connected in any way with romance, have you?

Well, according to the observations of George Stevens, a leading Hollywood producer-director, you can walk away from love by forgetting how to walk gracefully.

"Comes a war," to quote Mr. Stevens," and American girls, especially, immediately walk away from love. Why the cycle of ungraceful walking invariably rolls around when the world is in a state of turmoil is for some one else to answer, but it is true. One reason may be that women, at such a time, find themselves more and more doing men's work. Yet the truth remains that many of America's loveliest girls are forgetting to walk gracefully, and when they forget to walk with grace and rhythm, they are walking away from love.

Stevens believes that one can get valuable tips from screen stars on how to walk into love. Observe them keenly, he cautions. Note the glamor that a walk implies. There is no glamor in a mannish swagger. Have your athletics, girls, but retain your femininity. Carry on your good war work, but don't lose your grace.

Stevens suggests that you walk around the room in the morning and imagine yourself in a beautiful gown. With music turned on, keep up the rhythmic walk and, when you've attained it, and are in condition to retain it, your boy friend will be right there with something for your ear it has been waiting to hear.

Weddings Announced

The marriage of Miss Dorothy H. Kreitzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen J. Kreitzer of Downers Grove, to Lynn McKee Middleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Middleton of Elmwood Park, will take place on Saturday in the First Congregational church of Downers Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Schroeder of Wheaton announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty Lou, to Edward James Brinkmeyer of Brooklyn, N. Y. The ceremony took place on June 20 in New York City. Miss Schroeder was graduated from the University of Chicago High school and attended Beloit college and has been in the east for the last six years. Her fiancé, a graduate of New York university, is with an aeronautical corporation in New Jersey.

"Dear Miss Meade: In your column of June 23 you stated that every one you had talked to was quite content with the sugar rationing. Who in the world do you talk to? I certainly am not satisfied, and it makes me mad every time I hear rationing.

"My husband works 12 and 13 hours a day in a defense plant. He takes a couple of sandwiches for his lunch, for economy, and because he never can tell where he will be at lunchtime. Before rationing, I gave him two portions of dessert, one for lunch and one for afternoon. Now I can't even give him one. He gets so hungry in the afternoon that, by the time he gets home at night, he has lost his appetite. He is not a heavy man, and is very nervous. His work is hard and he needs sugar for energy.

"I suppose most people are like me. They don't want to seem unpatriotic, but for HEAVEN'S SAKE, don't imply that we are satisfied!

"I think we should have at least a pound of sugar per person per week."

The Indiana reader who wrote me this letter is happier now that she has her sugar "bonus," I hope. She is in the minority of opinion on this subject, I think, or am I wrong? I judge by the reports I have from women's clubs, parent teacher groups, and from my casual conversations with women wherever I go. I often hear this view: "We have more sugar on hand now than ever before, because we run right down to the store every two weeks to use those coupons, whether we need sugar or not!"

I can see no reason for omitting desserts from the lunch pail. There are plenty of energy-full desserts which may be made with jams, sirups, or small amounts of sugar. We have a new set of sugar saving recipes for desserts which any reader may have for a stamped, self-addressed envelope in which we can mail it. Cakes, cookies, and puddings are included.

It must be remembered that sugar isn't the only "energy food." Its chief value in the diet is to make a meal palatable. Energy plus minerals and vitamins, too, may be obtained from good foods such as meat, bread [whole wheat or enriched, preferably], butter, milk, eggs, cereal foods, potatoes. Sugar is not one of the essentials in an adequate diet.

Perhaps this reader's husband would be made happier if a few sweet sandwiches were included with his lunch, date and cheese, for example. Or he might like cooked prunes, figs, or apricots, which may be packed into a small glass jar or paper carton for easy carrying in the lunch pail. These are natural, energy-filled sweets. I see no reason why he can't have pie or cake now and then, too, if he's used to them and likes them.

Fruit pies sweetened with sugar and sirup, or sirup alone, are being made on every hand these days. Spice cakes, gingerbread, molasses cookies, applesauce cake, rice and raisin or prune pudding, are only a few of the desserts which may be made without sugar. I can't quite see why this reader finds it necessary to omit desserts entirely from her husband's lunch pail.

I'd be glad to hear from other readers regarding what sugar rationing means to them.

'Our Hero' Transfer Design

BY NANCY CABOT.

This hot iron transfer pattern makes an effective wall hanging. The center space is left for the insertion of a photograph or miniature of your favorite members of the armed forces. If you do not choose to embroider the words, "My Hero," the hot iron transfer also contains patterns of "Marine, U. S. Army, U. S. Navy, Serving the U. S. A., and Air Corps." Finished panel measures 9 by 12 inches.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of Our Hero, No. 511, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

Hollywood, Cal., July 13.—Milton Berle and Lynn Bari will co-star in "Over My Dead Body," which Walter Morosco produces for Twentieth Century in August. It's the story of a scenario writer who can't find the ending to a murder script until real life gives him the solution. Milt's now in New York, where he's producing his own play, "How High Is Up?" His plans to star in it have been canceled because of the picture commitment. Incidentally, he says the latest way to keep cool in New York and still not worry about priorities is to have a midget sit on your head and fan you with a piece of confetti. . . . Since Jimmy Stewart received his army commission, his fan mail has jumped 35 per cent, which proves all over again that the public likes its heroes to go into the service as privates. If they've got anything between the ears, they'll work up. Too many have gone in with a top rank, never having gone thru the mill.

Lynn Bari.

Hot Time in the Rockies.

I don't think Betty Grable had much fun Saturday. On one of the hottest days of the year she was doing closeups under the lights, wearing a fur coat, in "Springtime in the Rockies." She was doing love scenes with John Payne, which didn't seem to make it any cooler! . . . John tells me he found working on that set an old Indian actor named Chief Many Treaties, who showed him a manual he was compiling of Indian sign languages. The Indian said he needed help getting the book illustrated so that it could be published. John is helping him, and says the book may be a valuable historical document because few of the Indians of sign language days are left.

Truth Makes Poor Alibi.

Well, for pity's sake! Our top screen villain has got his comeuppance! Humphrey Bogart's been taking treatments for a sprained sacroiliac. The other night he stopped at his doctor's [an absentminded guy], who strapped him to a table in corrective harness and stepped into the next room to attend another patient. Bogey went to sleep and woke up two hours later with the whole place to himself. His howls finally attracted the janitor, who released him. Bogey got home nearly three hours late for dinner and Mayo says she doesn't believe a word of it! . . . Speaking of Bogey, Ingrid Bergman, who's working with him in "Casablanca," has been teaching him Swedish, and Bogey's so set up with himself he drives out to "Bit of Sweden" for lunch just so's he can impress the waiters—the big show-off!

Fair Enough.

Stunt Man Jack Woody had his own way of getting into the marines. During his physical, he didn't want to tell how many bones in his body he's broken, so picked out the biggest guy in the line and said, "If I can't stay for twelve rounds with that guy, throw me out!" They said, "You're in, buddy!" . . . Director Al Rogell always fills the dressing room of his leading lady with flowers on first day of shooting. Just an old apple polisher! But in "Chatterbox" he came spang up against 14 leading ladies, and there isn't so much as a jimson weed in one of those Republic dressing rooms! . . . Veloz and Yolanda are starting their new concert tour with two appearances with the Los Angeles symphony in the Hollywood bowl next month. They're the first dancers ever to achieve this distinction. . . . After little Nelda McMichael [daughter of Judd, of the Merry Macs] had seen "Fantasia," her mother asked how she liked it. "I don't know," said the child, "I didn't see much of it. I fell asleep and dreamed I saw Mickey Mouse in a dunce cap, and a lot of other things. But it wasn't a nightmare—it turned out all right." . . . Joan Edwards says she knows a talking horse who turned down a $500 a week contract—'cause it wasn't hay!

Ups and Downs.

Carol Bruce, who came out from New York's "Louisiana Purchase" as a sexy dish, was put into two dull roles by Universal—in "This Woman Is Mine" and "Keep 'Em Flying"—in which she wore first men's clothes, then a USO outfit. It soured her on films, she says, but now in "Off the Beaten Track," with the Ritz brothers, she's sexy again, and happy about it. She tells me she has plans for a musical on Broadway this fall. . . . Gabriel Dell gets his army physical today. Billy Halop's going into officers' training school after "Mug Town" with Grace McDonald. Looks like the end of the "Dead End" team, unless Universal can replace the two boys. . . . John Boles got a blistering sunburn after falling asleep in the sun, and was feeling pretty miserable on the set of "Between Us Girls." Just then two sailors, veterans of the Coral sea battle, came in on crutches, their legs in casts. "And I was complaining about the heat!" said John. Incidentally, John's very happy about his film comeback.

Carol Bruce.

Right Up His Alley.

Steve Fisher, contract writer at Twentieth who did a swell job on "To the Shores of Tripoli," was dissatisfied with his assignment on "Corregidor." Steve's an ex-sailor and wants to do a navy yarn. When the people of Texas volunteered the ship's personnel for the new "Houston" to replace the one which was sunk, Steve went to Zanuck with an idea for a yarn to be called "Texas Volunteers." Zanuck's O. K.'d it, and Steve, now in San Diego picking up atmosphere, then pushes on to Texas. . . . This business of making pictures about current events causes plenty of conflict, and it looks as if there's another feud in the making. This time the subject is American nurses on Bataan. Both Paramount and Republic have announced their intentions of filming the subject, and it'll be a race to see who gets there first.

'Ray for Noble!

Ray Noble, who's been working with his band in the Edgar Bergen-Fibber and Molly McGee picture, "Here We Go Again," has turned out to be a natural, and his original one or two lines as a hotel clerk have been blown up to a sizable part, in which he gets involved, thru Charlie McCarthy, in a romance with a Mrs. Uppington. Ray, noted for his sentimental songs ["Love Is the Sweetest Thing," etc.], turned his talents to swing in this one and composed the jitterbug number in which Mollie brings down the house.

Try to Adapt Environment to the Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A psychologist made the statement that an adult, to function normally and to maintain his mental health, must have an environment at least 55 per cent favorable to his nature and needs. Perhaps that would do it, altho it would require a tremendous amount of adaptation on the part of the individual to adjust to the 45 per cent that was wrong for him. But that 55 per cent I know never would do for the tender, immature, still growing, still developing baby, young boy or girl, or even the adolescent.

The child who is forced to adapt himself to unfavorable surroundings, [by that I don't mean unfavorable to everybody, but unfavorable to him] is likely to be cramped, frustrated, discouraged, to withdraw into himself, to become shy, or to have his spirit broken. We don't expect such adaptation of the simpler forms of life, such as plant life. Why should we expect it of children! Mostly, because we don't think.

Here I must say that, even if we do realize this truth, we also realize that it isn't humanly possible for us to make the influences that bear upon our children perfect for their individual needs. But we can do a great deal. In fact, we can do so much for them that they can adapt themselves to the minor imperfections that are inevitable, and thrive. But if nearly everything is wrong, they cannot adapt themselves without injury.

This sort of fitting of a child's environment to him applies in many ways, in regard to his tastes, his disposition and temperament, and his physical needs. The student type, the creative type, the adventurous type need certain opportunities. The unstable child, the emotional child, the responsible child or the self-centered child all need different handling, this handling being a phase of their "environment." The happy-go-lucky child, the too intense child, the "thick-skinned" sort and the "thin-skinned" sort each requires something different in his environment in order to develop fully. And the word "environment" used in this way means management as well as surroundings.

Sometimes there is such force in even a young human being that it goes after what it needs and gets it, regardless of obstacles and wrong handling. But this is not often so, nor is it best for the child. As far as lies within our power, we should try to adapt home, school and social environment to our children's needs.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	3 hearts
4 no trump*	Pass	5 clubs	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

*4-5 no trump convention.

West opened his fourth highest heart. Declarer ruffed, drew the outstanding trumps, then hopefully laid down the ace and king of diamonds. When the queen failed to drop, declarer obviously felt that his one remaining chance was to find the club king on-side, where it could be picked up on the finesse. Accordingly, he let the club queen ride thru West, and was grieved when East pounced upon the trick and cashed the diamond queen for the defeat of the contract.

South had signally failed to reserve to himself all the chances that his resources afforded. The North-South hands were made to order for an elimination and throw-in play. After ruffing the opening heart lead and drawing two rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, declarer should have ruffed dummy's remaining heart, then laid down the ace, king, and a low diamond. This maneuver would have thrown East on lead and left him without a safe exit. If East returned a heart, declarer could get rid of one of his clubs while ruffing in dummy. Or, if East chose to exit with a club, declarer would have the club finesse taken from him, that is, he could lose no club trick, regardless of the position of the club king.

Bamboo Beige Is Smart Hot Weather Color

BY REA SEEGER.

Bamboo beige combined with ice cream white is one of the coolest, smoothest color combinations for wilting summer weather. Start with a white daytime dress or suit, either of cool crêpe, sharkskin, filmy sheers or white cotton, and mix your accessories of bamboo beige. See the many stunning all beige colored bags of fabric or straw, and the newest beauties in white leather criss crossed in crinkled narrow band beige colored ribbon. Beige slipons to match cool beige hosiery [in rayon and nylon as well as thin chiffon], a beige straw hat and white footgear, and you have a summer costume to make an impression anywhere.

If this color pleases you, see the many negligees and house coats in beige. There's one cut and fashioned with the same swank as a trench coat, trimmed with huge side pockets and a wide pigskin saddle stitched belt that is a honey. . . . the material, beige cotton gabardine, retains its lustre and color after repeated laundering.

There are some delectable honey toned house robes of thin summer crêpe, super cool because of their Puritan simplicity. Separate jackets of beige linen or cotton, blouses of beige colored sheers, belts, bags, small summer hats and thin knitted sweaters to top daytime and spectator sports clothes of a chilly day are all rounded up for this effective beige contrast with summer whites. It's one of the sensational color contrasts for the well sun tanned summer beauty, for the red heads and for the brunettes who know so well the startling contrasts of beige and snowy white for their brown eyes and creamy complexions.

Lake Geneva Garden Club to Provide Boat for Tour.

It won't be necessary to use precious tires in order to enjoy the Lake Geneva Garden club's garden tour on Friday afternoon, for the committee is making arrangements for a public boat to leave the Lake Geneva pier at 1:30 o'clock and at intervals thereafter, to take on and let off passengers at the five places to be open for the tour. A train that leaves the Union station, Chicago, at 10:15 o'clock in the morning for Walworth, Wis., will arrive in plenty of time for the tour. The Lake Geneva Country club will serve luncheon by reservation.

Many of the Lake Geneva summer residents will make the tour in their own boats, and there will be lots of young boys at the piers to help with the loading and unloading, among them Louis Schultz Jr., William O. Petersen, and Billy Bartholomay. Some of the older boys will run the boats. The proceeds of the tour will go to Holiday home, where 500 children will enjoy vacations this summer. The home is the second oldest of its kind in the United States, having been established in 1887.

John R. Hurleys to Name Daughter Pauline Brooke.

The John R. Hurleys' third daughter, born on Sunday at the Evanston hospital, will be named Pauline Brooke, after the former Gwendolyn Juergens' aunt, Miss Pauline Klaholt. The baby, who will be called Brooke, is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Paul Juergens.

When W. Breckinridge De Riemer passed thru town for a few hours on Sunday he brought news of his new son, Newton Bayard De Riemer. The second child of the De Riemers, former Evanstonians now living in Bridgeport, Conn., was born on July 10 in Laconia, N. H. The baby and his 5 year old brother, David Steers De Riemer, are grandchildren of Dr. and Mrs. Albert Edward De Riemer of Chicago.

Lieut. and Mrs. F. Osborne Elliott were in Jacksonville, Ill., on Saturday for the marriage of Mrs. Elliott's brother, Lieut. Theodore Capps Rammelkamp, to Miss Frances Jeanne Rantz. The ceremony took place at 4:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Roger Rantz. Lieut. Rammelkamp, whose father, the late Charles Henry Rammelkamp, was president of Illinois college, has taken his bride to the southern field where he is stationed.

Thru the Looking Glass

Women with oily skins are in the minority, at least in this part of the country, but even at that they don't seem to get the attention they deserve from experts in the beauty field. And of all beauty problems theirs is one of the hardest to cope with. An oil laden skin never looks well groomed; what's more, it is far more prone to infection than dry skin.

There is a new, highly scientific cream on the market for the kind of skin that exudes oil and invites eruptions. Remarkable results have been achieved with it; it controls the excess of oil and has a tendency to clear up the blemishes and banish the blackheads that are one of the most annoying difficulties with this type of skin.

It is colloidal sulphur incorporated in a greaseless cream. It's a thin cream, white in color, without a perfume and can be used by both men and women since it films the skin invisibly. Women can use it as a foundation cream during the day and a treatment cream at night. Men can use it at night and a couple of times a day. It's to be applied to a perfectly clean surface, of course.

It has been extremely successful on adolescent skins, too, especially those that are inclined to pimples. It helps loosen the blackheads that are usually the cause of the pimples, and it controls the oil flow, so that the skin is much easier to keep clean.

Some persons can't use sulphur products; they react badly to them. This cream isn't for them. But most men and women with troublesome, overly oily complexions will find this quite beneficial.

Deduction.

In its stone age hall, the Field museum has life size and extremely lifelike sculptured restorations, in flesh colors, of the various races of prehistoric men. These include the Chelleans, who lived 250,000 years ago, the Neanderthalers of 50,000 years ago, and the Cro-Magnons of 35,000 years ago. A couple of days ago a man who had been in the nearby hall of Egypt, inspecting mummies whose antiquity involves a mere 4,000 years, went on into the stone age hall and was immediately consumed by curiosity. Approaching a museum guard he asked excitedly, "If these fellows are so much older than the Egyptian mummies how come their bodies are so much better preserved?"

Wartime Lecturer.

We've just heard, thru Norma Prescott, editor of the breezy Palm Leaf Fan column in the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Daily News, that Byron de Prorok, archeologist and explorer who's often lectured hereabouts, has just started a new schedule, this time in the service of the war department. He is giving a three month series of illustrated talks at training camps thruout the country, informing the men in service about the Libya and North African campaigns.

Composition.

The following was handed in by a 10 year old boy to his teacher, H. Doheny, who feels it deserves recognition for its feeling:

"Dear mother: When are you going to come home? I haven't had a good supper since you left. Dad has cooked every meal and you no how he makes supper. We had eggs every night and they are never done. They taste like they were just put in the dish and they are always cold. I hope you are better so you can come home. Your loving son, Ronnie."

Reunion.

Two former Mexico City boys, Chico Fuentes, staff sergeant in anti-aircraft at Fort Sheridan, and Salvador Salazar, in town to open an engagement at the Pan American café at the La Salle, spent their first night in Chicago together. In his civilian days Chico sang with Poncho's band and Salvador worked in a Mexico City broadcasting station. The boys got together the other evening and to celebrate sang, not one of their native songs, but "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Add Malapropisms.

The man talking to Dewey Smith about his grandfather, who'd reached the age of 93 and still had all of his facilities.

Ever Present Help.

Two bright young women, Dorothy Keogh and Mildred Meek, decided recently, in view of the acute domestic help situation, to embark on a venture that would help housewives readjust their schedules to the new order. Maids by the day, for a special tea or dinner party, and that sort of thing.

To date they've had some pretty amusing experiences. Their first customer was a prominent Chicago bachelor, who asked if his mending could be called for and delivered. It could be and was. A frantic woman called at 5:30 one afternoon, saying the dishes from her luncheon bridge club were still in the sink—her husband was bringing two guests home for dinner, and could a maid be there by 6 o'clock. The most unusual request was that of a young mother who had to go to a hospital for her nurses' aide stint and wanted a girl to stay with junior, who was ill, and see that he took his pills every two hours.

A mother and a foster mother fought in Judge Rudolph Desort's Superior court yesterday for the custody of a 5 year old boy. They pulled him away from each other and outshouted the court. The foster mother finally clutched the boy in her arms and ran swiftly out of the building.

The mother of the boy is Mrs. Eula Ware Dockery of Chattanooga, Tenn. The foster mother is Mrs. Florence Ware, now married to Mrs. Dockery's former husband, Georg. Ware, 3411 North Kenton avenue. The boy is Bobby Ware.

Judge Desort, conforming to an order of a court in Dalton, Ga., ordered Ware and his wife, Florence, to give the boy to his mother until Sept. 3.

Reaches for Boy.

"She shan't have him!" the foster mother shouted. "I won't give him up!"

She reached for the boy. Both women at once seized the child who started crying. Each woman tugged at him. Both women shouted, ignoring Judge Desort's orders that they cease battling and follow the court's ruling.

While the hubbub was at its height, the foster mother grabbed the boy, ran out into the corridor, crossed to the city hall, and got into an elevator before any one could stop her.

Deputies Search for Her.

Judge Desort then ordered the attorneys, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, to prepare a contempt order for Florence, issued an attachment for her and sent deputies out to seek her and the boy.

The custody battle has been going on between the Georgia courts and those in Chicago for almost two years. Recently the Georgia court amended an order to give Mrs. Dockery custody of the boy during the summer and granting Ware and his present wife custody during the rest of the year.

CITY EMPLOYE HELD IN QUIZ ON GUN ACCIDENT

Harry L. Haas, a city employé for the last 10 years, was held by the Fillmore police yesterday for an investigation of a shooting in which two men were wounded Sunday night in front of a tavern at 4409 Lake street.

Police said that Haas, who is 48 years old, was brandishing a revolver in front of the tavern after a quarrel with his wife, who was inside. He was disarmed by John Broderick of 206 South Karlov avenue and Rudolph Wodrazka of 2251 Monroe street, who were passing. Broderick was unloading the weapon when it was discharged. The bullet struck Broderick's finger and lodged in Wodrazka's thigh.

Haas, who lives at 210 South Wolcott avenue, is scheduled to appear in the Fillmore police court this morning.

THE QUESTION.
What long lost article turned up during your last house cleaning?

WHERE ASKED.
Dearborn and Adams streets.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. A. M. Zimmerman, homemaker, 531 Briar place—Eight years ago my daughter had a box of several hundred pennies. It was intended for a gift for her new baby sister, but had disappeared. Last week when we were cleaning shelves and drawers we found the valuable old coins in their same box in a larger box of pictures for the family album.

Rose Mary Bercher, clerk, 1933 North Mohawk street—Our basement storage room had several extra good cleanings because I was determined that was the best way to find the missing tire pump for my bicycle. It never was found until years later when I cleaned my clothes closet.

Mrs. B. B. Millward, key punch operator, 6018 Winthrop avenue—My small brother had borrowed my riding boots for his wild west costume. There wasn't a place in the house where I hadn't looked except in his toy bin. That's exactly where they were found when he decided to have me help do a little house cleaning there.

Mary Jane Steffen, student, 7385 Arlington drive, St. Louis, Mo.—It was extra protection for the dress to hang a long sleeved one over it. Later I forgot about it being on the same hanger under the top dress. I took everything out of the closet several times in a special hunt for it and then gave up. I discovered it later.

Mrs. B. C. Mounsey, clearing clerk, 5406 Winthrop avenue—Before my wedding I had wanted to do a little reading in the etiquette book. I couldn't find it and the whole family's search was of no avail. When we cleaned house last week we came across the book folded between some table linens in a drawer.

Bernice Ricker, stenographer, 4852 West Melrose avenue—I valued the pack of letters and wanted to put them in a safe place. When I tried to find them later I couldn't remember where that good hiding place was. Then came spring cleaning and time to pack away the winter clothes. I found them in the trunk.

Mrs. Anna Ward, 29 years old, a maid in the home of Edward J. Hennessy, 6848 South Constance avenue, was found shot to death in her room there yesterday, evidently a suicide. In one hand she clutched a gun and in the other a photograph of her husband, H. M. Ward, now a soldier at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Ward was drafted a few days after their marriage six months ago.

ONCE WEALTHY PLAYBOY DIES A SALOON PORTER

Liquor Blamed for Death of Edward Channell.

The story of a family's swift rise to fortune and its tragic decline was told yesterday with the death of Edward C. Channell, 38 years old, former vice president of the O'Cedar Mop company. Once a carefree wanderer thru the casinos of Europe, Channell died a porter in a tavern on West Division street.

Charles A. Channell, founder and former president of the company, identified his son's body at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

"Ed drank heavily," his father told police. "We did everything we could to straighten him out, but failed. Doctors warned him he had only a year to live if he continued drinking."

Lost Fortune in Depression.

The Channells lost their interests in the mop company during the depression. Former associates said that the elder Channell now is striving to patent a paper box for ice cream. He receives phone calls and mail thru the office of his former wife's husband, I. L. Wise, 105 West Adams street, they said.

Young Channell was taken to the hospital on Sunday by friends. He died early yesterday. An inquest will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in the county morgue.

He was divorced twice, both times on charges of drunkenness. His father was divorced by his mother on similar charges after 26 years of marriage. A few years earlier the elder Channell was sued by a model for $100,000 for breach of promise. The suit was dropped.

Recalls Trip to Europe.

Memories of young Channell's trip to Europe in the year of his 21st birthday were recalled yesterday. Paris and the Riviera were said to have gasped at the trail of currency left by the young man. On his return to New York he told reporters:

"Yes, I did sort of stir things up a trifle abroad. Immediately after I had put over my winnings at Deauville I ordered 11 bottles of champagne and set up the crowd. But then, that's a little habit I have. I always punctuate everything I do with at least 11 bottles. Original idea, don't you think?"

THREE TAKE $100 FROM MEAT MARKET.

COUNTY SUES TO COLLECT $135,000 LEFT UNCLAIMED

Escheat suits by which the county may take possession of $135,000 which has lain unclaimed in the county treasurer's office for from 7 to 20 years were filed yesterday by Assistant State's Attorneys Joseph P. Burke and Marshall Korshak.

The move is part of a campaign by the two men to obtain for the county all properties of persons who die without heirs and properties given as sureties on forfeited civil and criminal bonds.

The $135,000 is due 60 persons who either have never been found or who have never claimed it. It was obtained thru condemnation proceedings against properties in which they were interested, and the money placed in the treasury awaiting their call.

Thru the efforts of State's Attorney Courtney's office more than $500,000 in real estate and cash has been recovered for the county in escheat proceedings.

Return Accident Verdict in Drowning of Artist

A coroner's jury headed by James Whalen, first chief assistant deputy coroner, yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the drowning of John Grafton, 42 years old, 1430 East 67th street, on July 4. Grafton, a commercial photographer, fell off his yawl near the 31st street beach

This is my boy's room.

This is where he dreamed a child's dreams.

Here, in this empty room, are faded pictures of team mates and heroes . . . books scribbled over with notes and exclamations . . . the gloves and spiked shoes we hung up for good before he went to war . . . the silver cup he won at Sea Bright . . . bright pennants . . . and all the careless memoranda, the echoes of his days.

If fathers could only pour their hate through the hot barrels of smoking guns, and write the records of their grief with bayonet steel!

They said I was too old to fight, though I'm only fifty.

But, if I'm too old to sight and drop a stick of bombs, I'm not too old to lay my money on the line for war savings stamps and bonds!

Maybe I am too stiff and slow to fly, but I've got control enough to keep my car speed under 40 . . . so they can keep their fighting planes above 400!

And if I can't march thirty miles a day with a full pack, I can walk two miles to work and back to help save gas and rubber!

No, I'm not bitter any more because I won't win this war behind a gun or on a ship or in the sky.

I've come around to thinking that here at home we've got the job of passing the ammunition along, of sacrificing little things, of giving up and going without, of looking ahead to "less" instead of "more." Somebody's got to do the necessary, undramatic things . . . and I guess that's what older men are for.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 13.—Both Phil Marchildon and Johnny Humphries were good pitchers tonight, but Phil also was a good hitter. And that was why he and the Athletics beat Johnny and the White Sox, 4 to 3, in 11 innings under the Shibe park lights.

Two were out in the eleventh and the score was tied, 3 to 3, when Luke Appling. Mike Kreevich.

Marchildon singled to center. Humphries then passed Mike Kreevich, the ex-White Sox who in the fifth inning had hit his first homer of the year. Then Marchildon raced home from second base when Elmer Valo smashed a single to right field.

Marchildon Busy With Bat.

The victory gave the Athletics a 2 to 1 edge in the series, which concluded with the overtime battle. Marchildon, in the sixth inning, drove in the tying run with a long fly and the 3 to 3 deadlock continued until the big French Canadian started the victorious rally.

From the sixth until the 10th, Humphries had held the Athletics hitless. In the 10th, Bob Johnson doubled with two out and Lou Blair was purposely passed. Then Luke Appling fumbled Pete Suder's grounder, but recovered the ball in time to throw out Johnson at the plate.

It was the seventh defeat for Humphries, who has won four. The White Sox will go to Wilmington, Del., tomorrow night to play Wilmington of the Interstate league. The Sox will play the Red Sox twice Wednesday.

Sox Get Run in First.

The Sox took a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning when Marchildon developed a wild streak. After two men were out, Kuhel and Wright walked. Appling followed with a single to right and Kuhel scored.

The A's threatened in their half when Kreevich singled and Valo walked, but Siebert fanned and John-

CUBS DEFEAT CHANUTE FIELD ON 19 HITS, 10-2

Dallessandro Tops Attack with 5 for 5.

Olsen Hurls Today

THE New York Giants will conclude a three game stand against the Cubs in Wrigley field today. Vern Olsen, who has won five and lost four, yesterday was nominated for mound duty against Bob Carpenter of the Giants. Carpenter has won eight and lost five.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Chanute Field, Ill., July 13.—The Cubs reaped an early harvest of runs today against the Planesmen of Chanute field to tide them over a famine of tallies in the late innings and carry them to a 10 to 2 victory. After the National leaguers batted out Milt Goemer, late of St. Paul of the American association, with none out in the fourth, they found the going very tough against Dave Hammes and Burt Stover, so tough, in fact that Kiki Cuyler, acting manager of the Cubs, played the last three innings, his first competition in two years.

The Cubs' pitching was handled by Paul Erickson and Bob Wilson, Princeton sophomore and son of Manager Jim Wilson. The soldiers made their two runs off Erickson who yielded four hits in five innings. Wilson was slapped for one hit, a single by Ed Gittens in the eighth, which was nullified by a double play.

Cubs Collect 19 Hits.

The Cubs made 19 hits and made at least one hit in each inning until they ran up against Stover in the ninth. Despite the Cub hit total the score was held down by four Chanute double plays, one of them an oddity in the second inning, in which both Charley Gilbert and Lou Novikoff were run down between third and home on a grounder which Rip Russell batted to Goemer.

Dom Dallessandro, a fine young fellow from Reading, Pa., who is ambitious to make the Cubs' big team, was the batting leader with five hits in five times at bat—a triple and four singles. Dom batted in three runs and scored two.

Cubs Reminded of Averages.

About 5,000 service men attended the game and the total included some pretty good jockeys. One fellow was especially well versed in National league batting averages and kept reminding certain of the Cubs that the size of his shirt was bigger than certain Cub batting averages.

Maxie Shapiro Stops La Marr in Fifth Round

JOE DIMAGGIO'S SLUMP DEFIES AN EXPLANATION

Even He Wonders While Yanks Slip in Race.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—What's happened to Joe DiMaggio? His fellow world champion Yankees want to know. His Bronx public, given more to booing Joe than to utterances of encouragement, wants to know and right quickly. Even Joe wouldn't mind having the answer slipped to him privately. Then he might figure a means of picking up the load that everybody seems to figure was built for his broad shoulders to carry.

Joe DiMaggio.

Time's a-fleeting in the American league race and the Yankees don't seem to be what they were even as recently as last fall's world series in which they blithely dusted off Brooklyn's so-called beautiful bums in four out of five. The champions' pace has been slowing down at an alarming rate. Ambitious contenders for some of that series loot are snapping at the Yankee heels, an unusual experience for Joe McCarthy's entry. And the Joseph member of the DiMaggio family stands charged with being guilty for the alarming situation.

Other Yankees Falter, Too.

Maybe it is DiMaggio's fault and then again it could be other factors. The consistent DiMaggio power isn't the only item missing from the champions' customary répertoire. Some of his pals aren't hitting. But DiMaggio can't dodge the rap. The evidence is against him. Didn't he spark the Yanks into a sensational splurge last midsummer with his 56-game hitting streak? Didn't they waltz into a pennant by a 17-game margin over the second place Bostons? Well, DiMaggio is no longer the bellwether of Shepherd Joe McCarthy's flock and nobody has stepped forth to pick up the load.

The hitting streak of DiMaggio's appears more impressive now than it did when it was ended at 56 games, eclipsing Rogers Hornsby's modern mark of 33. The streak began here May 15 against Eddie Smith of the White Sox. It weaved back and forth thru the league until the night of July 17 at Cleveland when he was brought up abruptly by Al Smith and Jim Bagby, aided by some sensational fielding.

That Great 1941 Streak.

Into that streak the Frisco Italian tossed, among other things, 15 homers and 16 doubles. His hitting while the splurge was under way in those 56 consecutive games was good for a .408 average. Except for those larceny plays by which Ken Keltner halted him at Cleveland, DiMaggio might have gone on to a more spec-

Arlington Sends Bond, Check to Jockey's Widow

The Arlington Park Jockey club yesterday sent a $5,000 insurance check and a $1,000 war bond to Mrs. Gayle Frye of Twin Falls, Idaho, widow of Jockey Jack F. Frye, who was fatally injured in a fall from a horse during a morning workout on June 27. Arlington Park pays the premiums on the insurance of all riders at the track. The war bond was a gift from the track to Frye's two year old son, Jack, sent with a note of condolence from B. F. Lindheimer, chairman of the operating committee.

Maj. Ednyfed Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing board, had previously taken care of the payment of the funeral expenses, which amounted to $629.

SEGURA WINS IN STRAIGHT SETS IN CLAY COURT MEET

New York, July 13 (AP).—Francisco Segura of South America, made up for two days of idleness in the eastern clay court tennis tournament today with a pair of straight set triumphs.

The Ecuadorean romped thru Alan Lobel, former New York university captain, 6-1, 6-0 and handed the same figures to William Ritz.

Top-seeded Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Cal., who precedes Segura in the draw, was absent for the third straight day, but Alejo Russell, third-seeded Argentinian, dumped Conrad Lanza of New York, 6-1, 6-1, to earn a third-round berth.

Sidney B. Wood of New York, the veteran internationalist, seeded sixth, defeated Jack Ragland, 6-4, 6-1, and reached the third round, along with Budge Patty of Los Angeles, national junior champion, who turned back fred Krais of Pelham, N. Y., 6-2, 6-3.

The women's tournament opened minus its first and fourth-seeded entries. Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, defaulted because of a misunderstanding over traveling expenses, while Mrs. Helen Pederson Rihbany of Greenwich, Conn., was called home because of illness.

SPORT'S BIGGEST CHARITY DRIVE TOTALS $83,600

N. U. Quarter Backs Lead Early Vote.

BY ARCH WARD.

The All-Star football game's Army Emergency Relief drive still is far short of its $100,000 goal. Contributions this morning total $83,600. The largest check in yesterday's mail was $600 from a donor who asked to be identified as "A friend of the service man."

One of the encouraging aspects of the campaign is the support which is beginning to develop in out of town centers. Minneapolis, Rockford, and Bloomington, Ill., are represented in the list of contributors this morning for the first time.

Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the game between the College All-Stars and Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field Aug. 28, will give a 50 yard line ticket for each $100 donation to the Army Emergency Relief fund. The army will award each contributor with a life membership in Army Emergency Relief.

Hardest Part's Ahead.

The effort to raise $100,000 to add to the normal profits of the game is almost 85 per cent completed, but the biggest job lies ahead. The last 15 per cent in all probability will be harder to find than the first 85 per cent. The army, the navy, and Chicago Tribune Charities more than ever need the coöperation of Chicago's fans to guarantee attainment of the goal.

The ninth annual poll for All-Star players, which opened Sunday and will continue for two weeks, has developed some surprises in the early returns. Dick Erdlitz, Northwestern quarter back, has taken a huge lead over his teammate, Don Kruger; Frank Albert of Stanford, and other widely known field generals. Al Blozis of Georgetown, world's indoor record holder in the shot put, has a commanding lead at tackle where he is trailed in order by Alf Bauman of Northwestern, Ur

PICKET WINS BY TWO LENGTHS IN FUTURITY TUNEUP

Littletown, Non-Eligible, Second at Arlington.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

John Whitney's unbeaten juvenile colt, Picket, tuned up for next Saturday's Arlington Futurity by coming home at an easy gallop, comfortably ahead of a band of eligibles for this $60,000 stake. This handsome youngster, which won the only two previous starts of his career at Belmont, was given his most severe test by the only horse in the race which wasn't nominated for the Futurity. This was Littletown, top ranking juvenile of the Chicago area to date. But it wasn't even a struggle.

Jockey Herb Litzenberger sent Littletown up in an effort to engage Picket during the stretch run, but he couldn't get near him. The Whitney colt was running so easily that he seemed to be out for just a canter as Wayne Wright brought him up to the finish line, two lengths ahead of Littletown. Gustave Ring's Ringmenow was best of the others in a soundly beaten field. He was three lengths behind the second horse.

Assured of Strong Backing.

By this performance, Picket assured himself of strong backing in Saturday's big race. There's still no telling how good a horse he is because, after winning his maiden race at Belmont by a head on May 19, he came back to score by three lengths a week later and continued to dominate his opposition without extending himself yesterday.

A field of ten went to the post in this six furlong dash, which was called the Englewood purse. Littletown was the even money favorite, Picket being held at 7 to 2 and Ringmenow at 9 to 2.

Picket got away well and raced with Glanceabout and African Sun in the first flight down the back stretch and into the turn. Meanwhile Littletown wasn't showing the early speed he had demonstrated when he won the Joliet and Primer.

Littletown Steps into Second Place.

Approaching the stretch, Littletown moved up to a contending position and stepped into second place, passing all except Picket as they hit the head of the straightaway. But Picket was nearly two lengths ahead of him, running freely, and that was too much of an advantage to spot a horse such as the Whitney colt, which had an eight pound advantage in the weights.

The pace had been a quarter in :22 2-5, half in :45 3-5 and the six furlongs in 1:12 2-5. The prices on the winner were $9.40, $3.80, and $3.20 across the board.

Woof Woof Takes Sysonsby.

With Regards, making his first start since running fourth in the Kentucky Derby, went to the post at 3 to 5 odds in yesterday's Sysonsby purse at seven furlongs. The fans were a little overconfident, however, and the best the favorite could do was save third place behind Woof Woof and Daily Trouble, the second and the third choices respectively.

With Regards, which is noted for his early speed, had considerable difficult shaking off Wishing during the earlier stages. For five-eighths of a mile this horse stuck right along the flank of the favorite. Approaching the stretch, Wishing was thru, but Woof Woof meanwhile had come up powerfully with a challenge in the stretch that carried him to the lead in the last furlong.

Woof Woof's backers collected $9, $4.40, and $2.40 across the board.

Fans' All-Star Charity Fund Needs $16,400

Stidham of Marquette gave Smith a unanimous vote. Westfall was picked by four of the five. Stidham chose Jack Jacobs, Oklahoma Indian, for the full back job.

Dorais, who coached the 1937 All-Stars to a 6 to 0 victory over the Green Bay Packers, included Bill Dudley of Virginia, hero of the East-West game at New Orleans last New Year's day, in his back field. The coaches' selections follow:

FRANK DOLVEN TAKES MEDAL IN MIDWEST GOLF

Shoots Par 72 in Public Links Tourney.

Frank Dolven Jr., participating in one of his last golf tournaments before reporting to the army air corps, captured medalist honors in the Midwest Public Links tournament in Lincoln park yesterday with a par equaling effort of 34—38—72.

The 20 year old Twin Orchard player, who was runner-up in the Cook County Amateur last year, led a field of 150 who sought positions in the championship flight which will hold the first round of match play today.

In second place, two strokes behind the leader, was Carl Frye of Jackson park who carded a 36—38—74. Frank Cognato, a defense worker from Maywood, and Owen Johnson of Invesness were tied for third with 75s.

Three Tied at 76.

Swede Hanson of Elmgate, Leo Fahey of Elmgate, and Don. Temple of Northwestern were deadlocked at 76. Players shooting 82 and under qualified for the championship flight.

Dolven got off to a strong start in his qualifying test as he fired a 34, two under par, on the first nine. He sank long putts for birdies on the second and fourth holes and carded par figures on the other seven holes.

Gets an Eagle on 11th Hole.

He went three under par with an eagle at the 11th where he sank his approach from just off the apron. He lost his first decision to par at the 14th where he three putted for a 6, and had a double bogie at the short 15th where he was trapped. Another trap at the next hole cost him a stroke to par.

Dolven dropped a 15 foot putt for a birdie at the 17th but a trap forced him to bogie the 18th to round out the nine in 38, two over par.

son lined to Kolloway for a double play. In the third, however, the Mackmen tagged Humphries for three hits, and but for poor base running by Marchildon they would have made more than a run. Marchildon led off with a double to left, but was doubled at second when Kreevich lined to Hoag. Valo then singled and Siebert doubled the score board, sending Valo across.

A two base error by Appling of Blair's popup gave the Athletics another chance in the fourth. Suder pushed Blair to third with a sacrifice and Knickerbocker walked, but Swift hit to Humphries and Blair was out at the plate. Then Marchildon flied to Hoag.

Kreevich Hits His Homer.

Kreevich's home run in the fifth sent the A's into a 2 to 1 lead, but the Sox came right back and took the lead by scoring twice in the sixth. With one out Appling doubled and went to third on Kennedy's out. Kolloway dropped down a neat bunt along the third base line and beat it out, scoring Appling. Kolloway then stole second and crossed the plate when Tresh's grounder went thru Suder's legs.

The A's came from behind again to tie it at 3 to 3 in their half of the sixth. Hits by Blair and Suder, Knickerbocker's sacrifice and a pass to Miles loaded the bases with one out. When Marchildon flied to Moses, Blair came home with the tying run.

Singles by Hoag and Kuhel put men on first and third with one out for the Sox in the seventh, but Wright popped to Knickerbocker and Appling hit one back to Marchildon.

When George Barton recently accepted appointment to the Minnesota Athletic commission by Gov. PETERSEN WINS OVER BLUNT FOR SEVENTH IN ROW

Bill Petersen, Indiana Harbor, beat Eddie Blunt of Corona, N. Y., in a fast heavyweight bout in Marigold Gardens last night to account for his seventh consecutive victory. The match went eight rounds.

Blunt was down twice, for an eight count in the second and for nine in the sixth. Before the second knockdown, Petersen opened a cut over his giant Negro foe's right eye.

Blunt weighed 219 pounds, 17 more than Petersen.

Joe Dupont, Chicago lightweight, outpointed Bill Parsons of Danville in a six-round semi-windup which followed the main event. Dupont's victory avenged a previous defeat by Parsons.

Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, who was knocked out by Kid Sanchez in an earlier meeting, held his Detroit rival to a draw in a six round supporting event.

Weather caused promoter Irving Schoenwald to transfer the show to the adjacent indoor arena. Attendance was 1,387 and gross receipts were $2,019.

Joe DiMaggio's Slump Defies an Explanation

tacular mark. He followed with hits in 16 more straight games. Little wonder the Yanks won in a walk, clinching the pennant Sept. 4. What's DiMaggio hitting at present? Well, an approximate .275. That's what makes the Yanks look different.

Just what might have happened to bring DiMaggio down to the level of an every day ball player nobody knows. Old Square Jaw McCarthy can't figure it out and Joe's mind works on baseball 24 hours per diem, It can't be the booing the fans are giving Joe. For some strange reason they have been razzing him for several years, probably the result of a perverted idea that the guy is a bum if he doesn't hit safely every time at bat. Joe didn't mind the ribald squawking in the past so why should it disturb him now? It is just one of those things.

Joe Remains Unruffled.

Because the Yanks are sorely pressed at the moment and DiMaggio, presumably, has retrogressed into a weak link in the chain, it doesn't follow there won't be some changes. So long as there is nothing physically wrong with the Italian there is no reason to believe that his bat will not start producing. Great hitters, and they prove themselves great only over a course of several seasons, don't fold up overnight. His current predicament, he believes, is a matter of bad luck. The fact that Joe is not annoyed enhances his possibilities for resumption of the swing music he formerly played on enemy pitching.

Even if DiMaggio doesn't emerge from his current lapse, the Yanks as a whole probably won't become discouraged. They are still in first place, altho not by the margin they had reason to anticipate. Even if somebody jolts them out of the lead they'll still have a chance. That's when they get tough. Pressure brings them out at their best. For proof ask any of the National leaguers who have encountered them at world series time.

Giants Beat Great Lakes, Rigney, 5 to 3

A home run by Herbert [Babe] Barna in the tenth inning gave the New York Giants a 5 to 3 victory over Lieut. Mickey Cochrane's Bluejackets at Great Lakes yesterday afternoon. Barna's hit came with "Babe" Young aboard as a result of walk by Seaman John Rigney. It was Rigney's first loss in a sailor uniform. He has won five games.

Some 8,000 recruits cheered as their Great Lakes team took a first inning lead, and they weren't too disappointed when the Bluejackets lost, for it was only the seventh defeat in 50 games this season.

Harry Feldman, who took over the pitching duties in the sixth inning from Tom Sunkel with the score 3 to 1 against him, was the winning pitcher. He yielded two singles in five innings. The Giants collected 10 hits off Rigney.

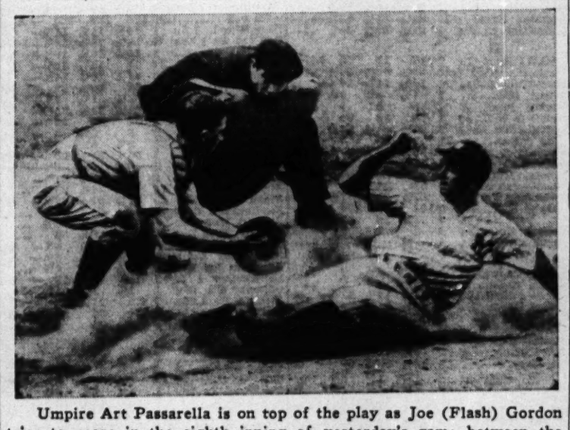
Flash! Gordon Is Out



Umpire Art Passarella is on top of the play as Joe (Flash) Gordon tries to score in the eighth inning of yesterday's game between the Yanks and Tigers in New York. Catcher Birdie Tebbetts of the Tigers puts the ball on Gordon after Pitcher Lefty Gomez had grounded to Jimmy Bloodworth. The Yankees won, 4 to 3, and stretched their league lead to five games. Yankees Defeat Tigers, 4 to 3; Stretch Lead to Five Games

New York, July 13 (AP).—The New York Yankees captured a strange sort of a game from the Detroit Tigers today, 4 to 3, to increase their lead over the idle Boston Red Sox to five full games.

The world champions made only six hits and four of these were produced by Joe [Flash] Gordon, who had a perfect day at the plate. He made two doubles and drove in two runs. New York's other markers came on the first home run of the season for Red Rolfe.

Gomez Is Slightly Wild.

In the first inning Gomez hit a batter, made a wild pitch and walked three men, forcing in a Detroit run. Then he settled down and yielded only one hit until the seventh when the Tigers loaded the bases on consecutive singles by Birdie Tebbetts, Ned Harris, and Billy Hitchcock. This promised to be a violent uprising, but all the Tigers could do was get one run home on a forceout and another on a long fly.

Gomez went the route, fanning seven and walking five.

Paul [Dizzy] Trout started on the mound for Detroit and was tagged for a run in the second when Joe DiMaggio singled, reached second on a wild throw by Catcher Birdie Tebbetts and scored on a double by Gordon.

Rolfe Connects for Two Runs.

The homer by Rolfe, who made his first appearance in the Yankee lineup yesterday after a long illness, came in the fifth inning following a walk by Buddy Hassett. Afterward Tom Henrich also walked, took second on an infield out and scored on Gordon's second double.

SENATORS BLANK INDIANS, 7-0.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Young Walter Masterson, Washington right-hander, handcuffed Cleveland with three hits to blank the Indians, 7 to 0, tonight.

The Senators pounded Southpaw Al Milnar for five runs and seven hits in the five innings he worked, added two runs off Red Embree on two hits, a walk and a passed ball in the seventh and got their final base smash off Tom Ferrick, Cleveland's final moundsman.

Masterson struck out five batters and issued only two walks.

Boat Lost, 2d Fights Blaze in Port Huron Sail

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 13 (AP).—The surprising runaway victory of the underrated Hostess II., adventures of a six man crew rescued from the yacht Rangoon as it pounded to pieces on a reef and the excitement of a two hour fire aboard the Minx were recounted tonight as the 18th annual Port Huron-to-Mackinac race drew to an end.

The upset victory of the Shamrock in the racing division also provided conversation while word of stragglers from a starting field of 19 yachts was awaited.

As darkness fell tonight the air had calmed and Lloyd Kurtzworth, head of the Bayview Yacht club's race committee, said further arrivals before morning were unlikely.

Kittihawk Loses 12 Hours.

One of the last to arrive before nightfall was Kittihawk, 55 foot cutter skippered by John Timken of Cleveland, 1941 winner which finished 12 hours behind the first finisher this year. Kittihawk's crew reported exactly that much time lost between 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday when the cutter was becalmed in Saginaw bay.

Iolanthe, skippered by E. C. Balch of Detroit, earned a triumph in the last division to be decided, that for non-racing cruisers. Of the five boats still out, three were in that division.

The yawl Hostess, which finished nearly three hours ahead of the Shamrock, its nearest rival, on the basis of elapsed time, earned five trophies for its owner, C. W. Beck Jr. of Detroit. The trim 52 foot craft, with a time allowance of 1:21:49, won on both elapsed and corrected times, swept the division for Class A racing cruisers and took two special trophies.

Manitou Holds Record.

The Hostess crossed the finish line at 3:30 a. m., having covered the 240 mile course in 37:29:28. The records of 32:45:27 was set by J. P. Lowe's Manitou in 1940.

Second was the Shamrock, winner of the racing division, 45 minutes ahead of Iris, the favorite, which finished fourth. In third place was the 42 foot cutter Apache, winner in Class B for racing cruisers.

A brief telegram informed other contestants of the fate of the Rangoon, owned by Fred Temple of the Toledo Yacht club. The racing craft struck a reef off Thunder Bay Island before dawn today, and coast guardsmen removed the crew. By daylight, the vessel had pounded to pieces.

Two Burned in Fire on Minx.

Ted Butterick and Jack Langley, both of Detroit, were burned about the hands and face in fighting the two hour fire that followed.

SISTER SHIPS TO SAIL IN CHICAGO TO MACKINAC RUN

Barquita, Gentian Built on Same Forms.

Two sister ships will start in the Chicago Yacht club's annual race to Mackinac Island, Mich., for the first time in years, when the fleet leaves on the 35th passage Saturday. Ordinarily, all yachts competing in this fixture differ in length, weight, and sail area.

The identical yachts, Barquita and Gentian, are two of 20 which were ordered from the same naval architects, Sparkman & Stephens, and built over the same forms in City Island, N. Y., six years ago. After the score of boats was completed, the forms were destroyed. The boats were named the "New York Yacht club 32" class.

The Barquita and the Gentian were brought to Chicago late last summer from the Atlantic coast by their new owners, Ed Buker Jr. of the Jackson Park Yacht club and Eugene A. Steuert of the Chicago Yacht club, respectively.

Boats Are Cutter Rigged.

Each yacht is 45 feet overall and 32 feet on the waterline. They are 10½ feet wide and draw 6½ feet of water. Cutter rigged, their masts reach nearly 60 feet above deck.

Altho Barquita never has raced to Mackinac, Skipper Buker has sailed in the race almost every year since 1925.

Barquita will be sailed Saturday by Buker, Oscar Eskonen, and Emory

PROFIT CASHING PUSHES STOCKS DOWN SLIGHTLY

No Real Pressure Shows Up in Market.

New York, July 13 (AP).—Leading stocks edged downward in today's market without being subjected to any real selling pressure. Buyers with sizable profits on last week's sharp rally, second best for the year, were inclined to cash at least part of them in the wake of somewhat more discouraging Russian war news. The slightly better outlook in Egypt failed to provide much stimulation. In addition, the latest house ways and means committee tax proposals were viewed as bearish for corporations.

Persistence of mild inflationary thinking was considered a moderate prop for trends.

Average Down Slightly.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .2 of a point at 37. Transfers of 278,840 shares compared with 435,415 in the preceding full session.

The business pattern gave nothing much to aid the market. Steel stocks virtually ignored an estimated increase in this week's mill operations.

Among losers were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Standard Oil [N. J.], Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Sperry, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Westinghouse Electric, Consolidated Edison, Johns-Manville, and U. S. Gypsum.

Chrysler was up slightly, along with Goodrich, Boeing, Deere, Philip Morris, du Pont, Dow Chemical, and International Nickel.

Of 625 individual stocks traded, 294 were down, 150 up, and 181 unchanged.

CHICAGO TRADE UNEVEN.

Katz Drug, which closed ¼ lower at 3¼, accounted for 10,850 of the 21,000 shares traded yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Declines slightly exceeded advances. Of 66 issues traded, 21 advanced, 24 declined, and 21 closed unchanged. Among other active stocks Swift & Co. declined ⅜, General Motors declined ¼, and Consolidated Oil and Ken-Rad Tube and Lamp were unchanged. General Motors advanced ¼ in the half hour after the New York close.

CHARGE DELAYS IN RUBBER PLAN TO U. S. AGENCY

Houdry Official Hits Failure to Act.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—An oil company official's testimony that he was unable to gain government approval of a fast way to produce synthetic rubber drew a quick statement today from Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.] that "either inexcusable carelessness and lack of action or a very reprehensible purpose" had blocked development of certain processes.

Sen. Guy Gillette.

"In view of the situation in the country today," Gillette said at a senate agriculture subcommittee hearing, "I think it is little short of criminal, the futility, if not the purposeful hampering, that is existing in some of our government agencies.

"We're rapidly reaching the point where forbearance ceases to be a virtue."

Charges Process Rejected.

Arthur E. Pew Jr., vice president of the Sun Oil company, testified that the Rubber Reserve company had rejected the Houdry process to make synthetic rubber from butane—a natural gas or a byproduct of aviation gasoline—on the ground it was insufficiently developed.

He said the process had been worked out jointly by the Sun Oil company and the Houdry Process corporation of Wilmington, Del. Pew also is vice president of the Houdry corporation.

Earlier, Eugene J. Houdry, president of the Houdry corporation, told the subcommittee that tests had shown that butadiene, the base for synthetic rubber, could be produced successfully from butane.

Describes Simple Process.

The process, he said, consisted of a "one stage conversion and one stage purification step, as compared to four or five steps of other competitive processes using petroleum hydrocarbons."

Pew said that while the Sun company was unable to get "a fair and impartial hearing," Rubber Reserve had requested the Phillips Petroleum company to "immediately investigate the process before proceeding further with a 45,000 ton butadiene unit now under construction at Borger, Tex."

"We can't understand," he said, "why they turned down one oil company and then asked that the process be turned over to another oil company."

Favor Alcohol as Base.

Both Houdry and Clarence H. Thayer, a director of the Houdry corporation and an engineer for the Sun Oil company, expressed the opinion that alcohol offered greater and more positive assurance of success as a raw material than did the program currently approved by Rubber Reserve based on butylene as the charging stock.

Thayer added, however, that from a strictly engineering standpoint he would choose butane in preference to alcohol, asserting that in the case of the former the yield would be greater and the cost lower.

After the hearing, Gillette, chairman of the subcommittee, told reporters that the evidence would serve as a basis for a number of questions to be directed at Donald Nelson, War Production board chairman, at tomorrow's session.

Charges Farmers Passed By.

Rep. Raymond S. Springer [R., Ind.] charged in the house today that the WPB and the Rubber Reserve company had been "very hostile against the use of farm products in making synthetic rubber."

Springer said they had "decided against the farmers of this nation" by spending "huge sums" on plants for production of rubber from a petroleum base.

The Indiana representative said existing distilleries and refineries could produce 200,000 to 300,000 tons of rubber annually from surplus grains and other farm products and that only small quantities of critical materials would be required.

WPB to Convert Big Tin Plate Plant to Forging of Aluminum

Steel Shapes Record

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Production of structural steel shapes, used in building ships and war plants, set a new record in June, the WPB announced today. WPB directions to the steel industry resulted in shipments of 481,182 tons of shapes, compared with the former record of 451,000 tons last November.

The War Production board will take over a large tin plate plant at New Castle, Pa., and convert it into an aluminum forging plant that will employ 2,000 men, Sen. Joseph Guffey [D., Pa.] announced yesterday in Washington.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation owns the property, which is known as the Shenango tin plate plant. It has 40 hot tin mills. The plant, unable to get tin and steel, suspended operations June 13, with the exception of the finishing departments, and about 1,000 men were laid off.

Guffey said 12 huge aluminum forging presses will be installed in the space now occupied by the hot tin mills.

Meanwhile Carnegie-Illinois began "mining" its slag dumps at McDonald, O., and Farrell, Pa. The corporation let contracts to a salvage company which started digging into the huge dumps for chunks of iron and steel that in years of plenty were not considered worth recovering.

The dump heaps contain chunks of slag from the bottom of ladles and metal which overflowed. Recovered, it commands a scrap price of $22 a ton.

Some improvement in the supply of iron and steel scrap, and return of some furnaces to operation following shutdowns for repairs, enabled the steel industry to raise the national average rate of ingot production to 99.1 per cent of capacity for this week, the American Iron and Steel institute reported.

The rate for last week was 97.7 per cent. At the new rate, this week's output will be 1,683,300 tons, against 1,659,600 last week, and 1,572,900 in the corresponding week a year ago.

United Fruit's Profit Curbed in Half Year

United Fruit company estimated yesterday that its earnings for the six months ended July 4 were $9,941,000 before income taxes, and announced that "until conditions become normal" the company's quarterly estimates will be eliminated.

For the corresponding six months last year United Fruit estimated its net income before taxes at $10,729,000.

"Under present conditions," the company reported, "it is particularly difficult to state with any accuracy the United Fruit company's results for any period other than a full year, because of the various factors that affect its unit costs and the final disposition of reserves.

Banana Imports Uncertain.

"These factors have become so difficult to determine, particularly any estimate of the quantity of bananas to be imported in the year, that the company has determined in the future, until conditions become normal, to omit the quarterly estimates."

American Telephone and Telegraph company reported yesterday its net income for May, exclusive of dividends from subsidiaries, was $2,271,752, compared with $1,656,573 in May, 1941. Dividends from subsidiaries, which are accrued quarterly, constitute the bulk of the company's earnings.

For the five months ended May 31, the company earned $51,076,547, exclusive of dividends from subsidiaries for April and May, compared with $50,730,994 on the same basis in the corresponding 1941 period.

CITIES, VILLAGES FAIL TO CUT TAX LOAD THRU STATE

Springfield, Ill., July 13 (AP).—The Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois reported today that the war apparently has not resulted in reducing tax appropriations for local governments. Its survey of city and village tax appropriation ordinances adopted in May and June disclosed that there were as many increases as reductions in the amounts local governments plan to spend in the new fiscal year.

Thomas E. Fiske, executive secretary of the federation, urged that nonessential governmental functions be eliminated during the war and said the lack of substantial tax reductions thruout the state reflected a need for organized activity by taxpayers.

COAST AIRCRAFT PAY HIKE BARRED

Labor Told War Profits Belong to U. S.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 13 (AP).—The government told labor and management in the aircraft industry today it will not approve general wage increases, "swollen salaries of management," or exorbitant profits.

Roland Gilbert, deputy OPA administrator, told an aircraft wage stabilization conference the profits of the airplane industry are not normal profits but are created by the war demands of the government.

"They are not labor's to demand; nor industry's to give away in the form of swollen salaries of management, unwarranted dividends or wages," he said. "They belong to the government."

Will End Inequities.

Wage adjustments to eliminate inequities and substandard scales will be approved, Gilbert added.

Representatives of the WPB, the Manpower commission, and other government agencies helped Gilbert prepare the statement, which said that collective bargaining should apply under ordinary circumstances, but "these are not normal times."

Gilbert denied the claim of the AFL and CIO that this meant wage freezing but said "the country is at war and expects wage stabilization."

He declared wages in the aircraft industry "can scarcely be considered substandard."

Cite Shipbuilding Wages.

The AFL and CIO representatives petitioned Conference Chairman Paul Porter, as a result of Gilbert's statement, "to immediately instruct the working committee to take up the matter of wages for full discussions and solutions, without injecting any factors outside of accepted collective bargaining."

Labor leaders have contended that the shipbuilding industry is paying higher wages in this area than the aircraft industry.

The joint AFL-CIO petition declared that "the demands of labor in regard to wages will in no way bring about inflation." A statement issued simultaneously by the Pacific coast aircraft manufacturers said labor's proposals "would accelerate the spiral of inflation."

NORTH WESTERN BRANCH IS SEIZED FOR RAILS, SCRAP

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The WPB said today it had requisitioned rails and scrap metals from the 102 mile Hastings to Linwood, Nebr., line of the Chicago and North Western railway, for the construction of spur tracks to war plants, shipyards, and army installations.

Abandonment of the Hastings-Linwood line had been requested by the railroad and authorized by the Interstate Commerce commission with the concurrence of the army and the Office of Defense Transportation. The Nebraska public utilities commission opposed the cessation of service.

The requisitioning was expected to yield urgently needed scrap iron and other metals in addition to the rail.

COLD STORAGE FOOD SUPPLIES AT RECORD HIGH

Pile Up Butter, Egg, Cheese Reserves.

Praises Farm Effort

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard praised farmers today for their efforts on the food production front. "Barring unforeseen difficulties they will make 1942 a year of record crop production," he said in a message from Mexico City where he is attending the inter-American agricultural conference. "Farmers are meeting production schedules despite some labor shortages, unfavorable weather and other difficulties."

With the period of surplus production of butter, eggs and cheese about ended for this year, the nation has in reserve the largest stocks of staples in history to carry it thru the winter, the department of agriculture's report on cold storage holdings of food disclosed yesterday.

Altho meat stocks are smaller than last year, packing industry spokesmen said ample supplies are in prospect. Marketing of the record stocks of pigs and cattle on the farms probably will not start for another month and a half, but when it does packers look for enough meat to be produced to fill all expected needs.

New June Mark Set.

Last month's meat production set a new June record but the department reported the industry was forced to draw upon its reserve stocks to fill the large consumer and lend-lease requirements. A reduction in pork stocks was a major factor as beef reserves on July 1 were the largest for the date since 1920.

Reports on other commodity inventories on July 1 showed increases over a year ago for frozen vegetables, cheese, eggs, lamb and mutton. Stocks of frozen fruits, creamery butter, poultry, and lard were below those of a year earlier.

American cheese reserves were at an all-time high of 228 million pounds, 107 million more than on July 1, 1941, and 131 million higher than the 1937-'41 average.

Frozen Eggs at Peak.

Frozen egg stocks also were at a new peak, totaling 227 million pounds, 98 million pounds larger than a year ago and 122 million pounds above the five year average.

The department said the significantly high inventories of cheese and eggs can be attributed in large part to Federal Surplus Commodities corporation holdings of nearly 64 million pounds of cheese and about 5 million pounds of frozen eggs.

The department said reports made by cold storage warehouses indicated that 58 per cent of the nation's cooler and 69 per cent of its freezer capacity were occupied on July 1.

Cost of Running I. C. Put at $235 for Each Minute

Running the Illinois Central railroad during 1941 cost the company $121,620,385, or $235 each minute of the year, the line reported yesterday. Its biggest single item was the pay roll, totaling $65,362,288.

START BIG OFFENSIVE ON THE HOME FRONT—TO GATHER ALL SCRAP

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The WPB's nonstop national salvage campaign opened today with the goal of amassing for war use the nation's scrap metal, rubber, and fats. Three hundred thousand meat markets have already agreed to purchase kitchen fats from housewives. Glycerine extracted from it will be used in nitroglycerine and other explosives.

Iron and steel manufacturers have raised 1½ million dollars for a national advertising campaign to stimulate the collection of metal and other scrap, and glycerine producers and associated industries have raised another $500,000.

Metal scrap, including iron, steel, aluminum, copper, lead, nickel, tin, zinc, and antimony, will be gathered by regular junk dealers. Tin can campaigns are being organized by municipal authorities in 29 cities.

More than 25,000 farm implement dealers will help recover scrap from rural areas in a "national scrap harvest" to start about Aug. 1.

Court Bars Rents Above Ceilings; 1st Action in U. S.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 13 [Special]. Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker issued an order today restraining Baldwin Brothers, real estate firm, from attempting to collect rents from 1,000 tenants in Erie, above levels in effect March 1. The action was brought by the OPA and is believed to be the first of its kind in the nation since rent control became effective.

Big Pipe Line Terminal Will Be Norris City

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Northern terminus of a 35 million dollar oil pipe line from Longview, Tex., will be Norris City, Ill., War Production board officials disclosed today.

From Norris City a smaller pipe line would be constructed, they said, to Mount Vernon, Ind., a loading point for barge shipment of oil up the Ohio river to the eastern shortage area.

Smaller in Diameter.

The 24 inch main line is scheduled to start delivering oil by Dec. 1. The branch line running to Mount Vernon probably will be 14 inches in diameter and capable of handling 115,000 to 120,000 barrels daily.

Another small branch will be constructed from Norris City to the vicinity of Salem, Ill., to feed about 50,000 to 60,000 barrels daily into the southern Illinois basin where production has declined recently.

Need Loading Facilities.

In addition, some loading facilities will have to be constructed to get the oil onto main rail lines east, but the WPB officials did not disclose where this construction would take place.

The main line is expected to move approximately 300,000 barrels daily.

The pipe line is expected to reduce the tank car shuttle time from 18 days to 10 days in delivering vitally needed oil to eastern centers. Construction of the pipe line will be pushed forward at several work camps simultaneously.

LARGE TRONA DEPOSIT FOUND IN WYOMING; HELD WAR ESSENTIAL

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The bureau of mines announced today the discovery in Wyoming of a large deposit of nonmetallic mineral trona, a natural sodium carbonate used in manufacture of munitions, aluminum and other war essential metals, and glass, soap, and sugar.

It said this deposit, together with nearly unlimited supplies of salt from which soda ash is produced, placed the united nations in a favorable position to supply their needs for soda ash or sodium carbonate. It said Japan was in a "particularly insecure" position in this regard since salt for soda ash production had to be imported.

The bureau said latest estimates of production capacity of soda ash gave the united nations a potential output of 5,820,000 tons, and the axis dominated countries an estimated 2,388,000 tons annually. The report said one of the trona beds discovered appeared to include reserves of hundreds of millions of tons and probably could be mined cheaply.

Wholesale Potato Prices Advance to 6 Year Peak

Potatoes sold highest in six years on the Chicago wholesale market yesterday. Dealers paid $4.40 per 100 pounds for a car of Idaho Triumphs, said to be the highest price ever paid for early crop potatoes from that state. Potato prices have been advancing steadily recently. The agricultural marketing service said a shortage of types demanded by most consumers accounted for much of the gain.

BIGGER TAX BILL HELD PROBABLE NEXT JANUARY

Senator Predicts Forced Savings.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.], of the senate finance committee said today congress might be asked to consider next January a new revenue measure even bigger than the 6 billion 250 million dollar bill scheduled for house debate this week, and ought to establish now a permanent wartime taxation structure.

Altho he would not comment on the rates involved in the pending bill, George predicted the senate committee, once it receives the measure, would give careful consideration to a proposal that all taxpayers invest a stated percentage of their taxable income in government bonds, bearing no interest and not negotiable until after the war.

On House Floor Thursday.

The house is to take up the bill Thursday, and leaders anticipate its passage by the week's end. Despite the one-vote margins and even tie votes by which many decisions on its bill were made, the house ways and means committee agreed to ask the rules committee to approve procedure which would preclude all amendments except any drafted by the committee itself.

Sen. George indicated the scope of the senate committee's action on the measure would depend largely on whether a new tax bill was to be presented to congress later to make up the 2½ billion dollar deficit between the treasury's request for revenue and the amount the current bill would provide as well as other large additions.

He suggested that a new field of taxation must be invaded if the treasury figure was to be reached.

Favors Permanent Form.

If there was to be a new revenue bill, such as he said he had heard discussed in unofficial quarters, George indicated that the senate committee might not attempt to inject new forms of taxes into the pending measure.

"We should fix a general tax structure now and leave it standing during the war period," he asserted. "That is the much sounder and wiser course to take. This ought to be the last tax bill we will write during the war period except for changes in rates and to take care of unforeseen emergencies."

Few Chicago Dealers Quit New Car Trade Despite War Blows

During the first half of this year 38 automobile outlets in Cook county went out of the new car business, the Chicago Automobile Trade association reported yesterday. With an average of 444 dealers in the county, the mortality rate was 8.5 per cent, compared with 5.1 per cent in the corresponding 1941 period.

Samuel B. Shapiro.

The association said that on July 1 there were 426 new car dealers in the county, against 443 on April 1 and 464 on Jan. 1. A year ago, there were 482 dealers. Of the July 1 total, 277 were in Chicago.

Samuel B. Shapiro, general manager of the association, said that the relatively small number going out of business indicates the "fortitude of automobile dealers in standing up to amazingly difficult economic conditions," including the shutdown of automobile production, new car and truck rationing, new tire rationing and price ceilings.

"We believe that, thru continued hard work and careful planning, a large number of motor vehicle dealers will weather the condtions they are facing and will go on with their vital war job of servicing and maintaining motor vehicles," he said.

The used car market in the Chicago area has improved substantially, the association said, with higher and low priced used cars moving at "fairly satisfactory" prices.

The association praised the motor vehicle manufacturers who have aided their dealers thru managament assistance, bulletins, field representatives and conferences.

"We know it is appreciated by dealers and will bear fruit in the postwar period," the association said.

TWO VITAL SAFEGUARDS OF FAMILY SECURITY

...in War as in Peace

The war has wrought many changes in our way of life... in commerce, industry and finance, as well as in the home. But it has not affected two important duties, the performance of which is essential to the future welfare of your family, namely, to—

(1) MAKE A WILL

(2) KEEP IT UP TO DATE

In the absence of a will all your property would be distributed outright as the law directs. This may result in placing money or property into the hands of persons who possess neither the ability nor experience to protect it; or your estate may go to persons whom you do not wish to benefit.

Regardless of the size or character of your estate—whether it comprises real estate, insurance, stocks, bonds, cash or a combination of these—your will should be carefully planned to suit your individual requirements; and it should be reviewed periodically to meet changed conditions and family requirements.

In times like the present it is particularly important that you do not delay setting up the proper safeguards for your family. We have assisted many others in the careful planning of their estates. Our wide experience in this respect is available to you and your attorney, without obligation. You need merely call one of our trust officers for an appointment.

OPA DELAYS NEW PRICE RULE FOR WHOLESALE BEEF

Nonslaughtering Sellers Get Week's Grace.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The Office of Price administration today postponed the effective date of the price ceiling on beef and veal carcasses and wholesale cuts, as it affects nonslaughtering sellers, until July 20. For slaughterers the effective date was today.

The deferment was allowed because nonslaughtering merchandisers will, for the most part, be selling beef this week which was bought last week under the old prices. The effective date on all sausage items covered by the meat regulation also was postponed until July 20.

The OPA reduced premiums on small lot sales of green coffee to 3 per cent of the ceiling, from 7½ per cent previously permitted.

It said the former rate was higher than the additional cost of handling sales of 25 bags or less.

Small Roaster Protected.

The premium was provided to make it attractive for importers to keep small roasters supplied with green coffee. However, a new War Production board order requires equitable distribution of coffee to all classes of buyers, thus protecting small roasters.

Specific ceiling prices, in dollars and cents, were fixed by OPA upon more than 1,700 individual cotton products. The ceilings were mostly at manufacturing levels and covered towels, washcloths, bathmats, blankets, corduroy, and other items.

The OPA also acted to permit chain stores having an established uniform price policy to continue that policy under the universal price ceiling.

Under the original general price order each store in a chain was regarded a separate seller and its ceiling prices were determined by the highest prices charged in March. OPA now will permit chains to apply for the use of uniform maximum prices in all units of the chain.

Copper Ordered Revised.

The WPB today revised its copper conservation order to permit the manufacture of binoculars and ship valves for military use after Aug. 1. Under the original order, exemptions for the armed services and war agencies from the prohibition on the use of copper would have expired on that date.

The WPB's automotive branch announced that it released 2,736 trucks, truck trailers, and miscellaneous vehicles to civilians and to holders of government exemption permits during the week ended July 11.

Since March 9, when the rationing program began, a total of 51,984 vehicles in all categories has been released.

The WPB also took control over the distribution of aniline, which is an ingredient of explosives, dyes, drugs, and synthetic rubber. Consumers of 500 pounds a month or more, producers and distributors of the chemical must make periodic reports on output and disposition. WPB said no shortage existed.

EAST ST. LOUIS STOCK YARDS SHUT DOWN BY HANDLERS' WALKOUT

National Stockyards, Ill., July 13 (AP).—An embargo on shipments of hogs, cattle, and sheep to the National stockyards was declared today after the market had been shut down by a strike of 350 AFL Live Stock Handlers. Slaughtering departments of packing houses adjoining the yards probably will not be able to operate tomorrow, officials said.

The strike was called after the union and the St. Louis National Stockyards company had failed to agree on wage increases in negotiations to renew a contract which expired June 8.

About 10,000 hogs, 2,000 cattle, 1,000 calves, and 4,000 sheep were unloaded before the strike began, but the walkout caught another 1,000 cattle, 500 calves, 4,000 hogs, and 2,000 sheep which arrived too late. Most of the trucks loaded with live stock had to turn back.

Trucking companies said shippers would suffer heavy losses. There were some deaths among hogs before the trucks left the yards. Nonunion employés of commission firms were feeding and watering the unloaded animals.

Revise Plane Schedules Westward from Chicago

George E. Hatch, district traffic manager for United Air Lines, yesterday announced revised passenger, mail and express service from Chicago to west coast and intermediate points. A new flight will leave Chicago at 9:45 a. m. for Los Angeles, arriving there at 9:50 p. m. Departure time on other flights to Seattle and San Francisco in the early morning will be revised.

U. S. Army Engineers Design Airplanes of the Future!

(Story in News Section)

Shown on this page are new, radical aircraft designs developed by U. S. army engineers and now in the experimental stage. It is expected that within two or three years American pilots may fly such military planes, the fastest, most powerful, and most efficient in the world. These designs contemplate wide use of pusher-type, counter-rotating propellers. The pusher-prop permits burial of the engine in the body of the plane, decreasing resistance and increasing speed. The four-motored giant at the top of the page uses two pusher and two tractor propellers; the two-motor ship just beneath this text reverses the usual placement of motors in the wings, decreasing head resistance. Most unusual types are the "Bat" design (appearing in the left center of this page), with two counter-revolving propellers mounted "tandem," and the monoplane to the right with a windmill pusher propeller behind the tail rudder. At the lower left is the Canard, with elevators at the nose and wing rudders and propellers at the tail, a direct descendant of the first Wright brothers' plane. At the bottom right is a twin-engined escort fighter, presumably a development of today's standard P-38 pursuit plane.
